Entered according to Act of the Parliament of Canada, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two, by THE COPP, CLARK Co., LIMITED, in the Office of the Minister of Agriculture.

PREFACE.

This book contains :—

- (1). A simple statement of Latin Accidence and Syntax, with exercises such as are required of candidates at the Departmental Primary Examination of Ontario.
- (2) Extracts for translation from Caesar, with exercises based on them such as are required of candidates at the Junior Leaving and Junior Matriculation Examinations.

Pupils who have mastered Part I, should be well equipped for beginning Caesar ; pupils who have mastered both parts should be able to go on with the translation of continuous English into Latin Prose.

With the exception of the examples (which should be carefully learned), the rules of syntax are not intended to be committed to memory. When a rule has been orally explained by the teacher and applied in practice by the pupil, no further difficulty is usually found with the principle involved in it. Examples of common constructions should be collected by the pupil for himself from his own reading.

A knowledge of elementary English Grammar is, for the most part, presumed throughout.

In the accidence, we are most indebted to Leighton and Kennedy ; in the syntax, to Madvig, Bradley, Roby, Hime, Key, and Allen and Greenough.

The section in the appendix on Latin Verb Forms is by Mr. Nicholson, Lecturer in Philology, in Queen's College.

FIRST LATIN BOOK.

PART I.

ACCIDENCE AND SYNTAX.

FIRST LATIN BOOK.

LESSON I.

THE VERB.

1. Latin verbs are divided into four classes, called conjugations.
2. The first conjugation includes all verbs that have the characteristic vowel -ā before the present infinitive ending -re:
as, āmā-rē, to love.
3. The second conjugation includes all verbs that have the characteristic vowel -ē before the present infinitive ending -re:
as, mōnē-rē, to advise.
4. The third conjugation includes all verbs that have the characteristic vowel -ē before the present infinitive ending -re:
as, rēgē-rē, to rule.
5. The fourth conjugation includes all verbs that have the characteristic vowel -ī before the present infinitive ending -re:
as, audi-rē, to hear.

EXERCISE.

Learn the following verbs and state the conjugation to which each belongs :—

āmā-re, to love.
dēlē-re, to destroy.
pūnī-re, to punish.
tēgē-re, to cover.
vēnī-re, to come.
sērē-re, to sow.

vestī-re, to clothe.
tēnē-re, to hold.
quaerē-re, to ask.
tīmē-re, to fear.
laudā-re, to praise.
dūcē-re, to lead.

LESSON II.

FIRST CONJUGATION.

1. The first conjugation includes all verbs that have the characteristic vowel -ā before the present infinitive ending -re: as, amā-re, to love.

2. The part of amā-re that is left after dropping the ending -re, is called the present stem. Thus: amā-re, to love; present stem, amā.

3. The present indicative active of the first conjugation is as follows:—

SINGULAR.

1. Pers., amo, I love.
2. “ ama-s, thou lovest.
3. “ ama-t, he (she, it) loves.

PLURAL.

1. Pers., amā-mus, we love.
2. “ amā-tis, you love.
3. “ ama-nt, they love.

Note 1. The Latin verb expresses person and number by endings.*

Note 2. The forms of the present indicative represent the indefinite, progressive, and emphatic forms of the English present. Thus: amo is either, I love (indefinite), I am loving (progressive), or, I do love (emphatic).

Note 3. Ama-s, is you love (sing.); ama-tis, you love (plural).

EXERCISE.

Learn, and inflect like amo, the following verbs:—

porto, portā-re, to carry.
laudo laudā-re, to praise.
āro, ārā-re, to plough.
vōco, vōcā-re, to call.

dōno, dōnā-re, to give.
clāmo, clāmā-re, to shout.
pugno, pugnā-re, to fight.
spēro, spērā-re, to hope.

*These endings were perhaps originally pronouns. Thus:—amo=ama-o-m: i. e., ama, pres. stem (love); -o, connecting-vowel; and -m, I (seen in Latin me, and English me).

Translate into English :—

1. Laudo. 2. Arant. 3. Vocātis. 4. Pugnamus. 5. Donas.
6. Portat. 7. Pugnas. 8. Vocant. 9. Laudas. 10. Speratis. 11.
Aramus. 12. Sperant.

Translate into Latin :—

1. I fight. 2. You plough. 3. They praise. 4. We are carrying. 5. He calls. 6. You give. 7. They hope. 8. We praise.
9. He carries. 10. They give. 11. We plough. 12. He fights.
13. You call (sing.)

LESSON III.

THE NOUN.

1. Latin nouns have two numbers and three persons. They have, however, six cases: the Nominative, Genitive, Dative, Accusative, Vocative, and Ablative.

2. The Nominative case is the form the noun has when it is the subject of a sentence.

3. The Genitive is the form the noun has when it expresses the meaning of the English possessive or possessive with of.

4. The Dative is the form the noun has when it expresses the meaning of the English indirect object with the prepositions to or for.

5. The Accusative is the form the noun has when it is the direct object of a verb, or governed by a preposition which takes the accusative.

6. The Vocative is the form the noun has when it expresses the meaning of the English Nominative of address.

7. The Ablative is the form the noun has when it expresses the various relations indicated by the prepositions with, by, from, or in.

THE DECLENSIONS.—FIRST DECLENSION.

8. Latin nouns are divided into five classes, called declensions, which are distinguished from each other by the ending of the genitive singular.

9. In the first declension the genitive singular ends in -ae; in the second declension in -i; in the third declension in -is; in the fourth declension in -ūs; in the fifth declension in -ēi.

10. In the first declension the nominative ends in -a, -e, -as, or -es.

Note. Nouns in -a and -e are feminine; those in -as and -es are masculine. But words in -a, denoting male beings, are masculine: as, nauta, a sailor; agricōla, a farmer.

11. Nouns in -a of the first declension are thus declined:—

Mensa, a table.

SINGULAR.	PLURAL.
NOM. mensā, a table.	mens-ae, tables.
GEN. mens-ae, of a table.	mens-ārum, of tables.
DAT. mens-ae, to or for a table.	mens-is, to or for tables.
ACC. mens-am, a table.	mens-as, tables.
VOC. mens-ā, O table.	mens-ae, O tables.
ABL. mens-ā, with, by, from, or in a table.	mens-is, with, by, from or in tables.

Note. Latin has no article; therefore, mensa may mean table, a table, or, the table.

12. Most nouns of the first declension end in the nominative singular in -a. These are all declined like mensa, by dropping the -a and adding the case-endings of mensa. Thus: Umbra, a shade; gen., umbr-ae; dat., umbr-ae, and so on.

EXERCISE.

Learn the following nouns and decline each like mensa:

āqua (gen., āqu-ae), water.	rōsa (gen., rōs-ae), a rose.
victōria (gen., victorī-ae), victory.	lūna (gen., lūn-ae), the moon.
pūella (gen., pūell-ae), a girl.	nauta (gen., naut-ae), a sailor.
umbrā (gen., umbr-ae), a shade.	āgricōla (gen., āgricōl-ae), a farmer.
insūla (gen., insūl-ae), an island.	stella (gen., stell-ae), a star.

Translate into English :—

1. Stella. 2. Insulae. 3. Lunarum. 4. Puellis. 5. Aquae. 6. Nautarum. 7. Agricolis. 8. Umbrā. 9. Victoriae. 10. Puella. 11. Rosarum. 12. Lunas. 13. Agricolae. 14. Nautae.

Translate into Latin :—

1. Of stars. 2. With roses. 3. Of a sailor. 4. Of farmers. 5. With water. 6. Of girls. 7. For a farmer. 8. Of the moon. 9. With victories. 10. O girl. 11. To a rose. 12. With a rose. 13. Of a girl. 14. O star.

LESSON IV.

SUBJECT AND OBJECT.

1. The subject of a finite verb is put in the Nominative : as, Agricola arat, the farmer ploughs. Here, agricola is the subject of the verb arat and is in the Nominative case.

2. The verb agrees with the subject Nominative in number and person : as, Agricola arat, the farmer ploughs; here, agricola is third person singular, and arat agrees with the subject agricola. Agricolae arant, the farmers plough; agricolae is third person plural, and arant agrees with agricolae.

3. The direct object of a transitive verb is put in the Accusative : as, Puella rosam laudat, the girl praises the rose; here, rosam is accusative singular governed by laudat. Puella rosas laudat, the girl praises the roses; here, rosas is accusative plural governed by laudat.

4. The indirect object of a transitive verb is put in the dative : as, Puer epistolam puellae donat, the boy gives a letter to the girl (or gives the girl a letter); here, puellae is the indirect object and is in the dative case.

EXERCISE.

Learn and decline the following nouns ; learn, and inflect in the present, the following verbs :—

terra, the earth, land.

orn-o, āre, adorn.

postūl-o, āre, demand.

Translate into English :—

1. Puella rosam laudat. 2. Agricolaе pecuniam postulant. 3. Puellae epistolam expectant. 4. Regina umbram amat. 5. Puella pecuniam donat. 6. Puellae umbram amant. 7. Agricolaе terram arant. 8. Nautae lunam expectant. 9. Aquam agricolis donāmus. 10. Nautae patriam amant. 11. Nautae victoriam expectant. 12. Puella reginae cantat. 13. Agricolaе cantant. 14. Epistolas reginae laudant.

Translate into Latin :—

1. He is calling the farmer. 2. The farmer ploughs the land. 3. You are praising the victory of the sailors. 4. He gives a rose to the girl. 5. The queen praises the letter of the girl. 6. The farmers love the shade. 7. The sailors are demanding money. 8. We adorn the tables of the queen. 9. The farmer is expecting a letter. 10. The farmers are carrying water. 11. Girls love the shade. 12. The sailors give the girls a crown. 13. The girls praise the roses of the farmer. 14. They give the sailors money.

LESSON V.

FIRST DECLENSION.—(Continued.)

1. Nouns of the first declension in -e, -as, and -es are borrowed from the Greek. Their declension is given in the Appendix, and they may be learned at a later stage.

2. The following nouns in -a of the first declension have -ābus for -is in the dative and ablative plural:—Dea, a goddess; filia, a daughter; liberta, a freedwoman; mula, a she-mule: as, deābus, filiābus, libertābus, mulābus.

3. To, when it expresses motion to, is ad (with the acc.); and for, when it means in behalf of, is pro (with the abl.): as, Ad portam, to the gate; pro patriā, for one's country.

EXERCISE.

Learn the following words; decline and state the gender of all the nouns:—

amicitiā, friendship.
cōpia, abundance, fertility.
porta, a gate.
cōrōna, a crown.
Rōma, Rome.
pātriā, one's native land.
sapientia, wisdom.

Gallia, Gaul, France.
pinna, feather.
spect-o, āre, gaze at, see.
ad, prep. (with acc.), to, towards.
e (or ex), prep. (with abl.), from, out of.
in, prep., with acc., meaning into; with abl., in.
prō, prep. (with abl.), before or for.

Translate into English:—

1. Puella portas Romae laudat. 2. Agricola copiam terrae laudant. 3. Pinnas puellis donatis. 4. Epistolas reginae ad Galliam portamus. 5. Nautae stellas exspectant. 6. Mensas reginae ad portam portat. 7. Nautae coronas puellis donant. 8. Amicitiam puellarum laudo. 9. Nautae coronam laudant. 10. Puellarum pinnas laudas. 11. Agricola puellarum coronas laudat. 12. In Galliam epistolas nautae portant. 13. Reginarum filiae amicitiam nautarum laudant. 14. Pro patriā nautae pugnant.

Translate into Latin:—

1. We fight for our (omit) native land. 2. The farmers give crowns to the girls. 3. The sailors are bearing crowns to the gates of the queen. 4. The daughters of the farmer are gazing at the stars. 5. The farmer praises the crown of his (omit) daughter. 6. The farmers give a feather to the girl. 7. The farmer ploughs the land. 8. The sailors praise the fertility of the land. 9. They give roses to the daughters. 10. The sailor praises the wisdom of the farmer. 11. I carry a crown to the gate of the farmer. 12. The girls are carrying water to the gate. 13. We praise the fertility of the earth. 14. He carries crowns from the gate of the queen.

LESSON VI.

IMPERFECT AND FUTURE INDICATIVE OF THE FIRST CONJUGATION.

1. The imperfect and the future of the indicative active of the first conjugation are formed by adding endings to the present stem. The imperfect indicative active of the first conjugation is inflected as follows :—

SINGULAR

PLURAL.

- | | | |
|-----------|---|------------------------------------|
| 1. Pers., | āmā-bam, I was loving. | āmā-bāmus, we were loving. |
| 2. “ | āmā-bas, thou wast loving. | āmā-bātis, you were loving. |
| 3. “ | āmā-bat, he, (she, it) was loving. | āmā-bant, they were loving. |

2. The future indicative active of the first conjugation is inflected as follows :—

SINGULAR.

PLURAL.

- | | | |
|-----------|--|----------------------------------|
| 1. Pers., | āmā-bo, I shall love. | āmā-bīmus, we shall love. |

LESSON XII.

LATIN GENDER.

1. Gender in Latin is determined (1) by the meaning of the noun (natural gender), (2) by the ending of the noun (grammatical gender).

2. General rules for determining the gender of a noun from the meaning are :—

(1). Names of male beings are masculine : as, puer, a boy; vir, a man; ëquus, a horse; agricöla, a farmer.

(2). Names of females are feminine : as, puella, a girl.

(3). Names of rivers, winds, and mountains are masculine : as, Rhënus, the Rhine; Eurus, the east wind; Olympus, Mt. Olympus.

(4). Names of countries, towns, islands, gems, and trees are feminine : as, Aegyptus, Egypt; Cörinthus, Corinth; Sämus, Samos (an island); fägus, a beech; margärita, a pearl.

(5). Indeclinable nouns are neuter : as, fas, right; nëfas, wrong; nïhil, nothing.

LESSON XIII.

ADJECTIVES in -US.

1. An adjective in Latin (whether attributive or predicative) agrees in gender, number, and case, with the noun it qualifies. Thus : Vir bōnus, a good man; bōnus is nominative singular masculine, because vir is nominative singular masculine. Puella bōna, a good girl; bōna is nominative singular feminine, agreeing with puella. So also in Bellum longum, a long war, longum is nominative singular neuter and agrees with bellum.

2. Many adjectives (called adjectives in -us), have three forms in the nominative for expressing gender,—one in -us, (for the masculine), one in -ā (for the feminine), and one in -um, (for the neuter). Forms in -us are declined like Domīnus; forms in -a, like Mensa; and forms in -um, like Bellum. Thus:—

Bōnus, good.

One man with his sons was walking in the fields.

LESSON XVII.

INTERROGATIVE SENTENCES.

NE, NONNE, NUM.

1. Interrogative sentences in Latin (when not headed by an interrogative pronoun or adverb) are usually distinguished by one of the interrogative particles, -nē, nonnē, num. The order of words does not, as in English, mark an interrogative sentence.

2. The particle -ne (which is written after the first word in the sentence), asks for information : as, Amatne? does he love? The answer will be either, amat, he loves (i.e., Yes), or non amat, he does not love (i.e., No). The particle -ne is generally appended to the emphatic word (which is then put first) : as, Filiusne amat? does the son love? (i. e. = Is it the son that loves?)

3. Nonne expects the answer Yes : as, Nonne puer amat? does not the boy love? The answer expected is, amat, he loves (i.e., Yes). Nonne is generally the first word in the sentence.

4. Num expects the answer No.: as, Num puer amat? does the boy love? The answer expected is, non amat, he does not love, (i.e., No). Num is generally the first word in the sentence.

Note.—Yes and No, in answer to questions, have no single equivalent in common use. They are usually expressed by repeating the verb, as seen above.

VOCABULARY.

mēdicīna, ae, medicine.

ēquus, -i, a horse.

arvum, -i, a ploughed field.

gēner, genēri, a son-in-law.

fōrum, -i, a market-place.

aedificium, -i, a building.

ira, ae, anger.

cur, adv. (interrog.) why?

mox, adv., soon.

uter (interrog. adj.), which of two?

the beautiful roses into the building? 13. Did the boy excite the anger of the slave? 14. Will not the master praise the diligence of the pupils? Yes.

LESSON XVIII.

THIRD DECLENSION.

1. In the third declension, the genitive singular ends in -is: as, princeps, a chief; gen., princip-is.

2. The third declension is harder than the 1st or 2nd, because it is harder to get the part of the noun to which the case-endings are to be added. Examples of the common types of declension are given under the usual classification; but, to beginners, no rule is of much value but the following: Learn by heart the nom. and gen. of every noun of the 3rd decl. you meet. If the nom. and gen. are known, the noun is easily declined.

3. Nouns of the 3rd decl. are divided into two wide classes, according as the stem (i. e. the part of the word to which the endings are added) ends in a consonant or in -i. Rules will be given below for recognizing -i stems; and when these are known, all others will, of course, be consonant stems.

CONSONANT STEMS.

4. Consonant stems* are divided into four classes:—

- (1) Labial stems (i. e., stems ending in p, b, m).
- (2) Dental stems (i. e., “ “ “ t, d, s, n).
- (3) Lingual stems (i. e., “ “ “ r, l).
- (4) Guttural stems (i. e., “ “ “ c, g).

*The nominative of nouns of this class generally ends in -s, which, however, is dropped after l, n, r, s, or combines with the gutturals c, g, to form x (cs or gs=x): as, regs=rex, king; arcs=arx, citadel. T or d disappears before s: as, milit+s=milits=milis, or (with a change of vowel) miles, soldier. The nominative of neuter nouns is the same as the stem: as, fulgur, gen., fulgür-is, lightning.

5. The first class of consonant stems includes stems ending in a labial (p, b, m).

SINGULAR.

NOM.	princeps, a chief.
GEN.	princĭp-ĭs, of a chief.
DAT.	princĭp-ĭ, to, or for, a chief.
ACC.	princĭp-em, a chief.
VOC.	princeps, O chief.
ABL.	princĭp-ĕ, with, by, or from a chief.

PLURAL.

princĭp-ēs, chiefs. princĭp-um, of chiefs. princĭp-ibus, to, or for, chiefs. princĭp-ēs, chiefs. princĭp-ēs, O chiefs. princĭp-ibus, with, by, or from, chiefs.

NOTE.—The nominative and vocative (singular and plural) are always alike in the 3rd declension.

Trabs (fem.), a beam.

SINGULAR.

NOM.	trabs, a beam.
GEN.	trāb-is, of a beam.
DAT.	trāb-ĭ, to, or for, a beam.

VOC.	trabs, O beam.
ABL.	trāb-ĕ, with, by, from, or in a beam.

PLURAL.

trāb-ēs, beams. trāb-um, of beams. trāb-ibus, to, or for beams.
trāb-ēs, beams. trāb-ēs, O beams. trāb-ibus, with, by, from, or in beams.

Hiems (fem.), winter.

SINGULAR.

NOM.	hiems, winter.
GEN.	hĭēm-is, of winter.
DAT.	hĭēm-ĭ, to, or for winter.
ACC.	hĭēm-em, winter.
VOC.	hiems, O winter.
ABL.	hĭēm-ĕ, with, by, from or in winter.

PLURAL.

hĭēm-ēs, winters. hĭēm-um, of winters. hĭēm-ibus, to, or for winters. hĭēm-ēs, winters. hĭēm-ēs, O winters. hĭēm-ibus, with, by, from, or in winters.

NOTE.—Nouns of the 3rd declension are declined by dropping the -is of the genitive singular and adding to the part of the noun remaining the case-endings given above.

VOCABULARY.

Gallus, i, *a Gaul.*verbum, i, *a word*sagittā, ae, *an arrow.*lōco, lōcāre, lōcāvi, *place, pitch.*pāro, āre, āvi, *prepare.*vulnēro, vulnērāre, vulnērāvi, Regio (F.), a district.

SINGULAR.	PLURAL.
NOM.	rēgiō, rēgiōnēs.
GEN.	rēgiōnis, rēgiōnum.
DAT.	rēgiōni, rēgiōnibus.
ACC.	rēgiōnem, rēgiōnēs.
VOC.	rēgiō, rēgiōnēs.
ABL.	rēgiōnē, rēgiōnibus.

Virgo (F.), a maiden.

SINGULAR.	PLURAL.
virgo,	virginēs.
virginis,	virginum.
virgini,	virginibus.
virginem,	virginēs.
virgo,	virginēs.
virginē,	virginibus. ¹

The dentals -t and -d are dropped in the nominative before -s. Thus: pēs = peds; miles = milits (with a change of vowel).

Between two vowels -s becomes -r. Thus: honos (later form honor) has the genitive hōnōris for hōnōsis; corpōris is for corpōsis.

The -s is sometimes dropped in the nominative and vocative, as in rēgiō, virgo. Nominatives in -o have also lost the final -n of the stem. Thus the stem of rēgiō is rēgiōn.

VOCABULARY.

LESSON XXVI.

GENDER OF NOUNS OF THE THIRD DECLENSION.*

1. Most nouns of the third declension ending in -er, -or, -os, -es, (increasing in the genitive), -o (except -do, -go, -io) are masculine: as, carcer Romanus, a Roman prison; honor magnus, a great honor;

*Exceptions to the rules will be found in the Appendix.

flos albus, a white flower; paries altus, a high wall; sermo Latinus, the Latin language.

2. Most nouns of the third declension which end in -do, -go, -io, -as, -is, -aus, -x, -es (not increasing in the genitive), -s (preceded by a consonant), -ūs (in words of more than one syllable), are feminine: as, multitudo magna, a great multitude; imāgo cerēa, a wax image; orātiō longa, a long speech; aestas callida, a warm summer; avis rara, a rare bird; laus parva, small praise; vox magna, a loud voice; clādes nostra, our defeat; plebs Romana, the Roman populace; virtūs divīna, divine valor.

3. Most nouns of the third declension which end in -c, -a, -t, -e, -l, -n, -ar, -ur, -ūs, ūs (in words of one syllable), are neuter: as, lac album white milk; pōēma longum, a long poem; cāput suum, his own head; māre magnum, a great sea; ānīmal fērum, a wild animal; limen altum, a high threshold; calcar acūtum, a sharp spur; fulgur clārum, a bright flash; tempūs antiquum, ancient time; iūs magnum, a great right.

EXERCISE.

State the gender of all nouns in the following list, giving the rule for each:—

nāvis, nāvis, a ship.

nix, nīvis, snow,

litus, litōris, a shore

Many Roman legions were in camp.

LESSON XXVII.

ADJECTIVES OF THE THIRD DECLENSION.

1. Adjectives of the third declension are declined like nouns of the third declension. They are called adjectives of one, two, or three terminations respectively, according as they have one, two, or three forms in the nom. sing. for expressing gender.

2. Adjectives of the third declension in -er, are of three terminations, and are declined as follows :—

Acēr, sharp, severe.

	SINGULAR.			PLURAL.
	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.

VOC.	ācēr	ācrīs	ācrē	ācrēs	ācrēs	ācriā
ABL.	ācrī	ācrī	ācrī	ācribūs	ācribūs	ācribūs

Note.—All adjectives of the third declension in -er are declined like acer; all (except cēler, cēlēris, swift,) drop the -e before -r in the oblique cases (i. e., in all but the nom. and voc.) They are all -i-stems, and, therefore, have the abl. sing. in -i, the gen. plur. in -ium, and the nom. plur. neuter in -ia.

3. Adjectives of two terminations in -is, -e are declined as follows:—

Mitis, mild.

	SINGULAR.		PLURAL.
	Masc. and Fem.	Neut.	Masc. and Fem.	Neut.

Note.—Adjectives in -is, -e, have always -ī in the abl. sing., -ium in the gen. plur., and -ia in the nom. and acc. neuter plur.

4. The comparative degree of the Latin adjective (which regularly ends in -ior for the masc. and fem., and -ius for the neut.) is an adjective of two terminations. It is thus declined:—

Mitior, milder

	SINGULAR.		PLURAL.
	Masc. and Fem.	Neut.	Masc. and Fem.	Neut.
NOM.	mītiōr	mītiūs	mītiōrēs	mītiōrā

O boy, the laws of your masters are severe. 10. Many animals are not swift. 11. Caesar fought a cavalry battle near the sea. 12. Are not many old men mild?

LESSON XXVIII.

ADJECTIVES OF THE THIRD DECLENSION.— (Continued.)

Many adjectives of the third declension have only one form in the nominative singular to express gender. These generally end in -s or -x. They are consonant stems, but follow in part the declension of -i stems, having -i or -e in the ablative singular; -ium in the genitive plural, and -ia in the neuter plural. Thus :—

Audax, bold.

Felix, fortunate.

Note.—All adjectives of the third declension have -ia in the neuter plural except comparatives and vetus. Most adjectives have -ium in the genitive plural when the preceding syllable is long : as, audāx, audācium; ācer, ācrium. But when the preceding syllable is short, they have -um: as, dives, rich, divitum; pauper, poor; paup̄rum. Pār, however, has pārium.

VOCABULARY.

rēcens, rēcentis, recent, fresh.

Rich men are not often happy. 11. Old men often find-fault-with boys. 12. The men implored the aid of the bold Roman. 13. The farmer's flocks were wandering in the thick wood. 14. Caesar called the soldiers of the tenth legion veterans (acc.) 15. We often gazed-at the rising lights of heaven.

LESSON XXIX.

COMPARISON OF ADJECTIVES.

1. Adjectives in Latin are compared, as in English, either by means of endings (terminational comparison), or by prefixing the adverbs māgis, more, and maxīme, most, to the positive (adverbial comparison).

2. Most adjectives are compared by means of the endings -ior (masc. and fem.), -ius (neut.), for the comparative, and -issimus (a, -um) for the superlative : as, Altus, high; altior, higher; altissimus, highest; grāvis, heavy, severe; grāvior, gravissimus.

3. Most adjectives in -us (-a, -um), most adjectives in -is (-is, -e), and most adjectives of the third declension of one termination, are compared like altus. Thus :—

POSITIVE.	COMPARATIVE.	SUPERLATIVE.
doctus, learned,	doctior,	doctissimus.
dulcis, sweet,	dulcior,	dulcissimus.
ātrox, dark,	atrōcior,	atrocissimus.

Note.—All these adjectives are compared by dropping the -i, or the -is, of the genitive singular of the positive, and adding -ior or -issimus to the part remaining.

4. Comparatives (except plus, p. 51) are all declined like mitior (p. 50); superlatives, like bonus (p. 20).

5. Than after a comparative is quam, which takes the same case after it as the corresponding word before it¹: as, Lupus est saevior quam canis, the wolf is fiercer than the dog. Lupum saeviore quam canem aestimo, I consider the wolf fiercer than the dog. Quam, however, is frequently omitted, and then the noun following the comparative is put in the ablative: as, Lupus saevior cane est, the wolf is fiercer than the dog; lupum saeviore cane aestimo, I consider the wolf fiercer than the dog.

Note.—Quam can only be omitted when the noun or pronoun before the comparative is in the nominative or accusative: as, Caesāri potius quam Balbo donabit, he will give to Caesar rather than to Balbus (here quam must be used).

VOCABULARY.

fortis, -is, -e, strong.	finis, finis (M.), end; pl., territories.
brevis, is, -e, short.	lux, lūcis (F.), light.
sāpiens, sapientis, wise.	iūdex, iūdicis, judge.
vēlox, velōcis, swift.	vita, vitae, life.
āēr, aēris (M.), air.	festin-o, -āre, -āvi, hasten.
ventus, i, wind.	lōc-o, āre, āvi, place, pitch.

¹The word after quam, if the subject of a verb, will of course be in the nom.: as, He carries a heavier load than Balbus (carries), portat ōnus gravius quam Balbus (portat).

EXERCISE.

Compare all the adjectives in the above list. Decline together :
vir doctior, homo brevissimus, iudex sapiens, navis velox.

Translate into English :—

1. Leges inter Romanos gravissimae erant. 2. Omnium Gallorum fortissimi sunt. 3. Felicio est pater quam filius. 4. Iudex sapientior rege est. 5. Rhenus, flumen altissimum, inter Gallorum et Germanorum fines est. 6. Magister, homo doctissimus, fabulas longissimas pueris saepe narrabat. 7. Consulis oratio omnibus militibus gratissima erat. 8. In Britannia noctes sunt breviores. 9. Principes inter Germanos erant fortissimi. 10. Vita hominum est brevissima. 11. Milites Romani in proeliis audaciores sunt quam Germani. 12. Inter Graecos erat doctissimus. 13. Solis lux est clarior quam lux lunae. 14. Roma fuit clarissima urbs.

Translate into Latin :—

1. Were not the Roman soldiers braver than the Germans? 2. Light is swifter than wind. 3. The Roman is wiser than the German. 4. In the battle the soldiers of the tenth legion were bravest. 5. Cicero was the most learned orator among the Romans. 6. The sailors swam in the deepest water to the shore. 7. The farmer walked through a very thick forest to the bank of the river. 8. You are more powerful than the sons of kings. 9. Water is heavier than air. 10. The ships of the Romans were swifter than the ships of the enemy. 11. The bravest soldiers hastened to the town. 12. On a high hill the soldiers pitched their camp. 13. The swiftest ships of the enemy are in the deep river. 14. Between the territories of the Gauls and Germans (gen.) there is a deeper river.

 LESSON XXX.

ADJECTIVES OF IRREGULAR COMPARISON.

1. Adjectives in -er form their comparative regularly in -ior; but their superlative is formed by adding -rĭmus to the nominative singular masculine of the positive : as,

POSITIVE.	COMPARATIVE.	SUPERLATIVE.
acer, sharp ,	acrior,	acerrimus.
miser, wretched ,	miserior,	miserrimus.
celer, swift ,	celerior,	celerrimus.
pulcher, beautiful ,	pulchrior,	pulcherrimus.
niger, black ,	nigrior,	nigerrimus.

Note.—Vētūs, vēteris, old, has no comparative, but has veterimus in the superlative. Mātūrus, ripe, has both mātūrimus and mātūrissimus.

2. The following adjectives in -ilis form their comparative regularly in -ior, but their superlative in -līmus:

POSITIVE.	COMPARATIVE.	SUPERLATIVE.
fācilis, easy ,	fācilior,	fācillīmus.
diffīcilis, difficult ;	diffīcilior,	difficillīmus.
sīmīlis, similar , like ,	sīmīlior,	sīmīllīmus.
dissīmīlis, unlike ,	dissīmīlior,	dissimillīmus.
grācilis, slender ,	grācilior,	grācillīmus.
hūmilis, low ,	hūmilior,	hūmillīmus.

3. Adjectives in -dīcus (saying), -fīcus (doing), or -vōlus (willing), form their comparative and superlative from the corresponding participle in -ens: as,

POSITIVE.	COMPARATIVE.	SUPERLATIVE.
mālēdīcus, slanderous ,	mālēdicentior,	mālēdicentissimus.
mūnīfīcus, lavish ,	mūnīficentior,	mūnīficentissimus.
bēnēvōlus, kind ,	bēnēvōlentior,	bēnēvōlentissimus.

Note.—Ēgēnus, needy, has egentior, egentissimus; and providus, foreseeing, has providentior, providentissimus.

4. The following adjectives are irregular in their comparison:—

POSITIVE.	COMPARATIVE.	SUPERLATIVE.
bōnus, good ,	mēlior, better ,	optīmus, best .
mālus, bad ,	pēior, worse ,	pessīmus, worst .
magnus, great ,	māior, greater ,	maxīmus, greatest .
parvus, small ,	mīnor, less ,	mīnimus, least .
multus, much , many ,	plūs more ,	plūrīmus, most .
dives, } rich ,	dīvītiōr, }	dīvītīssīmus, }
dis, }	dītīōr, }	dītīssīmus, }

Note.—From iuvēnis, young man, comes iunior, younger; and from sēnex, old man, comes sēnior, older. Youngest is nātu mīnīmus (= least by birth); oldest is natu maxīmus, (= greatest by birth.)

5. The English rather with an adjective, is expressed in Latin by the comparative; the English very, by the superlative: as, Vita hominum brevior est, the life of man is rather short; vita hominum brevissima est, the life of man is very short.

6. The ablative is used with the comparative or superlative to express the amount of difference: as, Puer uno anno senior fratre erat, the boy was one year older than his brother (= older by one year).

VOCABULARY.

pes, pēdis (M.), a foot.

mos, mōris (M.), manner, custom.

dōlor, dolōris (M.), grief.

īter, ītīnēris (N.), march.

collis, collis (M.), a hill.

Translate into Latin:—

1. The boy is taller than his father. 2. Was not the march easier among the hills? 3. The rose is the most beautiful of all flowers. 4. The feet of the girl are very small. 5. Was not the slave richer than the master? 6. The boy is one year older than the girl. 7. He was the worst of all. 8. We shall view the stars from a higher hill. 9. They are better to-day than they were yesterday. 10. Are not the hills very low? 11. Is not the man most kind? 12. The neediest are not always the most wretched.

LESSON XXXI.

IRREGULAR COMPARISON.—(Continued.)

1. The following adjectives are irregular in the superlative :—

POSITIVE.	COMPARATIVE.	SUPERLATIVE.
extērus, outward ,	extērior,	extrēmus and extīmus.
infērus, lower ,	infērior,	infīmus and īmus.
sūpērus, higher ,	sūpērior,	suprēmus and summus.
postērus, behind ,	postērior,	postrēmus and postūmus.

Note.—Mons infīmus is the lowest mountain (of a range) ; mons īmus, the bottom of the mountain. Supremus mons is, the highest mountain (of a group of mountains) ; summus mons, the top of the mountain

2. Some adjectives have no positive : as,

POSITIVE.	COMPARATIVE.	SUPERLATIVE.

5. Millē, a thousand, is indeclinable in the singular, but in the plural is declined as follows :—

NOM. millīā,	GEN. millīum,	DAT. millībus,
ACC. millīa,		ABL. millībus.

Note.—Mille, in the singular, may be either an adjective, or a noun with the word depending on it in the genitive: as, Mille hōmīnes or mille hōmīnum, a thousand men. In the plural it is always a noun: as, Decem millia hōmīnum, ten thousand men (=ten thousand of men).

6. Compound numbers like 21, 22, &c., when between 20 and 100, are written ūnus et viginti, duo et viginti, or viginti unus, viginti duo, &c.

Above one hundred, the greater number precedes (with or without et): as, dūcenti unus, or dūcenti et unus, two hundred and one.

7. The ordinals are declined like the singular of bonus (p. 20), and the distributives like the plural of bonus.

8. The distributive numerals are used :—

(a) To express our so many at a time, so many each, with a cardinal numeral : as, Pŭëris bīnos libros dōnāvit, he gave the boys two books apiece.

(b) To express multiplication : as, Bīs bīna, twice two.

(c) With substantives that have a different meaning in the singular and plural, respectively : as, Bīna castra, two camps. (Castrum is a fort; dŭo castra, would mean two forts. See Appendix).

EXTENT OF TIME AND SPACE.

9. Duration of time and extent of space are usually expressed by the accusative : as, Romulus septem et triginta annos regnavit, Romulus reigned thirty-seven years; nix quattuor pēdes alta, snow four feet deep. (Per, through, is added to the accusative of time to express precision.)

PARTITIVE GENITIVE.

10. The partitive genitive expresses the whole of which a part is taken : as, Pars militum, part of the soldiers; unus militum, one of the soldiers; decem millia passuum, ten thousand paces (=ten Roman miles).

EXERCISE.

Decline together : ŭnus miles, dŭae dōmūs, tria millia passuum, alter hōmo.

Some of the soldiers fought against the Gauls for ten years. 14. The king reigned twelve years in the state.

LESSON XXXVII.

PASSIVE VOICE OF THE FIRST CONJUGATION.

1. The perfect, pluperfect, and future-perfect of the indicative passive are formed from the perfect participle passive with sum, to be. Thus :

PERFECT.

SINGULAR.

PLURAL.

- | | | |
|-----------|---|--|
| 2. “ | āmātus es, thou hast been, or wast, loved. | āmātī estis, you have been, or were, loved. |
| 3. “ | āmātus est, he has been, or was, loved. | āmātī sunt, they have been, or were, loved. |

- | | | |
|------|--|--|
| 2. “ | āmātus eras, thou hadst been loved. | āmātī erātis, you had been loved. |
| 3. “ | āmātus erat, he had been loved. | āmātī erant they had been loved. |

FUTURE PERFECT.

- | | |
|---|--|
| 1. Pers., āmātus ēro, I shall have been loved. | āmātī ērimus, we shall have been loved. |
| 2. “ āmātus ēris, thou wilt have been loved. | āmātī ēritis, you will have been loved. |
| 3. “ āmātus ērit, he will have been loved. | āmātī ērunt, they will have been loved. |

IMPERATIVE PRESENT.

2. The present imperative passive is inflected as follows :—

- | | |
|--|------------------------------|
| 2. Pers., āmāre, be thou loved. | āmāmīnī, be ye loved. |
|--|------------------------------|

Note.—The perfect participle passive is regularly formed by adding -tus to the present stem: as, āmā-re, to love; present stem, ama-; perfect participle passive, āmā-tus. The perfect participle passive is inflected like the adjective bonus, and agrees with the noun to which it refers, in gender, number and case: as, Puer amatus est, the boy has been loved; amatus is nominative singular masculine, agreeing with puer. Puella amata est, the girl has been loved; amata is nominative singular feminine, agreeing with puella.

3. From the perfect participle passive, by the change of -us into -um, is formed the supine in -um. The supine in -um has the force of the English infinitive used to express purpose; but it is used only after verbs of motion: as, Puerum portavit ludos spectātum, he brought the boy to see the games (spectātum is the supine in -um after the verb of motion portavit.)

Note.—The present indicative, the present infinitive, the perfect indicative, and the supine, are called the principal parts of the verb. Thus: āmo, amāre, amāvi, amātum, are the principal parts of amo.

EXERCISE.

Give the principal parts of: porto, āro, dono, vōco, laudo.

Translate into English :—

- | | |

I did not the Romans collect (compăro) three thousand cavalry and six thousand infantry in the spring?

LESSON XXXIX.

ADVERBS.

1. Adverbs are formed from adjectives in -us and -er of the first and second declensions, by changing the genitive singular of the adjective into ē. Thus :—

ADJECTIVE.	GENITIVE.	ADVERB.
cārus, dear ,	cār-i,	cār-ē, dearly .
dignus, worthy ,	dign-i,	dign-ē, worthily .
pulcher, beautiful ,	pulchr-i,	pulchr-ē, beautifully .
miser, wretched ,	mīsēr-i,	mīsēr-ē, wretchedly .

2. Adverbs are formed from adjectives of the third declension by changing the -is of the genitive singular into -iter, or—if the adjective ends in -ns—into -ter. Thus :—

fortis, brave ,	fort-is,	fort-iter, bravely .
grāvis, heavy ,	grāv-is,	grāv-iter, heavily .
ācer, sharp ,	ācr-is,	ācr-iter, sharply .
fērox, fierce ,	fērōc-is,	fērōc-iter, fiercely .
sāpiens, wise ,	sāpiēnt-is,	sāpiēnt-er, wisely .
prūdens, prudent ,	prūdent-is,	prūdent-er, prudently .

3. Some adverbs have two forms, one in -e and one in -ter :
as,

ADJECTIVES.	ADVERBS.
dūrus, hard ,	dūr-ē, dūr-iter.
firmus, firm ,	firm-ē, firm-iter.
largus, bounteous ,	larg-ē, larg-iter.
hūmānus, courteous ,	hūmān-ē, hūmān-iter.
miser, wretched ,	mīsēr-ē, mīsēr-iter.

4. The neuter accusative singular of many adjectives is used as an adverb : as,

ADJECTIVE.	ADVERB.
multus, much ,	multum.
fācilis, easy ,	fācilē.
rēcens, fresh ,	rēcens.
dulcis, sweet ,	dulcē.

5. The neuter singular comparative of the adjective is used as the comparative of the adverb. The superlative of the adverb is formed from the superlative of the adjective, by changing the genitive singular ending to -ē. Thus :

POSITIVE.	COMPARATIVE.	SUPERLATIVE.
{ ADJ. cārus, dear ,	cārīor,	cārissimus.
{ ADV. cārē,	cārīus,	cārissimē.
{ ADJ. mīser, wretched ,	mīsērīor,	mīserrīmus.
{ ADV. mīsērē,	mīsērīus,	mīserrimē.
{ ADJ. ācer, sharp ,	ācrīor,	ācerrīmus.
{ ADV. ācrīter,	ācrīus,	ācerrimē.
{ ADJ. prūdens, prudent ,	prūdentīor,	prūdentissimus.
{ ADV. prūdentē,	prūdentīus,	prūdentissimē.

3. Some adverbs are formed irregularly from adjectives : as,

ADVERBS.

ADJECTIVE.	POSITIVE.	COMPAR.	SUPERL.
bōnus, good ,	bēne, well ,	mēlius,	optīmē.
mālus, bad ,	māle, badly ,	pēius,	pessīmē.
multus, much ,	multum, much ,	plūs,	plurīmē or plurimum.
parvus, small, little ,	pārum, little ,	mīnus,	mīnimē.
magnus, great ,	magnōpēre, greatly ,	māgis,	maxīmē.

7. Some adverbs, not derived from adjectives, are compared : as,

POSITIVE.	COMPARATIVE.	SUPERLATIVE.
dīū, long ,	dīūtius,	dīūtissimē.
saepē, often ,	saepius,	saepissimē.

EXERCISE.

Form adverbs from the following adjectives, and compare both adjectives and adverbs : Cēler, swift; altus, high; aeger, sick; similis, like; libens, willing; audax, bold.

Decline together : aquila celeris, dies clarior, eques fortissimus, vita melior.

LESSON XL.

SECOND CONJUGATION.

Indicative and Imperative Active.

1. The second conjugation includes all verbs that have the characteristic vowel -ē before the present infinitive ending -re: as, mōnĕo, I advise, pres. inf., mōnĕ-re, to advise.

hābĕo, I have,

pres. inf., hābĕ-re, to have.

2. The part that is left after dropping the ending -re, is called the present stem; and the present, imperfect and future indicative are formed from it, as in the first conjugation.

3. The perfect is sometimes formed, as in the first conjugation, by adding -vī to the present stem: as,

PRES. INDICATIVE.

PRES. INFINITIVE.

PRES. STEM.

PERFECT.

dēlēo, I destroy,

dēlē-re,

RULES FOR EXPRESSING PLACE.

1. Place to which is regularly expressed by the accusative with a preposition, unless before the names of towns and small islands : as, Ad Galliam, ad urbem contendit, he hastens to Gaul, to the city. With the names of towns and small islands, place to which is regularly expressed by the accusative without a preposition : as, *Romam, Corinthum, Karthaginem, Aeginam, contendit, he hastens to Rome, Corinth, Karthage, Aegina.*¹ So also domum (home), rus (to the country), are used without a preposition : as, Domum, rus ambulat, he walks home, to the country.

2. Place from which is regularly expressed by the ablative with a preposition, unless before the names of towns and small islands : as, Ab Gallia, ab urbe contendit, he hastens, from Gaul, from the city. But with the names of towns and small islands, from is regularly expressed by the ablative without a preposition : as, Romā, Corintho, Karthagine, Aeginā contendit, he hastens from Rome, Corinth, Karthage, Aegina. So also domo, is from home; rure, from the country.

3. To express place in which, a preposition is required, unless with the names of towns and small islands : as, In Gallia, in urbe, vivit, he lives in Gaul, in the city. But to express place in which with the names of towns or small islands, the so-called *locative*² case is used. This case has the form of (a) the genitive, if the noun is of the first or second declension singular ; (b) the ablative, if the noun is of the third declension singular or if the noun is plural : as, Romae, at Rome; Corinthi, at Corinth; Karthagine, at Karthage; Athēnis, at Athens (Athenae, pl.); Delphis, at Delphi (Delphi, pl.); Curibus, at Cures (Cures, pl.)

² A case which became obsolete in the later language.

So, too, domi, at home; humi, on the ground; belli, in war; ruri, in the country; militiae, on military service, abroad.

4. When urbs or oppidum is used in apposition to the name of a town, the preposition should be expressed : as, Ad urbem Rōmam contendit, he set out for the city of Rome; ex urbe Romā properavit, he hastened from the city of Rome; in urbe Roma vixit, he lived in the city of Rome. (Latin says : The city Rome for our city of Rome.)

a town of hither Gaul. 12. Within fifty days the pirates were defeated (supero) by Pompey. 13. The man was wounded in the battle by the darts of the enemy.

LESSON XLIII.

Formation of the Perfect Active and Supine Stems.

Note.—The principal parts of all verbs of the 3rd conjugation should, owing to their irregularity, be carefully committed to memory as they occur.

1. The perfect indicative active is regularly formed by adding -si, and the supine by adding -tum, to the verb stem: as,

PRES. IND.	PRES. INFIN.	PERF. INDIC.	SUPINE.
rēgo,	rēgēre,	rexī (=regsi),	rectum, (=regtum)

2. But some verbs have a reduplicated perfect: i. e., the first consonant of the word is prefixed with a vowel (generally -ē) added: as,

PRES. IND.	PRES. INFIN.	PERF. INDIC.	SUPINE.
cādo, I fall ,	cādēre,	cē-cīdī,	cāsum. (=cad-tum)

Note.—The stem vowel is often weakened as in this case (-ā passing to -ī).

3. Sometimes, too, the reduplication has been lost: as,

PRES. IND.	PRES. INFIN.	PERF. INDIC.	SUPINE.
fīdo, I cleave ,	fīdēre,	fīdī (=fī-fīdī)	fissum.

4. The stem vowel is sometimes lengthened for the perfect: as,

PRES. IND.	PRES. INFIN.	PERF. INDIC.	SUPINE.
āgo, I do ,	āgēre,	ēgī,	actum.
lēgo, I choose ,	lēgēre	lēgī,	lectum.

5. Sometimes, to form the perfect, an -i is added to the verb stem: as,

PRES. IND.	PRES. INFIN.	PERF. INDIC.	SUPINE.
rŭo, I rush,	rŭĕre,	rŭi,	rŭtum.
verto, I turn,	vertĕre,	verti,	versum.

6. Learn the principal parts of :

PRES. IND.	PRES. INFIN.	PERF. INDIC.	SUPINE.
mitto, send,	mittĕre,	misi,	missum.
dico, tell,	dicĕre,	dixi,	dictum.
claudio, shut,	claudĕre,	clausi,	clausum.
pello, drive,	pellĕre,	pĕpŭli,	pulsum.
carpo, pluck,	carpĕre,	carpsi,	carptum.
pōno, place,	ponĕre,	pōsui,	pōsitum.
ālo, rear,	ālĕre,	ālui,	altum.
dūco, lead,	dŭcĕre,	duxi,	ductum.
scando, climb,	scandĕre,	scandi,	scansum.
trāho, draw,	trāhĕre,	traxi,	tractum.
scribo, write,	scribĕre,	scripsi,	scriptum.
vīvo, live,	vivĕre,	vixi,	victum.

VERBS WITH TWO ACCUSATIVES.

3. Verbs of asking, teaching and concealing take two accusatives in the active, one of the person and another of the thing : as, Pater filium musicam docuit, the father taught his son music.

In the passive, the accusative of the person becomes the subject, and the accusative of the thing is retained : as, Filius musicam a patre doctus est, the son was taught music by his father.

Note.—Pëto, I ask, and postũlo, I demand, take the accusative of the thing and the ablative of the person with a (or ab), from : as, Pacem ab Romanis petiverunt, they asked the Romans for peace (=they asked peace from the Romans); librum ab amico postũlavit, he demanded a book from his friend. Quaero, to ask, seek, takes the accusative of the thing and the ablative of the person with a (or ab), e (or ex), or de : as, Causam e viro quaesivit, he asked a reason from the man (or, he asked the man for a reason).

EXERCISE.

Do not punish, O master, the best boy.

LESSON XLVII.

COGNATE ACCUSATIVE. ACCUSATIVE WITH PREPOSITIONS IN COMPOSITION.

1. Verbs are often followed by an accusative of kindred origin or meaning : as, Turpissimam vitam vivit, he lives a very base life; mirum somnium somniavit, he dreamt a wonderful dream;

proelium pugnāt, he fights a battle. This is called the cognate accusative.

2. Many intransitive verbs, especially those expressing motion and compounded with the preposition ad (to), circum (around), per (through), praeter (past), trans (across), or super (above), take an accusative after them : as, Cato rostra advolat, Cato flies to the hustings; equites Romani senatum circumstant, Roman knights surround the senate; murmur contionem pervāsit, a murmur went through the assembly. (Here the accusative depends on the preposition. The sentences might have been expressed thus : Ad rostra Cato volat; equites Romani circum senatum stant; murmur per contionem vāsīt).

3. The transitive verbs, transduco (or traduco), I lead across, and transporto, I bear across, may take two accusatives in the active, one depending on the verb and the other on the preposition : as, Hannibal copias Ibērum traduxit, Hannibal led the forces across the Ebro; Caesar milites navibus flumen transportat, Caesar conveys his soldiers across the river in ships.

EXERCISE.

Decline together : media aetas, album lac, dura servitūs, summum consilium, omnes boni cives.

Translate into English :—

1. Caesar omnes copias Rhenum mediā aestate traduxerat. 2. Tres iam partes copiarum Helvetii flumen traduxerunt. 3. Plerique frumenta non serunt ; pellibus vestiti sunt. 4. Naves Romanae oram Siciliae praetervectae sunt. 5. Catilina cum sociis sceleratis senatum circumstat. 6. Cato primus sententiam in senatu rogatur. 7. Hannibal nonaginta millia hominum flumen Iberum transducit. 8. Num Galli multos annos durissimam servitutem servient ? 9. Summum senatūs consilium ab Romanis appellatum est. 10. Mercator hieme mare navigabit. 11. Xerxes Hellespontum exercitum traduxit. 12. Ab omnibus bonis civibus auditus eram.

Translate into Latin :—

1. The Romans did not sail the sea in the middle of winter. 2. Did not the general with all his forces fly to the city? 3. The citizens stand round the temple of Jupiter. 4. The Germans led their forces across the Rhine. 5. Will he be contented with his lot? 6. Was not a large army led across the mountains into Gaul? 7. The enemy fought a fierce battle in the middle of the plain. 8. The man lived at Athens for many years, but he was brought up at Rome. 9. In early spring Hannibal will lead a large army across the Alps. 10. He was heard by the noblest men of our state. 11. The Romans were taught the art of war by necessity. 12. Did not Marius make a very long journey in the middle of summer?

LESSON XLVIII.

Verbs in -io.

1. A few verbs of the third conjugation form the present indicative in -io (active), -ior (passive), like verbs of the fourth conjugation except that -i is short (-ī) throughout the present : as,

PRES. INDIC.	PRES. INFIN.	PERF. INDIC.	SUPINE

fācio,	facēre,	fēcī,	factum, do. iācio,	iācēre,	iēcī,	iactum, throw.
rāpio,	rāpēre,	rapūi,	raptum, seize.

2. Many verbs that are intransitive in English are transitive in Latin, especially verbs of emotion, taste or smell: as, Sequāni Ariovisti crudelitatem horrēbant, the Sequani shuddered at the cruelty of Ariovistus; haec oratio antiquitatem olet, this speech smacks of antiquity; piscis mare sapit, the fish tastes of the sea.

3. An adjective or a verb may take an accusative to define its meaning: as, Puer caput vulneratur, the boy is wounded in the head; imperator dextram manum ictus est, the general was struck on the right hand. Here caput and manum define the meaning of the verbs vulneratur and ictus est. Such accusatives are called accusatives of specification or closer definition.

EXERCISE.

Decline together: locus superior, dies clarus, duo consules, magnae copiae; Cicerō, orator clarissimus.

Was not the brave soldier wounded severely in the head by the dart of the enemy? 14. Were you throwing a spear?

LESSON XLIX.

THE PARTICIPLE.

1. The Latin participle has partly the nature of a verb, and partly that of an adjective. Hence the name (from pars and capio).

Like a verb, it has voice, tense, and number, and governs the same case as the verb from which it is derived ; like the adjective, it has declension and gender, and agrees with nouns.

2. Transitive verbs have, in the active, a present and a future participle ; and in the passive, a perfect and a future participle.

3. The present participle active always ends in the nominative in -ns, and is declined like oriens (p. 53) ; the future participle active ends in -tūrus, and is declined like bonus (p. 20).

ACTIVE VOICE.

PRESENT.

FUTURE.

- | | |
|---|--|
| 1. Conj., āma-ns , loving . | āmā-tūrus , about to love . |
| 2. “ mōne-ns , advising . | mōnī-tūrus , about to advise . |
| 3. “ rēge-ns , ruling . | rec-tūrus , about to rule . |
| 4. “ audīe-ns , hearing . | audī-tūrus , about to hear . |

4. The present participle expresses an act that takes place simultaneously with that of the main verb : as, Caesar, ex urbe decēdens, legionem conscribit, Caesar, while leaving the city, enrolls a legion. (Here decēdens is nom. sing. masc., agreeing with Caesar.)

5. The present participle is often used with the case absolute which in Latin is the ablative, and not, as in English, the nominative : as, Coniuratio facta est, Tarquinio regnante, the conspiracy was formed in the reign of Tarquin (i.e., Tarquin reigning).

Note.—The future participle active often expresses intention : as, Urbem capturi sumus, we are about to take the city (= we intend).

LESSON L.

PARTICIPLES PASSIVE.

Substitutes for Perf. Part. Act.

1. There are two participles in Latin in the passive voice, the perfect ending in -tus, and the future in -ndus. Both are declined like bonus.

PERFECT PARTICIPLE PASSIVE.

Present stem and -tus . (In 3rd conj., verb stem + tus .)	1. Conj.,	āmā-tus , having been loved .
	2. “	mōnī-tus , having been advised (-ē of stem changed to -ī).
	3. “	rec-tus , having been ruled (= reg-tus).
	4. “	audī-tus , having been heard .

FUTURE PARTICIPLE PASSIVE.

Present stem and -ndus.	{	1. Conj., ama-ndus , about to be loved.
		2. “ mone-ndus , about to be advised.
		3. “ rege-ndus , about to be ruled.
		4. “ audie-ndus , about to be heard (ī changed to -īe in stem).

2. The perfect participle passive expresses an act completed before that of the verb to which it is joined : as, Homo, ab amico monitus, coniurationem fecit, the man, advised by his friend, formed a conspiracy. (Here the “advising” must precede the “forming of the conspiracy.”)

This participle is often used with an ablative absolute : as, Opĕre perfecto, suos reduxit, the work finished, he led back his men. But the ablative absolute should not be translated literally. Thus : opere perfecto is on (or after) finishing the work, or when he had finished the work.

3. Latin has no perfect participle active. Its place is supplied by (1) the ablative absolute with the perfect participle passive : as, Urbe captā, copias reduxit, having taken the city, he led back his forces (i.e., the city having been taken) ; (2) postquam with the perf. indic. : as, Postquam urbem cēpit, copias reduxit *after he took the city, he led back his forces*¹.

Note.—Two nouns, or an adjective and a noun, in the ablative absolute are used (as sum, I am, has no present participle) without a copula : as, Tullo rege, when Tullus was king ; Caesāre consŭle, in the consulship of Caesar ; caelo serĕno navigāmus, we sail when the sky is clear (= the sky being clear).

EXERCISE.

Translate into English :—

1. Dāto signo, nostri milites impĕtum in hostes fĕcĕrunt. 2. Omnibus captivis tradītis, in fines hostium postero die pervĕnit.

¹ Quum, when, with the past subjunctive—a very common substitute for the perf. part. act.—will be mentioned later on. Thus : Having taken the city, he led back his forces = Quum urbem cēpisset, copias reduxit.

3. Re frumentariā¹ comparatā, castra movet et diebus circiter quindecim ad fines Belgarum pervēnit. 4. Solis occasu suas copias, multis acceptis vulneribus, in castra reduxit. 5. Castris munitis, duas ibi legiones reliquit. 6. Responsis ad Caesarem portatis, iterum legatos cum mandatis mittit. 7. Oratione habitā, princeps concilium dimittit. 8. Sic omnibus hostium copiis fuis, imperator oppidum in deditionem accepit. 9. Milites, agris hostium vastatis, in fines Trēvīrorum perveniunt. 10. Interim nostri milites impetum amplius² horas quattuor, paucis vulneribus acceptis, sustinuērunt. 11. Bellum, Caesāre imperatore, contra Gallos decem annos gerebātur. 12. Cives cum hostibus urbem oppugnantibus acriter dimicabunt.

After all Gaul had been subdued (abl. abs.), Caesar hastened to Rome at the beginning of winter. 4. Having been elected consul, he left the city. 5. The soldiers fled into the thick woods, because their leader was killed (abl. abs.). 6. The soldiers of the enemy broke through our line after hurling their spears. 7. I saw the boy standing near the temple of Jupiter. 8. After the speech was delivered, the consul left the city. 9. Caesar, having lost his father, was taught all the arts of the Romans by his mother. 10. In the consulship of Marius, the Romans defeated Jugurtha, king of Numidia. 11. The boy was advised by his father, a most excellent man. 12. Will he not be called king by the Senate? 13. The boy was wounded in the head by a dart of the enemy.

¹Res frumentaria, supply of corn; ablative absolute. ²More than; it has no effect on the syntax.

LESSON LI.

PERSONAL AND REFLEXIVE PRONOUNS.

1. The pronoun of the first person, ĕgo, I, is inflected as follows :—

Ego, I.

	SINGULAR.	PLURAL.
NOM.	ĕgo , I .	nōs , we .
GEN.	mĕi , of me .	nōstrum or nōstri , of us .
DAT.	mīhi , to or for me .	nōbis , to or for us .
ACC.	mĕ , me .	nōs , us .
VOC.	Wanting.	Wanting.
ABL.	mĕ , with, from, or by me .	nōbis , with, from, or by us .

2. The pronoun of the second person, tū, thou, is inflected as follows :—

Tū, thou, you (sing.)

	SINGULAR.	PLURAL.
NOM.	tū , thou , you .	vōs , you or ye .
GEN.	tuī , of thee or you .	vestrum or vestri , of you .
DAT.	tīhi , to or for thee or you .	vōbis , to or for you .
ACC.	tĕ , thee, you .	vōs , you .
VOC.	tū , thou .	vōs , you .
ABL.	tĕ , with, from, by thee or you .	vōbis , with, by or from you .

Note.—The genitives nostrum and vestrum are always used partitively (p. 69, 10) : as, Unus nostrum, one of us. Otherwise nostri and vestri are used : as, Mēmor nostri, mindful of us.

3. The pronouns of the first and second persons are rarely expressed, except for emphasis or contrast : as, Ego laudo sed tu vitupēras, I praise, but you blame (or, if the emphasis is to be brought out distinctly, It is I that praise, but you that blame.)

4. The personal pronouns of the third person are wanting, but are supplied by the demonstratives hic, ille, is, this, that (p. 117).

5. A reflexive pronoun is one that refers to the subject of a verb : as, Te laudas, you praise yourself. (Here te is a reflexive, referring to the subject of laudas.) The first and second personal pronouns are used as reflexives of the first and second persons : as, Ego me laudo, I praise myself; nos nos laudāmus, we praise ourselves; tu te laudas, you praise yourself; vos vos laudatis, you praise yourselves.

6. The reflexive pronoun of the third person is as follows :—

Sui, of himself.

NOM. Wanting.

GEN. sui, of himself, (herself, itself, themselves).

DAT. sibi, to himself, (herself, itself, themselves).

ACC. sē, himself, (herself, itself, themselves).

VOC. ———

ABL. sē, with, from, by himself (herself, itself, themselves).

Note.—Sese is often used for se in the accusative.

7. The forms of sui refer to the subject of the verb : as, Caesar se laudat, Caesar praises himself; milites se laudant, the soldiers praise themselves.

8. The preposition cum, with, when used with the ablative of a personal or reflexive pronoun, is written as a suffix : as, Mecum, tecum, secum, nobiscum, vobiscum, with me, you, etc.

VERBS GOVERNING A DATIVE

9. The dative is used in Latin with many verbs that in English govern the accusative. This is usual with verbs meaning to please, favor, trust, assist and their contraries ; also, believe, persuade, command, obey, serve, resist, threaten, spare, pardon, be angry : as, Res omnibus hominibus placuit, the thing pleased all men; Fortūna fortibus favet, Fortune favors the brave; legibus pārui consul, as consul he obeyed the laws.

Note.—The following, however, govern the accusative :—

Iuvo, adiuvo, I aid; delecto, I delight; laedo, offendo, I harm; iubeo, I order; vēto, prohibeo, I forbid; rego, gubernō, I rule, I direct : as, Libris me delecto, I delight myself with books; multa oculos laedunt, many things hurt the eyes.

Fido and confido, I trust, take the dative of the person and the ablative of the thing : as, Non tibi, sed exercitu meo confido, not you, but my army I trust.

10. Verbs compounded with bene, male, satis govern the dative : as, Optimo viro maledixit, he reviled a most excellent man; mihi nunquam satisfecit, he never satisfied me.

11. Latin puts a pronoun of the first person before one of the second, and one of the second before one of the third. A verb, therefore, referring to several subjects will be plural and agree with the first person rather than with the second, and with the second rather than with the third : as, Ego et tu valēmus, you and I are well (note the order of the Latin); tu et Tullia valētis, Tullia and you are well.

EXERCISE.

Decline together : exercitus meus, magnum praemium, omnis vicus, hostis noster, duae legiones.

Translate into English :—

1. Interdum fortuna nobis favet, saepe nostris consiliis obstat. 2. Urbe expugnata, milites hostium ne nobis quidem¹ parcent. 3. Omnes civitates nobis obsides dederunt. 4. Pater meus tibi abhinc multos annos legionem donavit. 5. Nonne vestri amici tecum Romae manebunt? 6. Caesar paucos dies in hostium finibus mansit; omnibusque vicis incensis, se in castra sua recepit. 7. Nonne puer patris sui mandato parebit? 8. Num homo mihi maledixit? 9. Caesar multos annos legionibus Romanis in Gallia imperavit. 10. Nos omnes Ciceronis orationes laudavimus. 11. Tibi omnibusque malis hominibus diffido. 12. Oppido expugnato, imperator suas legiones in castra reduxit. 13. Ego et pater meus tuis consiliis parui.

Translate into Latin :—

1. Marcus and I stayed at Rome for three years. 2. We shall all remain in the city for one year. 3. My friend easily persuaded me. 4. The scout announced to us the arrival of Caesar. 5. After the town was taken² by our men, we seized all the baggage of the enemy. 6. He sent the scout with us into Gaul. 7. He envied his brother, and did not obey the commands of the Roman people. 8. Shall we resist the legions of the Romans? 9. We resisted the forces of the enemy for three months. 10. Wisdom will not always help you. 11. Caesar led his forces from the camp. 12. You and I will stay in the country in summer. 13. Will not the good citizen obey the laws of his country?

LESSON LII.

INFINITIVE MOOD.

1. Sum, I am, has three infinitive forms, viz., the present infin., esse, to be; the perfect infin., fūi-sse, to have been; and the future infin., fūtūrus esse, to be about to be (fū-tūrus=fut. part.).

2. Transitive verbs usually have three infinitive forms in the active in Latin and three in the passive : viz., the present, perfect, and future infinitive.

ACTIVE INFINITIVES.

In the active voice the infinitive is thus formed :—

Perf. infin. = perf. stem + -sse.	$\left\{ \begin{array}{l} 1. \text{ āmāvi-sse, to have loved.} \\ 2. \text{ mōnui-sse, to have advised.} \\ 3. \text{ rexi-sse, to have ruled.} \\ 4. \text{ audivī-sse, to have heard.} \end{array} \right.$
Future infin. = future part. act. + esse, to be.	$\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{āmātūrus esse, to be about to love.} \\ \text{mōnītūrus esse, to be about to advise.} \\ \text{rectūrus esse, to be about to rule.} \\ \text{auditūrus esse, to be about to hear.} \end{array} \right.$

3. In the passive voice the infinitives are thus formed :—

PASSIVE INFINITIVES.

Present infinitive = present stem + ri (except in third conj. which adds -i to verb stem).	$\left\{ \begin{array}{l} 1. \text{ āmā-ri, to be loved.} \\ 2. \text{ mōnē-ri, to be advised.} \\ 3. \text{ rēg-i, to be ruled.} \\ 4. \text{ audī-ri, to be heard.} \end{array} \right.$

Perf. infin. = perf. part.
pass. + esse, to be.

1. āmātus esse, to have been loved.
2. mōnītus esse, to have been advised.
3. rectus esse, to have been ruled.
4. audītus esse, to have been heard.

Future infin. = supine + iri (pres. infin. passive of eo, I go).

1. āmātum iri, to be about to be loved.
2. mōnītum iri, to be about to be advised.
3. rectum iri, to be about to be ruled.
4. audītum iri, to be about to be heard.

4. A verb in the infinitive mood is often used as a noun in the neuter singular, and may be the subject or object of another verb : as, Laudari ab aliis gratum est, to be praised by others is a pleasant thing. (Here laudari is used as an indeclinable neuter noun, subject of est; and gratum agrees with it)

Note.—In this way abstract nouns in English are often rendered into Latin : as, Fallere est semper turpe, deceit (i.e., to deceive) is always base; parentes amare est laudabile, filial affection is praiseworthy.

5. Many verbs take an infinitive to complete their meaning : as, Bellum gerere parat, he is preparing to carry on war; omnes discedere iubet, he orders all to depart.

EXERCISE.

Translate into English :—

1. Caesar milites suos castra vallo fossaque munire iussit. 2. Imperator cum suis militibus in provinciam pervenire contendit. 3. Iter per provinciam facere parat. 4. Constituērunt iumentorum quam maximum numerum comparare. 5. Caesar omnes equites ad castra primā luce venire iubēbit. 6. Docere est discere. 7. Nos contra Gallos bellum gerere non dubitamus. 8. Te domum venire veto. 9. Humanum est errare. 10. Nonne tu rus cum tuo fratre venire constituisti? 11. Num vera discere cupivistis? 12. Bellum contra Romanos gerere est semper periculosum. 13. Cantūs avium audire nos saepe delectat.

Translate into Latin :—

1. Order the soldier to come home. 2. The Romans are preparing to carry on war against the Gauls. 3. To hesitate in battle is to be defeated. 4. It is better to give than to receive. 5. We desire to reach the top of the hill before daybreak. 6. Writing (inf.) letters to friends is a pleasant thing. 7. The senate forbade the soldiers to wage war beyond the province. 8. Why do you hesitate to read the book? 9. Teach me to seek wisdom. 10. It is often safer to run away than to fight. 11. It is pleasant to walk in the fields in spring. 12. We did not order the soldiers to obey the general.

LESSON LIII.

ACCUSATIVE WITH INFINITIVE.

1. The infinitive is often used with an accusative for a subject where English has a noun-clause introduced by that. This is the regular construction after verbs of knowing, thinking, saying, and the like, and with such expressions as it is manifest, it is certain, it is true: as, Sentimus ignem calere, we know that fire is hot (literally = we know fire to be hot); hostes adesse dicit, he says that the enemy are near (literally = he says the enemy to be near); fratrem tuum esse fortem intellego, I understand that your brother is brave; certum est liberos a parentibus amari, it is certain that children are loved by their parents; manifestum est albam esse nivem, it is evident that snow is white. This construction is called the accusative with infinitive, and is one of the commonest in Latin.

2. The tense of the infinitive after a verb of saying or thinking in past time, is often a difficulty. Thus: He said that the boy was at Rome is, Puerum Romae fuisse dixit, if the exact words of the speaker were, the boy was at Rome. But if the speaker's words were, the boy is at Rome, then, he said that the boy was at Rome is, Puerum Romae esse dixit. The tense used by the speaker is the tense required for the infinitive.

3. The participles used in the future inf. act. and the perfect inf. pass. must agree in gender, number and case with the noun to which they refer: as, Dixit se ab omnibus amatum esse, he said that he had been loved by all; audio copias a Caesare eductas esse, I hear that the forces have been led out by Caesar.

EXERCISE.

The man thought that the hills were high. 13. The king said that his soldiers were brave. 14. He thought that you were coming.

LESSON LIV.

INFINITIVE WITH VERBS OF HOPING.

1. Verbs signifying to hope, promise, undertake or swear, take in Latin the future infinitive and the accusative of the pronoun : as, Sperat se Romam venturum esse, he hopes to come to Rome (literally = he hopes that he will come to Rome); promitto me libros ad te missurum esse, I promise to send books to you; suscipis te bella gesturum esse, you undertake to carry on wars.

Caesar will arrive on the fifth day. 12. He says that Caesar will arrive on the fifth day. 13. He said that the temple would be built in a few days.

LESSON LV.

ACCUSATIVE WITH INFINITIVE.—(Continued).

The following are additional examples of the Accusative with Infinitive :—Dicit virum scribere, he says that the man is writing (=the man to be writing); dicit virum scripsisse, he says that the man was writing, wrote, or has written; dicit virum scripturum esse, he says that the man will write. But : Dixit virum scribere, he said that the man was writing (exact words of speaker : Vir scribit) ; dixit virum scripsisse, he said that the man was writing, wrote, or had written, (according as the exact words of the speaker were : Vir scribebat, vir scripsit, or vir scripserat) ; dixit virum scripturum esse, he said that the man would write (exact words of speaker : Vir scribet, the man will write).

After Cicero was expelled from Rome (part.), he sailed to Greece. 12. To lie is base ; to speak the truth is always praiseworthy.

LESSON LVI.

DEPONENT VERBS.

1. Many verbs are passive in form, but active in meaning. These are called deponent verbs (verba deponentia), because they lay aside (depōnere) their active form and their passive meaning : as, Mīror, I admire.

2. Deponents occur in all four conjugations. In the first, second and fourth conjugations they have the characteristic vowel of their conjugation before the pres. infinitive pass. ending -ri. In the third conjugation this infinitive is formed by adding -i to the verb stem : as,

1st Conj.,	mīrā-rī, to admire,	--conjugated like	ama-ri.
2nd "	vērē-ri, to fear,	" "	mone-ri.
3rd "	sēqu-i, to follow,	" "	reg-i.
4th "	blandī-rī, to flatter,	" "	audiri.

They hoped to gain possession of the town by treachery. 13. When his forces were drawn up (abl. abs.), he attacked the enemy vigorously.

LESSON LVIII.

DEMONSTRATIVE PRONOUNS.

1. Besides is, ēa, id (this, that) which will be given in Lesson LX., there are in Latin three demonstrative pronouns : Hic, this near me; iste, that near you; ille, that near him (her or it.) They are declined as follows :—

Hic, this, i.e., this one near me (the speaker.)

	SINGULAR.			PLURAL.
	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.

ACC.	illum	illam	illud	illōs	illās	illā
ABL.	illō	illā	illō	illīs	illīs	illīs

2. Hic is the demonstrative of the 1st person. It refers to the person or thing near me (the speaker): as, Hic liber, this book. So too, Haec patria, this land of ours; haec vita, this present life; his sex diebus, within the last six days.

3. Iste is the demonstrative of the 2nd person. It refers to the person addressed: as, Iste liber, that book near you; ista opinio, that opinion you hold; iste amicus, that friend of yours. It often has the idea of contempt.

4. Ille, that yonder, is the demonstrative of the 3rd person. It refers to a person or thing other than those present. It may express therefore:—

(a) The remote in time, as opposed to the present (which is expressed by hic): as, Illa antiquitas, that far-off past; illis diebus, in those bygone days.

(b) That well known, the celebrated: as, Illa Medēa, the far-famed Medēa; ille Caesar, the renowned Caesar

(c) An emphatic he, she, or it: as, Illos neglēgis, those (whom all men know) you disregard.

5. Hic and ille are often contrasted. They may be used :—

(a) Of two persons already mentioned. In this case hic relates to the nearer, the latter; ille, to the more remote, the former: as, Romulum Numa excēpit; hic pace, ille bello melior fuit, Numa succeeded Romulus; the latter excelled in peace, the former in war.

(b) For the one and the other: as, Neque hoc neque illud, neither the one nor the other; et hic et ille, both the one and the other (et.... et=both.... and).

(c) For some and others: as, Hi pacem, illi bellum cupiunt, some wish peace, others war.

EXERCISE.

Decline together: hic homo, illa mulier, iste vir, illud tempus, haec vita.

Translate into Latin :—

1. Will not that man write me a letter about those affairs of yours? 2. This man is the best of all the citizens. 3. Are those your arms? 4. They said that that book of yours was the best of all. 5. That well-known Cicero was very eloquent. 6. Did he not say that he intended to set out for Gaul within six days? 7. Those soldiers devastated the lands of the enemy. 8. On account of this defeat we were forced to give up our arms. 9. Were those books written by you? 10. Caesar told his soldiers that he would devastate the land. 11. Neither the one nor the other was at Athens in this year. 12. I have not seen this man within the last four days. 13. Will not that woman be praised by all? 14. We all think that Caesar was greater than Pompey.

LESSON LIX.

DEMONSTRATIVE PRONOUNS.—(Continued.)

DATIVE WITH VERBS COMPOUNDED WITH PREPOSITIONS.

1. Transitive verbs compounded with the prepositions ad, ante, con (for cum), in, inter, ob, (on, against), post, prae (before), sub (under), or sūper (above), often govern an accusative of the direct and a dative of the indirect object : as, Populus Romanus bellum Gallis intūlit, the Roman people made war on the Gauls.

Note.—In the passive the direct object of the active becomes the subject, while the indirect object is still retained : as, Bellum Gallis a populo Romano illātum est, war was made on the Gauls by the Roman people.

2. Intransitive verbs compounded with the above-mentioned prepositions, often govern the dative : as, Caesar exercitui praefuit, Caesar commanded the army; consiliis consulis obstat, he opposes the plans of the consul.

DATIVE OF POSSESSION.

3. The dative is used with the verb sum, I am, to express possession : as, Mihi est liber, I have a book (literally, there is a book to me.)

4. The compounds of sum (except possum, I can) govern the dative : as, Tibi adsum, I aid you.

EXERCISE.

Decline together : hic bonus homo, haec pulchra dies, illa legio ista soror, istud tempus, illud mare, iste vir.

Translate into English :—

1. Ego et tuus amicus tibi in omnibus periculis aderimus.
2. Caesar Labienum hibernis praefecit. 3. Hic locus ab horto circiter passus sexcentos aberat. 4. Hi, nostros disiectos adorti, proelium renovaverunt. 5. Illi divinis rebus intersunt, sacrificia procurant, religiones interpretantur. 6. His omnibus Druidibus praeest unus qui summam habet auctoritatem. 7. Nostro adventu permoti, Britanni hunc toti bello imperioque praefecerant. 8. His rebus cognitis a captivis perfugisque, Caesar, praemisso equitatu, confestim legiones subsequi iussit. 9. Ab his cognoscit non longe oppidum Cassivelauni abesse, silvis paludibusque munitum. 10. Legiones Latinae longā societate militiam Romanam edoctae sunt. 11. Rebus male gestis, fortuna imperatori defuit. 12. Legati sese Caesari dedituros esse atque imperata facturos polliciti sunt. 13. Vere primo Caesari in Gallia ulteriore duae legiones erant. 14. Num verum est te primo vere Romae fuisse?

Translate into Latin :—

1. Was not the general present at the battle on that day?
 2. Some lack courage; others opportunity. 3. Fortune often opposes the designs of these men. 4. The Romans for many years carried on war against the Karthaginians. 5. Labienus commands the soldiers of this legion. 6. The women and children begged the Romans for peace. 7. In the consulship of Caesar, war was declared against the Gauls. 8. No man will prefer disgrace to honor. 9. In ancient times the Karthaginians had many colonies, large fleets, and great wealth. 10. These legions were drawn up in three lines in front of the camp. 11. They had already led their forces through the territory of the Sequāni. 12. The celebrated (p. 118, 4) Demosthenes is considered the greatest orator among the Greeks. 13. After subduing Greece, the celebrated Alexander defeated large forces of the Persians at the river Granicus.

ACC.	ipsum	ipsam	ipsum	ipsōs	ipsās	ipsā
ABL.	ipsō	ipsā	ipsō	ipsis	ipsis	ipsis

4. Is is a pronoun of reference, simply referring to some person or thing mentioned before: as, Apud Helvetios longe nobilissimus et ditissimus fuit Orgētōrix; is coniurationem nobilitatis fecit, among the Helvetians, Orgetorix was by far the noblest and most wealthy; he formed a conspiracy among the nobility. (Here is refers to Orgetorix.) It is often used as the personal pronoun of the 3rd person.

5. Idem, same, is often used to express our also, at the same time, at once: as, Cicero orator erat idemque philosophus, Cicero was an orator and, at the same time, a philosopher.

6. Ipse, self, may be added for emphasis to a noun, pronoun or numeral: as, Caesar ipse imperavit, Caesar himself commanded; tu ipse hoc fecisti, you yourself did this; se ipsum interfecit, he killed himself; ipse navem aedificavit, he built the ship by himself; triginta ipsi dies, exactly thirty days; adventu ipso hostes terruit, by his mere (very) arrival he frightened the enemy; ipse hoc vidi, I saw this with my own eyes.

Ipse is also added in the genitive singular or plural to a possessive pronoun to express own: as, Mea ipsius culpa, my own fault; sua ipsius domus, his own house; vestra ipsorum amicitia, your own friendship. (This gen. is in apposition with the gen. implied in the possessive.)

EXERCISE.

Decline together. ipsa oratio, is obses, idem vir, ipse imperator, eadem mulier, ipsum tempus, ea domus, ipse deus, ea filia.

Translate into English:—

1. Nos ipsi illum virum pugnantes vidimus. 2. Decem ipsis diebus oppidum expugnavit. 3. Hic vir deos immortales esse negat. 4. Pollicetur se iis arma daturum esse. 5. Tu ipse quattuor dies Karthagine mansisti. 6. Homo ipse dixit se paucis diebus venturum esse. 7. Eadem dona ad imperatorem missa sunt. 8. Homo servum suum vocavit et opus eius (his) laudavit. 9. Cicero fuit inter Romanos orator eloquentissimus; idem maximus philosophus fuit. 10. Dixerunt eundem virum multa bella in Italia gessisse. 11. Ipse vidi puerum ex urbe Roma excedentem. 12. Eodem die castra movit et copias ad flumen duxit. 13. Ipsa hac die Caesar Romae erat. 14. Caesar illud oppidum magno cum exercitu tribus diebus expugnavit.

Translate into Latin :—

1. On that very night the army took the town by storm. 2. Caesar himself said that he would lead the army. 3. Did you not see the same soldiers at Rome? 4. Were the soldiers of this legion on that day at Athens? 5. Those very towns will be taken by him. 6. By his mere order he liberated the man. 7. My own house was burned by the soldiers on that day. 8. For this reason he led his army out of the camp. 9. Those same men were always very friendly to the Romans. 10. He said that they had sent one legion against the Gauls. 11. That legion remained for three months in camp. 12. It is plain that they will not start for Rome within ten days. 13. He sent the same man from Athens to Italy.

LESSON LXI.

GENITIVE WITH SUM, I AM.

The genitive is used with the verb sum, I am, to express our belongs to: as, Haec domus est mei patris, this house belongs to my father. This genitive may be used to express our task, duty, custom, characteristic, mark, token: as, Iudicis est sequi verum, it is the duty of a judge to follow the truth (literally: to follow the truth is of, i.e., belongs to a judge); hoc est praeceptōris, this is the business of an instructor; sapientis est res adversas aequo animo ferre, it is the characteristic of a wise man to bear adversity with resignation (literally: with an even mind).

Note.—With possessive pronouns, this genitive is not used, but the neuter of the corresponding possessive adjective: as, Tuum (not tui est) vidēre, it is your duty to see.

EXERCISE.

Decline together: Is audax vir, eadem virgo, hoc ipsum tempus, illa bona mulier, ista domus, ea oratio antiqua.

Translate into English :—

1. Est Caesāris, obsidibus acceptis armisque omnibus ex oppido traditis, in deditionem hostes accipere. 2. Semper est huius militis imperatorī parere. 3. His rebus cognitis, Caesar Gallorum animos verbis confirmavit pollicitusque est se eam rem esse facturum. 4. Eodem die castra promovit et contra hostes contendit. 5. Castra hostium esse maxima dixit. 6. Manifestum est iudicis esse verum sequi. 7. Ex eo die dies continuos quinque Caesar pro castris suas copias produxit. 8. Haec eodem tempore Caesari nuntiata sunt. 9. Hoc responso dato, de provincia decessit. 10. Consulis est senatum in curiam vocare. 11. Meum est imperatori parēre. 12. Ipse horā diei quartā cum primis navibus Britanniam attigit atque ibi in omnibus collibus copias armatas conspexit. 13. Abhinc triginta ipsis annis, ille Corinthi mortuus est.

Translate into Latin :—

1. This man told Caesar that the Belgae had crossed the river on the same day. 2. It is the duty of a commander to fight bravely for his native land. 3. The commander himself within the last ten days has taken two cities. 4. At the same time ambassadors were sent by the general from the camp. 5. He placed a lieutenant over the legion, but he himself set out for Gaul. 6. Caesar said that he had sent forward all the cavalry at the third watch. 7. It is the characteristic of a soldier to obey his general in all things. 8. It is the duty of a wise man to obey the laws. 9. It is your duty to favor the good. 10. We saw that the attack of the enemy was checked by his mere arrival. 11. On the same day, Caesar collected the same forces as before and marched against the enemy. 12. He said that it was the part of the people to put the best man at the head of the army (use praeicio, appoint.)

LESSON LXII.

RELATIVE PRONOUNS.

1. The relative pronoun refers to some noun or pronoun preceding called the antecedent. The relative in Latin is qui (M.), quae (F.), and quod (N.)

Qui, who.

	SINGULAR.			PLURAL.
	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
NOM.	qui	quae	quod	quī	quae	quae
GEN.	cūius	cūius	cūius	quōrum	quārum	quōrum
DAT.	cui	cui	cui	quībus	quībus	quībus
ACC.	quem	quam	quod	quōs	quās	quae
ABL.	quō	quā	quō	quībus	quībus	quībus

2. Quisquis and quicumque, whoever, are called indefinite relatives, the suffix -cumque (or -cunque) added to the simple relative qui, forming an indefinite relative, just as -ever added to who, which, does in English. Quicumque is inflected like qui; quisquis is usually found only in the forms quisquis, quidquid or quicquid, quodquo.

AGREEMENT OF RELATIVE AND ANTECEDENT.

3. The relative pronoun agrees with its antecedent in gender, number and person; but its case is determined by the verb of its own clause: as, Puer, qui magistrum amat, bonus est, the boy who loves his master is good; puer, quem magister amat, bonus est, the boy whom the master loves is good; ego, qui te laudavi, rex sum, I, who praised you, am king; ego, quem tu laudavisti, rex sum, I, whom you praised, am king.

Note 1.—The relative in the objective case, so often omitted in English, is never omitted in Latin: as, Hic est liber quem tu mihi dedisti, this is the book you gave me.

Note 2.—Cum, with, is appended to the relative, as to the personal pronouns: as, Quicum (=quocum), quācum, quibuscum (not cum quo, &c.)

EXERCISE.

Decline together: Quae urbs, hoc flumen, prima lux, duae legiones, filia mea, ille liber, illud oppidum, primum ver.

I will give you the book you sent me yesterday. 13. The boy you praised is the best of all.

LESSON LXIII.

CORRELATIVES.

1. Many demonstrative pronouns, adjectives and adverbs in a principal clause have corresponding relative pronouns, adjectives or adverbs in a subordinate clause. These are called correlatives.

2. The following correlatives should be learned : Īdem...qui, the same as; talis...qualis, such as; tantus...quantus, as great as; tot...quot, as many as: as, Idem est qui semper fuit, he is the same as he always was; res eodem statu quo antea stat, the matter stands in the same position as before; talis est qualis semper fuit, he is of the same character as he always was; tantam voluptatem habeo quantam tu, I have as much pleasure as you; tot erant milites quot fluctus maris, the soldiers were as many as the waves of the sea.

3. The adverbs such, so (limiting adjectives or adverbs) are expressed by tam: as, Tam bonus homo, such a good man. As good as you, is tam bonus quam tu.

4. The following correlative adverbs should also be learned: Ibi...ubi, there....where; inde...unde, thence....whence; eo...quo, thither....whither; eā...quā, in that direction in which: as, Ubi natus est, ibi mortuus est, where he was born, there he died; unde profectus est, eodem properavit, he hastened to the spot from which he set out.

EXERCISE.

Decline together: quae res, qui dies, idem homo, haec mulier.

1. Ubi adolescens abhinc multis annis educatus est, ibi senex his paucis diebus mortuus est. 2. Tantas divitias non habet quantas paucis ante annis. 3. Eadem utilitatis quae honestatis est regula. 4. Nunquam tantam contionem vidi quanta nunc haec est. 5. Eodem naves, unde profectae sunt, properavērunt. 6. Nonne hodie tanti sunt fluctus quanti heri erant? 7. Hodie homines iidem sunt qui quondam erant. 8. Talis est qualis semper fuit. 9. Quā nocte Alexander Magnus natus est, eādem templum Dianae Ephesiae deflagavit. 10. Ubi Cicero natus est, ibi C. Marius. 11. Quā dux milites duxit, eā hostes iter fecerunt. 12. Eodem anno quo Caesar copias suas in Britanniam duxit, Vergilius togam virilem sumpsit.

Translate into Latin:—

1. He lived in the place in which (use idem qui) he was born. 2. The farmer has not so large a harvest as he had last year. 3. We shall never see such waves as we beheld yesterday. 4. Did you not read as many books as your sister? 5. Were not the Greeks the same in former times as they are now? 6. The same year in which the father died, the son left Italy. 7. We came to Rome on the same night as he set out for Greece. 8. They all reached the same spot as they had left a few days before. 9. The enemy followed our men by the same route as we had taken a few years before. 10. He killed as many soldiers as you. 11. He is not the same to-day as he was a year ago. 12. They remained in the same place in which they had pitched their camp a few days before. 13. The waves were such as we had never before seen.

LESSON LXIV.

INTERROGATIVE PRONOUNS.

1. The interrogative pronouns quis, quae, quid, and qui, quae, quod, who? what? are used in asking questions. They are inflected as follows:—

Quis, who?

SINGULAR.			PLURAL.
Masc.	Fem.	Neut.	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
NOM. quis	quae	quid	quī	quae	quae
GEN. cūius	cūius	cūius	quōrum	quārum	quōrum
DAT. cui	cui	cui	quībus	quībus	quībus
ACC. quem	quam	quid	quōs	quās	quae
ABL. quō	quā	quō	quībus	quībus	quībus

2. The interrogative pronoun qui, quae, quod is inflected like the relative qui, quae, quod (see p. 126).

3. Quis is generally used substantively and rarely as an adjective: as, Quis hominum hoc dubitat? what man doubts this? (i. e., who of men). Qui interrogative is used adjectively in agreement with its noun: as, Qui homo hoc fecit? what man did this? quod facinus fecit? what crime did he commit?

Note.—Quis and qui are often strengthened by the addition of -nam; quisnam, quinam are therefore emphatic interrogatives meaning who, pray? who, then?

4. Which of two? is uter, utra, utrum: as, Uter vestrū? which of you two? (see p. 27).

5. In replying to a question, where we use the simple Yes or No, the Latins repeat the verb or some emphatic word: as, Vēnitne? did he come? Non vēnit, No; vēnit, Yes.

Note.—They also say, however, vero etiam, ita, certe, sane, for Yes; and non, minime, minime vero, for No.

6. Whether....or, in a double question, is usually utrum....an: as, Utrum vir lēgit an scribit? whether does the man read or write?

Note.—Or not, after whether, is annon in principal interrogative sentences: as, Utrum amat patriam annon? whether does he love his native land or not?

GENITIVE OF QUALITY.

7. A noun in the genitive (called the genitive of quality) is often added to another noun to denote a quality: as, Vir est summae fortitudinis, he is a man of the highest courage; vir erat maximae sapientiae, he was a man of the greatest wisdom.

Note.—The noun in the genitive expressing quality has invariably an adjective with it. Thus, a man of wisdom is not vir sapientiae but vir sapiens. But, where the corresponding adjective is wanting, praeditus, endowed with, may be used with the simple ablative: as, Homo virtute praeditus, a man of (endowed with) valor.

8. The genitive of quality is chiefly used to denote number, amount, dimension, age, time: as, Septuaginta navium classis, a fleet of seventy ships; viginti pedum in altitudinem est agger, the embankment is twenty feet high (literally, is of twenty feet in height); puer tredecim annorum, a boy thirteen years of age.

Note.—Other constructions may be used for the genitive of quality: as, Viginti pedes altus est agger, the embankment is high twenty feet (acc. of extent of space); puer tredecim annos natus, a boy of thirteen years of age (i.e., a boy born thirteen years). So, too: Cicero trium et quadraginta annorum consul fuit, or Cicero, tres et quadraginta annos natus, consul fuit, Cicero at the age of forty-three was consul; mensa est trium pedum in latitudinem, or mensa est tres pedes lata, the table is three feet wide.

9. The ablative is used, like the genitive, to express quality, especially when external qualities of dress or appearance are mentioned : as, Homo magno capite, ore rubicundo, magnis pedibus, a man with a large head, red face, and big feet; Caesar erat excelsā statūrā, Caesar was of tall stature.

EXERCISE.

Decline together : qui homo bonus? quod facinus malum? qui vir prudens? quae urbs pulchra?

Translate into English :—

1. Quid proximā, quid superiore nocte egisti? 2. Uter consulum nobis amicus est? 3. Eodem tempore equites nostri levisque armaturae pedites hostibus occurrebant. 4. Utram in partem flumen fluit? 5. Erat inter Labienum atque hostium castra difficili transitu flumen ripisque praeuptis. 6. Quod periculum eo die vitavisti? 7. Ita omnis insula est in circuitu vices centum millium passuum. 8. Nonne nuntiatum est omnem peditatum et levis armaturae Numidas pontem ab duce transductos esse? 9. Utrum patrem an patriam plus amat? 10. Quem Caesar hibernis eā hieme praefecit? 11. Num Romanis classis viginti navium erat? 12. His rebus gestis, ex litteris Caesaris dierum viginti supplicatio a Senatu decreta est.

Translate into Latin :—

1. Who gave a golden crown of great weight to this soldier? 2. Are not serpents of great size found in that island? 3. Whether was this boy born at Rome or at Karthage? 4. The Germans were said to be men of great strength. 5. Two generals were chosen by the Athenians, Pericles, a man of great valor, and Sophocles, a poet of undying fame. 6. Was not Cimon a man of great liberality? 7. You possess a man of remarkable modesty, well-known valor, and approved fidelity. 8. It is the characteristic of a foolish man to condemn the faults of others and to be blind to (non videre) his own. 9. Which of the two boys is more like his father? 10. Will not the Romans remain at Ravenna all winter? 11. By whom were the Romans conquered in battle? 12. Who was at home on that day? 13. Did he not come to Rome that night? Yes.

LESSON LXV.

INDEFINITE PRONOUNS.

1. Pronouns that do not refer to any particular person or thing are called indefinite pronouns. The more common are :—

Quis, quae or qua, quid or quod, any (especially after si, if, nisi, unless).

Aliquis, aliquae or aliqua, aliquod or aliquid, some one.

Quisquam, quaequam, quicquam or quidquam, any one.

Ullus, ulla, ullum, any (see p. 26), used as the adjectival form of quisquam.

Quidam, quaedam, quiddam or quoddam, a certain one.

Quisque, quaeque, quidque or quodque, each.

Unusquisque, unaquaeque, unumquidque or unumquodque, each one, each individual.

Uterque, utraque, utrumque, each of two, both.

Quivis, quaevis, quidvis or quodvis, any one you like.

Quilibet, quaelibet, quidlibet or quodlibet, any one you like.

Utervis, utravis, utrumvis, either of the two you like.

Uterlibet, utralibet, utrumlibet, either of the two you like.

Nemo, no one; nihil, nothing; nullus, nulla, nullum, none (p. 26).

2. In declining the above, the following rules may be observed :—

The forms in quis and qui are declined like interrogative quis and relative qui, but have qua or quae in the fem. sing., and quid or quod in the neuter singular. Forms in quod are adjectival, those in quid substantival. Thus :—

Tempus aliquod, some time; tempōris aliquid, some time (literally, something of time).

Unusquisque is declined in both parts and used in the singular only; uterque, utriusque, is declined in the first part only.

Nemo is declined like virgo (p. 34), but has nullius for the gen. and nullo or nullā for the abl.

Nihil is neuter and used only in the nominative and accusative sing.

3. Quisquam (adjectival, ullus) is used in sentences that contain a negative, in interrogative sentences implying a negative answer, or in comparative clauses : as, Nec quisquam me vidit, nor did anyone see me ; nec ullus homo me vidit, nor did any man see me ; num quisquam me vidit? did anyone see me ? num ullus homo me vidit? did any man see me ? fortior est quam quisquam vestrum, he is braver than any of you.

EXERCISE.

Decline together : unusquisque puer, uterque homo, mulier quaedam, miles aliquis, nullum animal.

Translate into English :—

1. Num quisquam Ciceronem eo tempore laudavit? 2. Ad puerum, cuius pater in bello interfectus est, aliquod donum mitte. 3. Homo quidam mihi dixit eum eo anno esse mortuum. 4. Uterque puer in schola erat. 5. Num ullum animal sine sensu est? 6. Nemo ei nuntiavit urbem ab hostibus esse captam. 7. Nuntiat unumquemque ab eo esse occisum. 8. Nihil temporis ab hoc puero amittitur. 9. Nemo omnium militum, qui legionis septimae sunt, a me laudabitur. 10. Nuntiat Gallos in sinistro cornu agminis locatos esse. 11. Putavisti utrumque puerum domo decessisse. 12. Duces quosdam praemisit, qui viam monstravērunt. 13. Omnes, in quibus aliquid dignitatis fuit, eō convēnērunt.

Translate into Latin :—

1. Some one has given a sword to each soldier. 2. Did any one say that these men were brave? 3. I heard that some Roman soldiers set out from the camp on that day. 4. A certain one told me that he had seen you on the top of the hill. 5. Both the consuls commanded an army in that year. 6. Each one of us was praised by the general. 7. Some one brought word to the camp that we had been defeated. 8. Will not some one lead us against the enemy? 9. Who will say that this general was not better than all other generals? 10. Choose any man you like (use quivis) for this war. 11. Did any one of the soldiers say that he was brave? 12. Both wars were carried on by the two generals in the same year.

LESSON LXVI.

INDEFINITE PRONOUNS.—(Continued).

DATIVE OF PURPOSE.

1. The dative is used to express purpose, intention, and destination: as, Malo est hominibus avaritia, avarice is an evil (literally, for an evil) to men; quinque cohortes castris praesidio reliquit, he left five cohorts to guard the camp (=for a guard to the camp). This is called the dative of purpose.

The following uses of this dative should be noted: Vēnit nobis auxilio, he came to aid us (i. e., for an aid); Pericles agros suos dono reipublicae dedit, Pericles gave his lands as a gift to the state; Gallis magno erat impedimento, it was a great hindrance to the Gauls.

2. The dative is often used in Latin instead of the English possessive: as, Omnes flentes Caesāri sese ad pedes proiēcerunt, all in tears threw themselves at Caesar's feet. This dative gives more prominence to the person mentioned: as, Hoc mihi minuit spem, this lessened my hope.

EXERCISE.

Decline together: pater meus, totus ille dies, is consul, idem beatus homo, vir quidam Romanus, eadem navis, quis nauta, homo quivis, Cicero ipse, orator clarissimus.

Translate into English:—

1. Hoc aliquis dicet, nec errabit. 2. Locus silvestris spem salutis aliquam praebebat. 3. Plerumque Gallis, prae magnitudine corporum suorum, brevitās nostra contemptui est. 4. Hic homo cuiusquam iniuriae sibi non conscius est. 5. Neque eorum moribus turpius quicquam habetur. 6. Consensu eorum omnium, pace factā, hunc sibi domicilio locum delegerant. 7. Quem locum nostri castris delegerunt? 8. His difficultatibus duae res erant subsidio, scientia atque usus militaris. 9. Caesar, principibus cuiusque civitatis ad se vocatis, magnam partem Galliae in officio tenuit. 10. Quisque eorum militum hoc die coronā aureā ab imperatore donatus est. 11. Haec culpa magno dedecori tibi fuit. 12. Labienus, castris hostium potitus, decimam legionem subsidio nostris misit.

13. Caesar pollicitus est eam rem sibi curae esse futuram.

Translate into Latin :—

1. The Romans learned some facts (res) from a deserter. 2. Nor have they any clothing¹, except skins. 3. Caesar had sent some soldiers of each legion to aid the allies. 4. There is timber² of every kind in Britain except beech and fir. 5. Each of the scouts came to the general and promised to aid him in the matter. 6. When he had learned these facts, he called to him some of the chiefs of the state. 7. Were there any of the chiefs present at the council of the Gauls? 8. He came to aid the Athenians in the war. 9. I have a book which, many years ago, you gave me as a present. 10. Who will not attribute this to you as a fault? 11. Civil wars have always been a great loss to a state. 12. In the consulship of Caesar this chief came with many followers to aid the Romans. 13. Of the two consuls, one fell in that battle, the other is still of great service to the state.

LESSON LXVII.

REVIEW EXERCISE ON THE PRONOUN.

Translate into English :—

1. Itaque ille legatum in Treviros, qui proximi flumini sunt, cum equitatu mittit. 2. Quibus rebus coacti, legatos ad eum de pace mittunt. 3. 3. The subjunctive, as opposed to the indicative (which represents the action of the verb as a fact), is said to represent the action of the verb as something only supposed. But this rule is of little practical value. The meanings and uses of the subjunctive must be carefully mastered in detail.

SUBJUNCTIVE IN SIMPLE SENTENCES.

4. The following are three main uses of the subjunctive in simple sentences :—

(a) In exhortations: as, Semper iidem simus, let us always be the same. The negative is nē: as, Ne hoc faciat, let him not do this.

(b) In commands, especially negative commands (with nē for not): as, Ne multa discas sed multum, do not learn many things but much.

Note.—Unless in general maxims like the above, the perfect is more usual here than the present: as, Ne id dixeris, do not say that.

(c) To express a wish: as, Beātus sis, may you be happy. When the wish may still be realized, the present or perfect is used; when the wish is vain and can not be realized, the imperfect or pluperfect. Utinam (O! that) usually introduces a wish: as, Adsit or utinam adsit, O! that he may be here; utinam adfuerit O! that he may have been here; utinam adesset, O! that he were here (now); utinam adfuisset, O! that he had been here (then). The negative in expressing a wish is usually nē: as, Nē vivam si scio, may I not live, if I know.

EXERCISE.

Translate into English :—

1. Discedant ab armis omnes qui in Italia sunt. 2. Valeant, valeant cives mei; sint incolumes, sint florentes, sint beati; stet haec urbs praeclara mihi que patria carissima. 3. Utinam P. Translate into Latin :—

1. O ! that we may take this town within a few days.
2. Would that we had been living at that time !
3. May we not be sailing the sea in the middle of winter !
4. O ! that we may conquer our enemies in this battle.
5. Let us hear our teacher.
6. Would that we had seized the citadel !
7. May we all love our parents who have taught us everything !
8. O ! that the enemy may be defeated.
9. May you dwell with us a long time in this city !
10. O ! that you may refrain from wrong-doing.
11. Do not expect to see me to-morrow.
12. Would that he had not seen me at Rome !
13. Do not ask the boy his name.

LESSON LXIX.

SUBJUNCTIVE IN SIMPLE SENTENCES.

The subjunctive is also used in simple sentences :—

(a) In questions of doubt, astonishment, or deliberation: as, Quid dicam? what shall I say? what am I to say? Quid dicerem? what should I have said? what was I to say? This is called the deliberative subjunctive. It is often introduced by an: as, An ego non venirem? ought I not to have come?

(b) To soften an assertion, or make a concession: as, Crēdas, you would believe; crēdēres, you would have believed; hoc dixerim, I would have said this; aliquis dicat, some one may say.

LESSON LXXII.

DEFECTIVE VERBS—MEMINI, COEPI, ODI, NŌVI.

1. Verbs that are wanting in some of their parts are called defective verbs. The following are used only in the perfect and tenses derived from the perfect: Mēmīni, I remember; coepi, I begin; ōdi, I hate; nōvi, I know. They are inflected as follows:—

INDICATIVE.

Perfect.	mēmīni, isti, &c.	coepi	ōdi	nōvi
Pluperfect.	mēmīnēram	coepēram	ōdēram	nōvēram
Fut. Perfect.	mēmīnēro	coepēro	ōdēro	nōvēro

2. Pl.	mementōte

INFINITIVE.

Perfect	mēmīnisce	coepisce	ōdisce	nōvisce
Future.	Wanting.	coeptūrus esse	ōsūrus esse	Wanting.

PARTICIPLE.

Perfect Pass.	Wanting.	coeptus	ōsus	nōtus
Fut. Active.	Wanting.	coeptūrus	ōsūrus

2. Nōvi is properly the perfect of nosco (-gnosco in compounds), I begin to know.

3. Each of the above verbs has in the perfect, a present meaning, in the pluperfect, an imperfect meaning, and in the future perfect, a future meaning : as, Coepi, I begin ; coepēram, I began ; coepero, I shall begin. (Coepi, however, means both I begin and I began.)

4. Coepi (active form) is used when an active infinitive follows : as, Urbem aedificare coepit, he began to build the city ; while coeptus sum (passive form) is used when a passive infinitive follows : as, Urbs aedificari coepta est, the city began to be built.

5. Other defective verbs are : Aio, I say ; fari, to speak ; inquam, I say. These are given in the Appendix.

6. Inquam is used, like the English says he, in direct quotations : as, "Ego," inquit, "cras veniam," "I," he says, "shall come to-morrow." The nominative, if expressed, comes after inquam, inquit.

GENITIVE WITH VERBS.

7. The following verbs usually take a genitive after them :—Misērēor, miseresco, (feel pity), meminī (remember), obliviscor (forget), reminiscor (remember) : as, Miserēre labōrum, pity sufferings ; huius diēi meminero, I shall remember this day.

Note.—Misērōr, āri, ātus sum (express pity for), takes the accusative : as, Casum suum miseratur, he bewails his misfortune.

ABLATIVE AND GENITIVE OF PRICE.

ABLATIVE OF PRICE.

1. Price, with verbs of buying and selling, is expressed by the ablative when the price is definitely stated: as, Viginti talentis unam orationem vendidit Isocrates, Isocrates sold one speech for twenty talents; multo sanguine haec victoria nobis stat, this victory costs us much blood (literally, stands to us at much blood).

Note.—With verbs of exchange, the thing received in exchange is usually in the accusative and the thing given in exchange in the ablative: as, Exilium patriā mutāvit, he received exile in exchange for his native land (= he went into exile).

GENITIVE OF PRICE.

2. When the price for which a thing is bought or sold is not stated definitely, price is usually expressed by the genitive, especally with the words magni (at a great price), parvi (at a low price), pluris (at a greater price), minōris (at a less price), tanti (at so great a price), quantī (at as great a price): as, Hortos tanti quanti tu ēmit, he bought gardens at as high a price as you; frumentum pluris vendo, I sell corn at a higher price.

Note.—Do not use multi or maioris, but magni, pluris, for at a high price, at a higher price.

2. Fio is used as the passive of facio, I make, which is regular except that it omits -e in the 2nd singular present imperative : as, *Fac, do thou; fācite, do ye or you.*¹

3. Facio, when compounded with a preposition, changes -a to -i, and makes its passive regularly in -ficio : as, perficio (from perficio, finish), efficio (from efficio, effect).

In other cases, the -a remains unchanged, and the passive is -fio : as, satisfacio, satisfy ; pass., satisfio.

ABLATIVE OF SOURCE OR ORIGIN.

4. The English from, expressing source, is generally expressed by the ablative with the preposition a (or ab), e (or ex) : as, Hoc audi vi e meo patre, I have heard this from my father. The English from, expressing origin, (except with the names of remote ancestors) is generally expressed by the ablative without a preposition : as, Ille optimis parentibus ortus est, that man is descended from very noble parents. But : Belgae a Germanis orti sunt, the Belgae are descended from the Germans.

EXERCISE.

Give the principal parts of : gigno, orior, nascor, ēdo, facio.

Translate into English :—

Future,	constātūrum esse	licītūrum esse	—	ēventūrum esse

Note.—By after it is admitted is inter : as, Inter omnes constat, it is admitted by all, or all admit.

4. The English ought may be expressed by the impersonal oportet, oportēre, oportūit, it is needful : as, Te hoc facere oportet, you ought to do this; te hoc facere oportēbat or oportuit, you ought to have done this; te hoc facere oportēbit, you ought to do this (in the future).

Note.—Instead of the impersonal oportet with the accusative, the personal dēbeo, I owe, may be used : as, Hoc facere dēbes, you ought to do this; hoc facere debēbas or debūisti, you ought to have done this; hoc facere debēbis, you ought to do this (in the future).

5. The English may and might (expressing permission) are translated by licet, it is allowed, licēre, licūit: as, Mihi hoc facere licet, I may do this (literally, it is allowed to me to do this); tibi hoc facere licēbat or licuit, you might have done this; ei hoc facere licebit, he will be allowed to do this (in the future).

Note.—The tense of the infinitive after possum, licet, debeo, oportet, does not change in Latin as in English: as, Hoc facere potui, I could have done it.

6. A predicate adjective after esse (to be) governed by licet, agrees in gender, number and case with the noun or pronoun to which it refers: as, Aliis esse ignāvis licet, others may be cowards (literally, it is allowed to others to be cowards). So also with necesse esse (it is necessary), expēdit (it is expedient), libet (it is pleasing): as, Necesse est nobis esse fortibus, it is necessary for us to be brave; ei esse otioso non expēdit, it is not expedient for him to be at leisure; ei libebit esse amico, it will please him to be a friend.

EXERCISE.

Give the principal parts of: licet, expedit, libet, oportet, debeo.

Translate into English:—

1. Licet nobis bellum cum iis gerere. 2. Licebit iis nobiscum bella multa gerere. 3. Oportet me omnia fortiter ferre. 4. Eum ad mortem duci oportuit. 5. Nobis non expedit esse otiosis. 6. Romam eo tempore ire debuēre. 7. Privati agri apud eos nihil est; neque longius anno remanere uno in loco licet. 8. Liberi eorum in servitatem abduci non debent. 9. Non tibi esse ignavo licebit. 10. Tibi Romae manere non libet. 11. Inter omnes constat Ciceronem eloquentissimum oratorem esse. 12. Helvetiis iter per provinciam Romanam facere non licuit. 13. Constat inter omnes Romam caput orbis terrarum fuisse.

Translate into Latin:—

1. You might have done this. 2. I could have remained at Rome all the winter. 3. We ought to bear the hardships of life bravely. 4. You ought, Catiline, long ago to have been put to death. 5. O! that it were expedient for me to be at leisure. 6. We were not permitted to attack the enemy. 7. Did not the Romans permit us to make a march through the province? 8. All admit that the moon is smaller than the earth. 9. Did not all admit that Homer was a greater poet than Vergil? 10. Ought not the general to have attacked the enemy? 11. It is admitted by all that Caesar will fight with the Gauls in the spring. 12. The sick man is not allowed to see his friends. 13. He ought to have seen his father on that day.

LESSON LXXX.

IMPERSONAL USE OF VERBS THAT GOVERN THE DATIVE.

1. Verbs that govern a dative in the active (p. 105), are used impersonally in the passive : as, Ego tibi impero, I command you; ego tibi credo, I believe you. But in the passive: Tibi imperātur, you are commanded (literally, it is commanded to you); tibi credītur, you are believed (not tu imperāris, tu credēris).

2. Intransitive verbs are often used in the passive impersonally : as, Ītur, people go (literally, it is gone); currītur, they run (literally, it is run); pugnatum est, a battle was fought.

Note 1.—With such verbs the agent is generally omitted ; if it is expressed, it may be in the dative or in the ablative with a (or ab) : as, Helvetiis (or ab Helvetiis) pugnatum est, a battle was fought by the Helvetii.

Note 2.—Such verbs are often best translated by substituting an appropriate noun as subject : as, Clamatum est, a shout was raised.

3. Some verbs that are impersonal in English are personal in Latin : as, Cicero eo anno consul fuisse videtur, it seems that Cicero was consul in that year; urbs Roma a Romulo esse condita dicitur, it is said that the city of Rome was founded by Romulus. So too, Putor, I am supposed; feror, I am said.

EXERCISE.

Give the principal parts of : credo, persuadeo, pareo, ignosco, parco, capio, curro, trado, venio.

Translate into English :—

1. Solon esse sapientissimus dictus est. 2. Homērus multis annis ante Vergilium vixisse traditus est. 3. Omnibus mulieribus liberisque parceretur. 4. Nonne tibi a magistro creditum est? 5. Num hoc oppidum ab hostibus eo anno captum esse dicitur? 6. Tibi a bonis non ignoscitur. 7. Imperatori a militibus non parebatur. 8. Omnibus ad portam curritur. 9. In eo loco multas horas acriter pugnatum est. 10. Duci a militibus decimae legionis non parebitur. 11. Mihi ab amico persuasum est. 12. Ille vir doctissimus fuisse dicitur. 13. Romam nobis vespere ventum est.

Translate into Latin :—

1. It was said that Cicero was the most eloquent of all the Romans. 2. You were believed by all the soldiers in the army. 3. They will be pardoned by the general. 4. I was easily persuaded by my friend. 5. It seems that he was the bravest of the soldiers. 6. It is related that Athens, the capital of Greece, was founded by Cecrops. 7. A battle was fought on the plain by the Romans. 8. All ran to the gates of the camp. 9. You were not obeyed by the boys. 10. It is said that Vergil lived at the same time as Horace. 11. Will not all the prisoners be pardoned by the general? 12. Will not the messenger be believed by all the soldiers? 13. Did it not seem that he was the most learned of the Romans?

LESSON LXXXI.

1. The construction of the following verbs expressing feeling should be noticed: Misēret (it excites pity), poenitet (it repents), pūdet (it shames), taedet (it wearies), pīget (it vexes). They are used with the accusative of the person affected and the genitive of the object causing the feeling: as, Eorum nos miseret, we pity them (literally, it excites one's pity of them); hos homines ignaviae suae pudet, these men are ashamed of their idleness; te stultitiae poenitet, you repent of your folly; me dubitationis huius taedet, I am weary of this hesitation.

2. Ōpus est and ūsus est, there is need, are generally used impersonally with the dative of the person to whom there is need and the ablative of the thing needed : as, Cibo mihi opus est, I have need of food (literally, there is need to me with food); viginti talentis tibi usus est, you have need of twenty talents.

3. The impersonals intērest and rēfert, it is of importance, have the genitive of the person to whom the matter is of importance : as, Clodii intererat Milōnem perire, it was of importance to Clodius that Milo should die. But if the person is expressed in English by a personal pronoun, the ablative singular feminine of the possessive pronoun is used in Latin : as, Id meā interest, this is of importance to me; hoc tuā intererat, this was of importance to you. The degree of importance is expressed either by an adverb (e.g., multum, magno-pere, plurimum, etc.), or by a genitive of price (e.g., tanti, magni, parvi, etc.) : as, Multum meā interest, it is of much importance to me; magni tuā intererat, it was of great importance to you.

EXERCISE.

Give the principal parts of : pudet, poenitet, miseret, taedet.

Translate into English :—

1. Nonne te stultitiae tuae pudet? 2. Nobis armis opus est. 3. Tui flagitii poenitere te oportet. 4. Omnium civium a consule servari intererat. 5. Magistratibus igitur nobis opus est, sine quorum prudentiā esse civitas non potest. 6. Vestrā intererat, commilitones, castris hostium potiri. 7. Hodie omnibus praesidio tuo opus est. 8. Magni meā interest te mihi adesse. 9. Hunc hominem scelerum poenitebit. 10. Nos illius viri miseret. 11. Ad salutem civitatis intererat nos quam maximas copias comparare. 12. Magni intererit tuā amicos quam plurimos habere. 13. Eius stultitiae me eo tempore puduit.

Translate into Latin :—

1. I am ashamed of his cowardice. 2. You have need of friends. 3. We ought all to be ashamed of our defeat. 4. It is of great importance that the city should be saved. 5. We have all need of friends without whose aid we cannot do good to others. 6. It is to their interest to help their friends in danger. 7. It is of the highest interest to you to aid your brother. 8. Did he not repent of his undertaking? 9. He said that it was his interest to remain at Rome. 10. You ought to collect as many soldiers as possible. 11. You ought to repent of your wicked deeds. 12. We are not ashamed of our forefathers. 13. He pitied the sorrows of the old man.

LESSON LXXXII.

VERBS WITH THE ACCUSATIVE AND GENITIVE.

Verbs of accusing, acquitting, condemning, reminding, and admonishing take, in the active, the accusative of the person and the genitive of the thing : as, Te impietātis absolvo, I acquit you of impiety; arguit me furti, he accuses me of theft; cives eum proditiōnis accusaverunt, the citizens accused him of treachery; iudices hunc furti condemnant, the jury condemn this man for theft; Catilina eos egestatis admonebat, Catiline reminded them of their needy condition; nos officii nostri admonuit, he reminded us of our duty.

Note.—In the passive, these constructions become respectively : Tu impietatis ab me absolvēris; furti ab eo arguor; is proditiōnis a civibus accusatus est, hic furti ab iudicibus condemnatur; ei egestatis a Catilina admonebantur; nos officii nostri ab eo admoniti sumus.

EXERCISE.

Give the principal parts of : dico, solvo, parco, cado, occido, licet.

Translate into English :—

1. Themistocles absens proditiōnis damnatus est. 2. Iudex eum iniuriarum absolvit. 3. Nonne omnes eum furti accusaverunt? 4. Me officii mei admonere licuit. 5. Nos omnes stultitiæ nostræ poenitere oportet. 6. Num puer ab iudice furti absolutus est. 7. Huius post mortem populum iudicii sui poenitebit. 8. Catilina coniurationis contra patriam ab Cicerone condemnatus est. 9. Opus est omnibus nobis sapientiā. 10. Alium (one) stultitiæ, alium sceleris admonet. 10. Magni nostrā interest milites quam plurimos comparare. 11. Quam plurimos occidisse dixit. 12. Nonne omnibus liberis a militibus parceretur? 13. Tuo praesidio nobis usus erat.

Translate into Latin :—

1. They condemned the boy for theft. 2. They acquitted him of treachery. 3. Was he accused of cowardice? 4. He was unwilling to remind them of their folly. 5. Was Verres not accused of extortion by Cicero? 6. Did he pity the sorrows of the wretched man? 7. Cicero accused him of treachery. 8. We are all in need of foresight in danger. 9. It was of great importance that they should repent of their crimes. 10. Were not the wretched men spared by the soldiers? 11. It was said that he was acquitted of this charge by the judge. 12. We all needed your help on that day. 13. O ! that he had repented of his folly.

LESSON LXXXIII.

PERSONAL PRONOUNS OF THE THIRD PERSON.

1. The usual word for he, she, it, they, &c., when they are expressed at all, is Is, eā, id, (p. 122, 4) : as, Is hostis esse dicebatur, he was said to be an enemy; id tibi affirmo I assure you of it; in eos officia confērent, on them they bestow kindnesses.

2. When he, she, it, etc., are to be strongly emphasized they are expressed by hic, iste, ille (p. 118) : as, Hoc illud est, that is it; ille vitam in otio ēgit, he passed his life in idleness.

3. He, she, it, etc., referring to the subject of a verb, are expressed by the reflexive sui (p. 105) : as, Caesar dicit se id fēcisse, Caesar says that he (Caesar) did it (eum would mean someone else than Caesar); Caesar eum sibi legatum esse iubet, Caesar orders him to be legate to him (Caesar).

Note.—In a complex sentence, ipse is used to refer to the subject of a subordinate clause, if ambiguity would arise from the use of sui : as, Rogat cur de ipsis despērent, he asks them why they despair of themselves (de se would mean of him).

4. The forms of sui may, however, refer to the object of a verb, if no ambiguity results : as, Relīquos cogit se convertere, the rest he compels to turn (literally, to turn themselves).

5. His, her, its, their, are usually expressed by the genitive of is: as, Dixit se eorum amicum esse, he said that he was their friend. But his, her, etc., referring to the subject of a verb is expressed by suus: as, Domum suam vendit, he sells his house.

Note 1.—In a complex sentence the genitive of ipse is used for his, etc., to refer to the subject of a subordinate clause, if ambiguity would arise from the use of suus: as, Rogat cur se ipsorum inimicis tradere velint, he asks why they want to surrender him to their enemies.

Note 2.—The possessive is not expressed in Latin, if no ambiguity arises from its omission : as, Patri pārē, obey your father.

EXERCISE.

Give the principal parts of : mitto, credo, parco, relinquo, curro, possum, mōveo, vīdeo, sentio, contemno.

Translate into English :—

1. Caesar ducem clarissimum contra se lectum esse credebat.
 2. Sentit animus se vī suā moveri. 3. Clamavit eum cecīdisse.
 4. Nonne eum flentem vidisti? 5. Credit eum semper nostri memorem esse. 6. Eos eorum copias educere iubet. 7. Rēge dimisso, Caesar copias suas in eius fines duxit. 8. Marcus et Quintus fratres fuērunt ; hic fortior, ille prudentior fuit. 9. Pueri et¹ senem et consilia eius contemnunt. 10. Oppido relicto, Caesar in eos iter fecit. 11. Dixit eum haec vidisse. 12. Nonne is sum qui id feci?

Translate into Latin :—

1. He threw himself upon them. 2. Having sent forward the cavalry, he led the infantry into their territory. 3. Caesar said that he would spare them. 4. Did he not think that they would help him? 5. He promised that he would make war upon their towns. 6. That prison could not hold them. 7. The old man says that he despises both himself and them. 8. Did he think that he was believed? 9. He knew that they were worthy of death. 10. He said that some rivers ran deep. 11. These people think that they are happy. 12. He has taken all their cities.

¹ Et... et, both... and.

LESSON LXXXIV.

GERUND AND GERUNDIVE.

1. One form of the Latin verb remains to be discussed. This is the gerund.¹ The gerund is a verbal noun, corresponding to the English participial noun in -ing. It is inflected as follows :—

FIRST CONJUGATION.

GEN. āmandī, of loving.
 DAT. āmandō, to or for loving.
 ACC. āmandum, loving.
 ABL. āmandō, with, by, from, or in loving

SECOND CONJUGATION.

mōnendī, of advising.
mōnendō, to or for advising.
mōnendum, advising.
mōnendō, with, by, from or in advising.

THIRD CONJUGATION.

GEN. rēgendī, of ruling.
 DAT. rēgendō, to or for ruling.
 ACC. rēgendum, ruling.
 ABL. rēgendō, with, by, from or in ruling.

FOURTH CONJUGATION.

audiendī, of hearing.
audiendō, to or for hearing.
audiendum, hearing.
audiendō, with, by, from or in hearing.

2. The gerund has partly the nature of a noun and partly that of a verb. As a noun, it may be governed by another noun in the genitive, or by an adjective, or by a preposition. It resembles a verb in governing a case and in being limited by an adverb : as, Ius vocandi senatum, the right of summoning the senate. (Here the gerund is governed in the genitive by iūs, and governs senatum in the accusative, because vocāre governs that case); docendo discimus, we learn by teaching; natus ad regendum, born for ruling; parcendo inimicis gloriam paravit, he won distinction by sparing his enemies.

Note.—The nominative of the gerund is supplied by the infinitive : as, Ambulare iucundum est, walking is delightful.

GERUNDIVE.

3. Instead of the gerund with an accusative, Latin often uses a peculiar construction of its own. Thus : Born for ruling men is not often expressed by natus ad viros regendum, but by natus ad viros regendos, where regendos agrees with viros in gender, number, and case, and is called the gerundive. So too : In epistolis scribendis (in writing letters) is used for in scribendo epistolas and consilium urbis capiendae (the plan for taking the city), for consilium capiendi urbem.

¹ The word is derived from gero, carry, because, apparently, it expresses the action of the verb as being “carried on.”

4. The gerundive has the form of the future part. passive. Thus :—

Present stem and -ndus.	{	1. Conj.,	āma-ndus, a, um.
		2. “	mōne-ndus, a, um.
		3. “	rēge-ndus, a, um.
		4. “	audīe-ndus.

5. The rule for turning the gerund into the gerundive is easily deduced from the above examples. It may be stated as follows : The direct object of the gerund is attracted into the case of the gerund, which is then made to agree with its object in gender and number.

6. The genitive of the gerund or of the gerundive is often used with causā, on account of, for the sake of, which is written after its case : as, Vestis est frigōris depellendi causā, dress is intended for keeping off cold.

EXERCISE.

Translate into English :—

1. Nonne is ad ludos spectandos profectus est? 2. Hic clipeus utilis corpori tegendo est. 3. Eloquentia legendis poetis augētur. 4. Summa voluptas ex discendo capitur. 5. Inīta sunt consilia urbis delendae. 6. Milites frumentandi causā in fines hostium missi sunt. 7. Non oratum sed querendi causā iērunť. 8. Te duce, ad arma capienda parati sumus. 9. Nullum spatium ad se armandos dabatur. 10. Optimam occasionem navigandi habemus. 11. Breve tempus satis longum est ad bene vivendum. 12. Ea sunt usui ad armandas naves.

Translate into Latin :—

1. Water is good for drinking. 2. They formed the plan of killing the consul. 3. Was he not skilled in (gen.) guiding the state? 4. He spent much time in writing letters. 5. The horse is fit for carrying burdens. 6. You will have an opportunity of finishing the work. 7. He will send them into the territory of the enemy to collect corn (gerundive with causā). 8. Have they formed the plan of crossing the river? 9. I thought you had come for the purpose of (causā) seeing the city. 10. He said that they were coming for the purpose of making a bridge. 11. Were they ready to take up arms in the consulship of Caesar? 12. He said that he was going into the garden to see the flowers

LESSON LXXXV.

THE GERUND—(Continued).

Passive Periphrastic Conjugation.

1. The gerund and not the gerundive is to be used:—

(a) In the case of verbs that do not govern an accusative : as, Parcendo inimicis, by sparing enemies (not parcendis inimicis).

(b) Where euphony would be violated : as, Amicos vīdendi causā, for the sake of seeing friends (not amicorum videntorum).

(c) Where ambiguity results : as, Aliquid docendi causā, for the sake of teaching something (not alicuius, which would mean some one).

2. The gerundive is often used to express duty or necessity : as, Hostis tīmendus, an enemy that ought to be, or must be, feared.

3. From this use of the gerundive, a whole conjugation—called the Passive Periphrastic Conjugation—is formed of the gerundive and the verb sum, I am. Thus :—

Present,	{	āmandus sum , I am to be loved .
	{	āmandus es , thou art to be loved , etc.
Imperfect,	{	āmandus eram , I was to be loved .
	{	āmandus eras , thou wast to be loved , etc.
Future,	{	āmandus ero , I shall have to be loved .
	{	āmandus eris , thou wilt have to be loved , etc.

and so forth.

4. The agent is expressed in the passive periphrastic conjugation by the dative : as, Parentes nobis amandi sunt, our parents should be loved by us.

5. The passive periphrastic conjugation is generally used to translate the English should, ought, must (expressing duty or necessity) : as, Ex civitate pellendi sunt, they must be banished.

When the verb in English is active, the object becomes the subject in Latin, and the subject becomes the dative of the agent : as, Aqua mihi bibenda est, I must drink water (= water must be drunk by me).

6. Intransitive verbs and verbs that govern the genitive, the dative, or the ablative, must be used impersonally in the passive periphrastic conjugation : as, Nobis eundum est, we must go (= it must be gone by us) ; omnibus moriendum est, all must die ; inimicis a nobis parcendum est, we must spare our enemies ; utendum est iudicio a te, you must use your judgment.

Note.—When a verb does not govern the accusative, the agent (to avoid ambiguity) is expressed in the passive periphrastic conjugation by a (or ab) with the ablative. This appears from the last two examples.

7. With do (give), curo (take care of), trado (hand over), the gerundive is used to express purpose : as, Terram habitandam dat, he gives them the land to dwell in ; pontem faciendum curat, he has a bridge built.

EXERCISE.

Translate into English :—

1. Pārendum est legibus. 2. Haec Caesari miranda videntur.
3. Hostibus ad consilia capienda nihil spatii dandum esse existimabat. 4. Civibus a nobis subveniendum est. 5. Caesar ad dilectūs agendos profectus est. 6. Intellexit magnam partem equitatūs ab hostibus, aliquot diebus ante, praedandi causā trans flumen esse missam. 7. Ars civitatis gubernandae est difficillima.
8. In libris tuis legendis tres dies multā cum voluptate exēgi.
9. Catilina bellum suscepit reipublicae evertendae causā. 10. Ariovistus cum suis ad occupandum oppidum contendit. 11. Tempus bello gerendo idoneum non erat. 12. Ad galeas induendas tempus defuit. 13. Vix iis rebus administrandis tempus dabatur.

Translate into Latin :—

1. Wisdom is increased by learning and thinking. 2. Caius obtained the consulship for the purpose of avenging his brother. 3. He won credit by aiding friends. 4. Caesar gave the signal for (say of) beginning the battle. 5. The Romans were desirous of carrying on war. 6. They undertook the work for the purpose of finishing it. 7. We must all cultivate virtue. 8. I must send this letter to my father at Rome. 9. We must forget our wrongs. 10. The farmer must plough his fields in the spring. 11. Caesar set out to Gaul to carry on war. 12. Do you think that he should be believed? 13. We must all obey the general.

LESSON LXXXVI.

ACTIVE PERIPHRASTIC CONJUGATION. SUPINE.

1. Besides the passive periphrastic conjugation in Latin, there is also an active one, expressing futurity or intention. It is formed from the verb sum and the future participle in -tūrus. Thus: Āmaturus sum, I am going (or intend) to love; āmaturus eram (or fui), I was going (or intended) to love; and so on through all forms. So too: Mōnīturus sum, I intend to advise; mōnīturus eram, I intended to advise.

SUPINES.

2. Latin verbs have two supines, one in -tum and one in -tu. They are formed by adding -tum and -tu to the present stem or to the present stem modified: as, āmātum, to love.

mōnītum, to advise.

rectum, to rule.

audītum, to hear.

āmātu, to be loved.

monītu, to be advised.

rectu, to be ruled.

audītu, to be heard.

3. The supine in -tum is used to express purpose after verbs of motion. It governs the same case as the verb from which it is derived: as, Legatos mittunt rogatum auxilium, they send ambassadors to ask for aid; pabulatum milites emisit, he sent out soldiers to forage.

The supine in -tu is used after adjectives expressing difficulty, ease, credibility, pleasure, worth or the reverse, and after a few substantives, like fas (right), nefas (wrong), scēlus (wickedness): as, Difficile est dictu, it is difficult to be said, or it is difficult to say.

Note 1.—The supines are verbal nouns, one in the accusative and one in the ablative.

Note 2.—The supine in um with the pres. inf. pass. of eo, I go, is used to form the fut. inf. pass. of the verb. Thus: He said that he would be advised, dixit se monitum iri = he said that it is gone (i.e., people go) to advise him.

EXERCISE.

Translate into English :—

1. Amicitiamne populi Romani est repudiaturus? 2. Aedui legatos ad Caesarem mittunt rogatum auxilium. 3. His rebus factis, consilium urbis capiendae ineunt. 4. two days. 8. All should cultivate the art of speaking. 9. Nothing seemed to Xenophon so princely (regūlis) as the pursuit of cultivating the soil. 10. I intend now to speak of (de) choosing a commander for (ad) that war. 11. The Helvetii were fond of fighting with their neighbors. 12. We must all defend our country when attacked by an enemy (abl. abs.). 13. Spring is the time of year for sowing seed.

LESSON LXXXVII.

CLASSIFICATION OF CLAUSES.—INDIRECT QUESTION.

1. Dependent or subordinate clauses are called noun clauses, adjective clauses, or adverbial clauses, according as they perform the function of a noun, adjective, or adverb. Thus, in I know who he is, the clause who he is is a noun-clause, object of know; in I saw the man whom you mean, the clause whom you mean is an adjective clause, qualifying man; in He came that he might see the town, the clause that he might see the town is an adverbial clause of purpose, modifying came.

INDIRECT QUESTION.

2. A noun-clause headed by an interrogative pronoun, adjective, or adverb and used as the subject or object of a verb, takes its verb in the subjunctive. Such a clause is called an indirect (or dependent) question. Thus: Scio quis sit, I know who he is; quid faciat multum rēfert, it is of much importance what he does. (Here quis sit, and quid faciat, are indirect questions.)

3. The following are the more common interrogative pronouns, adjectives, and adverbs: Quis, who? uter, which of two? quantus, how great? qualis, what kind? quot, how many? ubi, where? unde, whence? quo, whither? cur (or quare), why? quī or (with adjs. and adverbs) quam, how? quemadmodum or quomodo, in what way? quantum, how much? quando, when? (quum is never interrogative), quoties, how often? quamdiu, how long?

4. Whether, if, at the head of an indirect question, is num: as, Dic mihi num vēnerit, tell me if he has come.

5. Whether . . . or, is utrum . . . an; but or not is necne in indirect questions (not annon, as in direct. P. 130, 6.): as, Multum interest utrum valeamus an aegri simus, it makes a great difference whether we are well or sick; videamus utrum aqua sit necne, let us see whether it is water or not.

Note.—After nescio or haud scio (I don't know), dubito (I doubt), incertum est (it is uncertain)—implying an affirmative—whether is an: as, Constantiam dico? Nescio an melius patientiam possim dicere, consistency, do I say? I don't know whether I can not better say long-suffering.

He is asking if he ought to remain at Rome. 13. Ask him what he is doing about it.

LESSON LXXXVIII.

CLASSIFICATION OF TENSES.—SEQUENCE OF TENSES.

Indirect Question—(Continued).

1. Latin tenses are divided into Primary and Secondary (or Historical), as follows :—

Primary Tenses.	{	Pres.,	āmat, he loves.
		Pres.-Perf.,	āmāvit, he has loved.
		Future,	āmābit, he will love.
		Future Perf.,	āmāverit, he will have loved.
Secondary or Historical Tenses.	{	Imperf.,	āmābat, he was loving.
		Past Indef.,	āmāvit, he loved.
		Pluperf.,	āmāverat, he had loved.

Note.—The Latin perfect has the force of both a present-perfect (i.e., perf. with have) and a past indefinite. When it is a prés.-perf., it is a primary tense ; when a past indef., a secondary.

2. The above classification of Latin tenses is important, in view of the fact that the tense of the subjunctive in a dependent clause is primary when the tense of the main verb is primary, and secondary when the tense of the main verb is secondary. This is an important rule, and is called the rule for the Sequence of Tenses. It may be stated thus :—

RULE FOR THE SEQUENCE OF TENSES.

A primary tense in the principal clause, is followed by a primary tense in the dependent clause ; a secondary tense in the principal clause, is followed by a secondary tense in the dependent clause.

3. The following examples of the indirect question will illustrate the rule :—

A. PRIMARY TENSES IN BOTH PRINCIPAL AND DEPENDENT CLAUSES.

(1) Present in Principal clause.

Scio quid āgās, I know what you are doing (now) (dependent question, therefore verb in subj.)

Scio quid egēris, I know what you have done (in the past).

Scio quid actūrus sis, I know what you are going to do (in the future ; i.e., what you will do).

Note.—The place of the fut. subjun. act. (which is wanting), is supplied by the active periphrastic conjugation (p 174, 1).

(2) Present-Perfect in Principal clause.

Cognōvi quid āgās, I have learned what you are doing (now).

Cognōvi quid egēris, I have learned what you have done (in the past).

Cognōvi quid actūrus sis, I have learned what you are going to do (in the future).

(3) Future in Principal clause.

Audīam quid āgās, I shall hear what you are doing (then).

Audīam quid egēris, I shall hear what you have done (in the past)

Audīam quid actūrus sis, I shall hear what you are going to do (in the future).

(4) Future-Perfect in Principal clause.

Cognōvēro quid āgās, I shall have known what you are doing (then).

Cognōvēro quid egēris, I shall have known what you have done (in the past).

Cognōvēro quid actūrus sis, I shall have known what you are going to do (in the future).

B. SECONDARY (OR HISTORICAL) TENSES IN PRINCIPAL AND DEPENDENT CLAUSES.

(1) Imperfect in Principal clause.

Sciēbam quid āgērēs, I knew (literally, was knowing) what you were doing (then).

Sciēbam quid egissēs, I knew what you had done (in the past).

Sciēbam quid actūrus essēs, I knew what you were going to do (in the future ; i.e., what you would do).

(2) Past Indefinite in Principal clause.

Cognōvi quid āgērēs, I learned what you were doing (then).

Cognōvi quid egissēs, I learned what you had done (in the past).

Cognōvi quid actūrus essēs, I learned what you were going to do (in the future).

(3) Pluperfect in Principal clause.

Cognōvĕram quid āgĕrēs, I had learned what you were doing (then.)

Cognōvĕram quid ēgissēs, I had learned what you had done (in the past).

Cognōvĕram quid actūrus essēs, I had learned what you were going to do (in the future).

The soldiers did not spare the inhabitants of that town. 13. He sold his house for ten talents.

LESSON LXXXIX.

IDIOMATIC USE OF THE INDIRECT QUESTION.

Noun-clauses Introduced by Quod and Ut.

1. An English abstract noun is often expressed in Latin by an indirect question : as, Dico tibi quale periculum sit, I tell you the nature of the danger; quot essent hostes rogavit, he asked the number of the enemy; quo eamus rogant, they ask our destination (=whither we are going).

NOUN-CLAUSE INTRODUCED BY QUOD.

2. Quod (meaning, because, the fact that), with the indicative often introduces a noun-clause in Latin : as, Magnum est hoc, quod victor victis pepercit, this is an important matter, the fact that when victorious he spared the vanquished.

NOUN-CLAUSE INTRODUCED BY UT.

3. Verbs of asking, commanding, striving, and effecting, take in English an infinitive but in Latin a noun-clause introduced by ut, that, with the subjunctive: as, Oro te ut hoc facias, I beg you to do this; nītitur ut vincat, he strives to conquer.

If there is a not with the inf., nē (that not) is used for ut non: as, Puero imperavi ne domo exiret, I ordered the boy not to go from home (impf., in accordance with the rule for sequence, p. 178).

Note 1.—Iubeo, I order, however, and vēto, I forbid, take the infinitive : as, Iussi puerum domo non exire, I ordered the boy not to go from home; vetuit me hoc facere, he forbade me to do it.

Note 2.—Statuo, constituo, decerno, I determine, take the infinitive when the subject of the main verb and of the infinitive is the same : as, Statuit Caesar in Italiam redire, Caesar determined to return to Italy. In other cases, they take a noun-clause introduced by ut or ne: as, Statuit Caesar ut legiones suae in Italiam redirent, Caesar determined that his legions should return to Italy.

4. The following impersonal verbs are followed by a noun-clause introduced by ut: Contingit, evēnit, accidit, and fit (it happens), restat (it remains), sēquitur (it follows), feri potest (it may happen): as, Accidit ut nemo adesset, it happened that no one was present.

It follows that he was condemned for treachery by the senate. 5. Explain to the judges your view of the matter. 6. They said that the Romans had pitched their camp in this plain. 7. Do you know our reason for declaring war? 8. He forbade the consul calling the people together on that day. 9. We are not asked to assemble in the market-place. 10. It happened that he was absent from Rome in that year. 11. What amount of money shall I bring? 12. We strove to finish the work within a few days. 13. He determined to set out for Gaul that winter. 14. Beg them not to come. 15. The fact that you betrayed your country is enough.

LESSON XC.

ADVERBIAL CLAUSES.

Final Clauses Introduced by Ut (or Ne), and Quo.

1. An adverbial clause is one that takes the place of an adverb. Thus, in I eat that I may live, the clause introduced by that is an adverbial clause of purpose, limiting the action of the main verb. An adverbial clause of purpose is called a final clause (from finis, an end), because it expresses the end or object of the verb it limits.

2. Final clauses in Latin are usually introduced by ut, that, or ne, that . . . not, lest (both with the subjunctive) : as, Edo ut vivam, I eat that I may live; hoc dico ne te laedam, I say this that I may not offend you (=to avoid offending you).

Note.—Ne in a final clause, may often translate the English “to avoid,” “to prevent.”

3. In final clauses the present subjunctive is used after primary tenses ; the imperfect after secondary, in accordance with the Rule for Sequence (see p. 178). Thus : Multi laudant ut laudentur, many praise that they may be praised (pres. after a primary tense) ; multi laudabant ut laudarentur, many praised that they might be praised (imperfect after a secondary tense).

4. That no one, that no (adj.), that nothing, that never, in a final clause, are respectively ne quis, ne ullus, ne quid, ne unquam : as, Porta clausa est ne quis exiret, the gate was shut that no one might go out; clamant ne ullum verbum audiat, they are shouting that no word may be heard; abii ne quid viderem, I went away that I might see nothing; hoc facite ne unquam vituperent, do this that they may never revile.

5. Instead of ut in a final clause, quo (= ut eo, that by this) with the subjunctive, is used when the clause has a comparative in it : as, Puto aliquid puero dandum esse quo sit studiosior, I think that something ought to be given to the boy that he may be more zealous; Caesar castella communit quo facilius Helvetios prohibere possit, Caesar erects forts that he may the more easily keep off the Helvetii.

Haec scribebam ut bono esses animo. 7. Ne quis ex civitate pelleretur, idem promisit. 8. Multa mentitus est quo iunior videretur. 9. Utinam rex ipse adesset. 10. His cognitis, milites eduxit ne omnes interficerentur. 11. Legibus servīmus ut liberi esse possīmus. 12. Captivos omnes interfīci iussit quo melius iter faceret.

Translate into Latin :—

1. They went into the garden that they might find the book. 2. They set out in the morning that they might reach the city before night. 3. We will go away in order not (use nē) to see them. 4. I did this in order that I might injure no one. 5. We must raise a shout that we may be heard by him. 6. He praised us in order to be praised by us. 7. He killed himself that he might never see the country overthrown. 8. Do not buy what you do not need. 9. In a few days we shall return to see (use quo) the place better. 10. Did you not see with what pride he answered? 11. We must teach our children in order that they may be better citizens. 12. He wishes to return home in order to stand for the consulship.

LESSON XCI.

FINAL CLAUSES—(Continued).

Qui Final. Quominus and Quin. Neve.

1. The relative qui (called qui final) is often used with the subjunctive to express a purpose: as, Misit legatos qui pacem peterent, he sent ambassadors to sue for peace (qui=ut ei).

Note.—Relative adverbs, like ubi (where) and unde (whence), are used, like the relative pronoun, to express a purpose:

as, Domum ubi habitaret lēgit, he chose a house where he might dwell (ubi=ut ibi, that there).

2. After verbs of preventing, a final clause is often used, introduced by quominus (=by which the less=in order that not): as, Nihil obstat quominus scribas, nothing prevents you from writing (=by which you should the less write).

Note.—After verbs of preventing, quīn (quī+ne=how not), may be used for quominus, if there is a negative or virtual¹ negative with the main verb: as, Vix inhibēri potuit quīn saxa iacēret, he could scarcely be prevented from throwing stones.

3. After verbs of fearing, a final clause is used, introduced by ut or ne: as, Vērēor ne veniat, I am afraid he will come; verēor ut veniat, I am afraid he will not come.

Note.—Here ut and ne apparently change their meaning; ut is used for that not, and ne for that.

4. The English future after verbs of fearing, is expressed by the subjunctive—the present subjunctive, if after a primary tense, the imperfect if after a secondary: as, Timeo ut labōres sustineas, I am afraid that you will not endure your labors; timēbam ne eā evēnīrent, I was afraid that these things would happen.

5. In English the infinitive is often used to denote a purpose, but in Latin it is never so used in good prose. Such an infinitive may be expressed in Latin in various ways.

Thus: He sent ambassadors to sue for peace, may be expressed as follows:—

Lēgātos misit ut pacem pētērent (ut final).

Legatos misit qui pacem pētērent (qui final).

Legatos misit ad pacem petendam (gerundive acc. with ad), or legatos misit pacis petendae causā (gerundive genitive with causā).

Legatos misit ad pacem petendum (gerund acc. with ad), or legatos misit pacem petendi causā (gerund genitive with causa).

Legatos misit pacem petitum (supine after verb of motion).

Legatos misit pacem petitūros (future part. active expressing a purpose).

¹ A word like vix, scarcely, or a question expecting the answer No.

6. For et ne (following ut or a previous ne), nēve (or neu) is used : as, Hoc dico ut bono animo sit neve perturbetur, I say this that he may be of good courage and may not be disturbed; abibo ne eum videam neve audiam, I will go away that I may not see or hear him.

EXERCISE.

Translate into Latin :—

1. Caesar sends forward the soldiers of the tenth legion to seize the hill. 2. He ordered them not to go out of camp after sunset. 3. He begged him to spare the women and children. 4. He ordered them to open (laxare) the ranks that they might the more easily use their swords. 5. He was afraid that all the soldiers would desert him. 6. The Romans built forts to keep back the enemy. 7. They were afraid that they would be defeated. 8. I tell you this, that you may the more easily understand. 9. I do not know when they intend to set out. 10. He asked him not to bring a single soldier with him. 11. He persuaded them to set out with him. 12. Fearing that he would not be able to withstand the attack, he sent a despatch to Caesar. 13. He warned him to avoid all wrong-doing.

LESSON XCII.

ADVERBIAL CLAUSES OF RESULT.
UT CONSECUTIVE.

1. An adverbial clause is often used to express the result of what is described in the main clause. Such clauses are called consecutive clauses (consequor, overtake, attain). Thus, in the sentence, Such fear seized all, that the king himself fled, the clause introduced by that is a consecutive clause.

2. A consecutive clause is usually introduced by ut with the subjunctive (called ut-consecutive): as, Tantus timor omnes occupavit ut rex ipse fugerit, such fear seized all that the king himself fled; tam caecus fuit ut me non viderit, he was so blind that he did not see me.

Note 1.—The rule for the sequence of tenses (p. 178) does not apply in consecutive clauses. Of course the imperfect subjunctive will be used, but only if the meaning requires it. Thus: Tantus timor exercitum occupavit ut omnes perturbarentur, such fear seized the army that all were disturbed (incomplete continuous act).

Note 2.—That . . . not in a consecutive clause, is not ne (as in a final clause; p. 183), but ut non; so, too, ut nemo, ut nullus, ut nihil, are used for that no one, that no, and that nothing. See below.

3. Consecutive clauses are used after demonstrative words like talīs, such; tantus, so great; sic, ita, tam, so; adeo, to such a degree: as, Talīs erat ut nemo ei crederet, he was of such a character that no one believed him; tanta vis probitatis est ut eam in hoste diligamus, so great is the force of honesty that we love it even in an enemy; Tarquinius sic Servium diligebat ut is eius vulgo haberetur filius, Tarquin so loved Servius that the latter was commonly regarded as his son; Verres Siciliam per triennium ita vexavit ut ea restitui in antiquum statum nullo modo potuerit, Verres so harried Sicily for three years that it could not in any way be restored to its original condition; tam improbus fuit ut nihil eum unquam a scelere revocaverit, he was so wicked that nothing ever called him away from crime; hoc eum adeo terruit ut vix hodie prodire audeat, this so terrified him that he scarcely ventures (now) to go forth.

QUI CONSECUTIVE.

4. The relative qui (called qui-consecutive) is often used with the subjunctive to introduce a consecutive clause : as, Non is sum qui hoc faciam, I am not the one to do it (qui=ut ego, that I).

5. Qui consecutive is used in the following constructions :—

(a) With certain indefinite expressions, like sunt qui (there are some who), reperiuntur qui (there are found who), nemo est qui (there is no one who), quis est qui? (who is there who?), nihil est quod (there is nothing that) : as, Sunt qui putent nihil sibi litteris opus esse, there are some who think that they have no need of literature ; nihil est quod dicere velim, there is nothing that I wish to say.

(b) After dignus (worthy), indignus (unworthy), and idoneus or aptus (fit) : as, Dignus est qui ametur, he is worthy to be loved (=he deserves to be).

(c) After quam with a comparative : as, Maior est quam cui resisti possit, he is too great to be resisted (=greater than to whom it can be resisted).

Note.—Possum, I can, is used impersonally, only when joined with a passive infinitive.

6. Instead of qui non, quin with the subjunctive is often used : as, Nemo est quin sciat, there is no one who does not know.

So too, after dubito (doubt), nego (deny), ignōro (be ignorant), when joined with a negative or virtual negative,¹ that is expressed by quin (= qui ne, how not) : as, Negari non potest quin turpe sit fidem fallere, it cannot be denied that it is dishonorable to break one's word ; non dubitat quin animus sit immortalis, he does not doubt that the soul is immortal ; num quis ignorat quin haec vera sint? is anyone ignorant that this is the truth ?

Note.—Quis means any after si, nisi, ne, num, quo and quanto.

¹ Words like vix, scarcely, and questions that expect the answer No.

There is no one but believes that he was guilty of treachery. 13. There were some in the army who were willing to betray their country for gold. 14. Their deeds are too great to be told.

XCIII.

THE CONDITIONAL SENTENCE.

1. A conditional sentence contains (a) a main clause, (b) an adverbial clause stating the condition on which the statement of the main clause is, or would be, true : as, If he says this, he is wrong. The clause containing the condition is called the if-clause.

2. The common types of the conditional sentence are as follows :—

CONDITIONAL SENTENCES.

	IF-CLAUSE.	MAIN CLAUSE.
Indicative in both Clauses.	1. Si quis hæc dicit, If anyone says this,	errat, he is wrong.
	Si quis hæc dixit, If anyone said this,	erravit, he was wrong.
	2. Si quis hæc dicet (or dixerit), If any one says (literally, shall say or have said) this,	errabit. he will be wrong.
Subjunctive in both Clauses.	3. Si quis hæc dicat, If anyone were to (or should) say this,	erret, he would be wrong.
	4. Si quis hæc diceret, If anyone were saying this (now),	erraret, he would be wrong.
	5. Si quis hæc dixisset, If anyone had said this (in the past)	erravisset, he would have been wrong.

Note.—Instead of the English present, referring to the future (as in type 2), Latin uses the future, or—if the action of the verb in the if-clause is over before that of the main verb begins—the future-perfect.

3. Unless, or if not with the force of unless, in an if-clause, is nisi or ni: as, Nisi arma sumpsisses, delētus esses, unless you had taken up arms, you would have been destroyed; nisi medicus adesset, puer morēretur, if the doctor were not here, the boy would be dying. But when if not can not be turned into unless, it is expressed by si non : as, Cur mihi nocēs, si ego tibi non noceo? why do you harm me, if I do not harm you?

4. Any, after si or nisi, is quis : as, Si quis ita fecerit, poenas dabit, if anyone does so, he will be punished (literally, shall have done so).

5. Whether . . . or, introducing alternative conditions (i. e., with the force of if . . . or if), is expressed by sive (seu) . . . sive (seu) : as, Sive adfuisti sive abfuisti, nihil dico, whether you were present or absent, I say nothing.

Note.—Sive . . . sive must be carefully distinguished from utrum . . . an (p. 177, 5), introducing a dependent double question and used as the subject or object of a verb : as, Utrum velit an nolit rogo, I ask whether he is willing or unwilling.

6. But if, introducing a corrected condition is sin (=si+ne, if not); if not is si minus : as, Si rogas, respondeo; sin nihil rogas, taceo if you ask, I answer; but if you don't ask, I hold my peace; si haec fecerit, gaudebo; si minus, aequo animo feram, if he has done it, I shall be glad; if not, I shall bear it with patience.

EXERCISE.

Translate into English :—

1. Si roges, respondeam. 2. Si quid haberem, darem. 3. Si Metelli fidei diffisus essem, iudicem eum non retinuissem. 4. Nomen huius floris si scirem, eum pluris facerem. 5. Sive bene sive male facit, odio est. 6. Si ceteris satisfaciat, sibi satisfaciat. 7. Hoc si fecit, non ita acutus fuit. 8. Hoc si sciam, dicere non audeam. 9. Mihi si tu subvenies, gaudebo; si minus, non aegre feram. 10. Nisi auxilio venisses, de nobis actum esset. 11. Hoc si verum est, impetrabis; sin falsum, noli exspectare. 12. Frater tuus si adesset, tibi plauderet.

Translate into Latin :—

1. If you had not applauded, he would have been ashamed. 2. If the harvest is large, the country will be rich. 3. If you should come to our aid, all would be well; if not, it will be all over with us. 4. If he were unwilling, we would not go. 5. Whether he reads or writes, he wastes no time. 6. If you were to ask me that, I should answer nothing. 7. If they had not detained me, I should have been here sooner. 8. If they put this man at the head of the army, the country will be safe. 9. If you should be willing, he would be unwilling. 10. If he had not been a man of courage, he would not have refused. 11. If he leads his army over the Rhine, it is all over with them. 12. If anyone should say so, he would not be listened to by anyone.

LESSON XCIV.

CLASSIFICATION OF CONDITIONAL SENTENCES.

Exception to the Rules.

1. The common types of the conditional sentence are easily learned with a little attention and practice. They are classified as follows :—

Conditional sentences are divided into three classes :

I. SIMPLE PRESENT AND PAST CONDITIONS.

This class will be easily recognized when the second and third classes are known. It includes all conditional sentences in which nothing is implied as to the fulfilment of the condition. It has the indicative in both clauses : as, Pecuniam si habet, dat, if he has money, he gives it; pecuniam si habuit, dedit, if he had money, he gave it.

Note.—Si rarely stands at the head of the sentence. Hence the common use of quodsi for si at the head of a si-clause.

II. FUTURE CONDITIONS.

This class includes conditional sentences in which the fulfilment of the condition is referred to the future. Of these there are two types :—

(a) Where the condition is regarded as likely to be fulfilled : as, Pecuniam si habebit, dabit, if he has (old English, shall have) money, he will give it.

Here the fut. indic. is used in both clauses. But the fut. perf. is used in the if-clause when the action of the verb of that clause is to be represented as over before that of the main verb begins: as, Hoc si fecerit, morietur, if he does this, he shall die (literally, shall have done).

(b) Where the condition is regarded as unlikely to be fulfilled. Such sentences have in English would or should in the main clause: as, Pecuniam si habeat, det, if he should have money, he would give it.

Here the present subjunctive is used in both clauses.

III. CONDITIONS CONTRARY TO FACT.

This class includes all conditional sentences in which the condition is represented as not fulfilled. Of these also there are two types:—

(a) Where the condition is referred to the present. These have in English the word now (expressed or understood) in both clauses: as, Pecuniam si habēret, daret, if he had money (now), he would give it.

Here the imperfect subjunctive is used in both clauses.

(b) Where the condition is referred to the past. This type has in English would have in the main clause: as, Pecuniam si habuisset, dedisset, if he had had money, he would have given it.

Here the pluperfect subjunctive is used in both clauses.

Note 1.—In sentences of Class III., the if-clause may refer to the past, while the main clause refers to the present, or vice versa: as, Illi si haec fecissent, viverent, if they had done this, they would now be alive.

Note 2.—The first type of Class III. is also used of past time to express continuous action: as, Haec si sentirent, sapientes essent, if they had held these views, they would have been wise.

2. One important exception to the regular rules for conditional sentences must be noted. It is as follows:—

The indicative, and not the subjunctive, is used in the main clause of the conditional sentence when the verb of that clause is—

(a) In the periphrastic conjugation active or passive (p. 172, 174).

(b) Possum, I can; debeo, I ought; oportet, it is needful: as, Ni litteras misisset, agros relicturi erant, if he had not sent the letter, they would have left their lands; consilia si processissent, interficiendus fuit, if the plans had succeeded, he would have been put to death; totus exercitus deleri potuit, si persecuti essent victores, the whole army might have been destroyed, if the victors had followed up.

3. Provided that is expressed by dum, by mōdo, or by dummodo, all with the subjunctive (with nē for non in negative clauses): as, Oderint dum metuant, let them hate provided that they fear; veniant dum ne maneant, let them come, provided that they do not remain.

EXERCISE.

Translate into English :—

1. Iterum si experiri volunt, ego iterum paratus sum decertare. 2. Catilina si in urbe mansisset, nunquam nos rempublicam liberavissemus. 3. Helvetii si Allobrogibus satisfaciant, pacem cum iis faciam. 4. Servi mei si me metuerent, domum meam relinquendam esse putarem. 5. Manent ingenia senibus, modo permaneat industria. 6. Magno me metu liberabis, dummodo inter me atque te murus intersit. 7. Haec si tecum patria loquatur, impetrare debet. 8. Multi omnia recta atque honesta negligunt, dummodo potentiam consequantur. 9. Si certior factus essem in quo periculo esses, ad te advolassem. 10. Galli aequo animo omnes belli patiuntur iniurias, dummodo repellant periculum servitutis. 11. Neque hostem sustinere poterant, ni cohortes se obiecissent. 12. Nisi discedes, ego te hostem habebō. 13. Si te interfecero, ego gratiam multis faciam.

Translate into Latin :—

1. I shall carry on war against the Gauls, provided I can collect two legions. 2. If you should conquer the enemy in battle, they would not obey you. 3. If that consul were living, he would keep off the attack of this enemy. 4. The power of Karthage would not have fallen so easily, if we had not conquered her with our fleet. 5. Provided he does not carry on war against that state, we will aid him with all our forces. 6. If he had been here, he would have helped me. 7. If they make an attack upon this town, they will take it. 8. If you do not give up the hostages, I shall regard you as enemies. 9. Provided you ward off this danger, we shall consider you a friend. 10. If you had wished to take this town, you should have collected more forces. 11. The man would have died, if we had not aided him. 12. If the rest were killed, would you escape? (use act. periphr. conjugation.) 13. If he had been the same as before, I could have touched his heart.

LESSON XCV.

COMPARATIVE AND CONCESSIVE CLAUSES.

1. A comparative adverbial clause expresses agreement (or the opposite) with the statement of the main clause : as, Ut sementem fēcēris, ita mētes, you shall reap according as you do (lit., shall have done) your seeding.

Here the clause introduced by ut is an adverbial comparative clause.

2. Comparative clauses fall into two classes :—

(a) Where the comparison is stated as a fact: as, Omnia, sicut acta sunt, memoravit, he has narrated everything just as it was done.

(b) Where the comparison is stated as a mere supposition: as, Honores petunt quasi honeste vixerint, they seek office, as if they have lived honorably (=while they have not).

The first class takes the indicative ; the second, the subjunctive.

3. The following are the common comparative conjunctions that are usually joined with the subjunctive : Tanquam, or tanquam si, quasi, velut, or velut si, as if: as, Tanquam hoc difficile sit, as if this were hard; velut si Asia sit clausa, sic nihil perfertur ad nos just as if Asia were closed, no news reaches us.

4. The English the....the with two comparatives, is expressed in Latin in two ways : -

(a) By quo....eo (or quanto....tanto) with two comparatives: as, Quo (or quanto) quisque est melior, eo (or tanto) difficilior susplicatur, the better a man is, the more difficulty he has in suspecting.

(b) By ut quisque....ita with two superlatives : as, Ut quisque vir optimus est, ita difficillime suspicatur, the better a man is, &c.

Note.-- This might also be translated : In proportion to a man's goodness, &c., or, In proportion as a man is good, &c.

CONCESSIVE CLAUSES.

5. Concessive adverbial clauses are those that make some concession, in spite of which the statement of the main clause is true. They are usually introduced in English by although : as, Romani, quamquam proelio fessi erant, tamen procedunt, the Romans, although they were weary with fighting, nevertheless advance.

6. Concessive clauses, when they state a fact, take the indicative ; when they state a supposition, the subjunctive : as, Caesar, quamquam nondum eorum consilia cognoverat, tamen suspicabatur, though Caesar had not as yet discovered their plans, he nevertheless was suspicious ; etsi falso in suspicionem venisses, tamen mihi ignoscere debuisti, although you had been falsely suspected, still you should have pardoned me (in suspicionem venire = the passive of suspicor, I suspect).

7. The following are the common concessive conjunctions, and the moods with which they are used : Quamquam (though), and utut (however), with indicative ; licet, quamvis (lit, as you wish), ut, quum (all meaning although), with subjunctive ; etsi, etiamsi, tametsi (although, even if)—all compounds of si, and following the same rules for mood.

Note.— Quamvis is also used as an adverb : as, Ille, quamvis facētus, odio est, he, however witty, is hated (or whatever his wit) ; (odio esse, to be for an object of hate, is the passive of odi, I hate).

8. The relative qui with the subjunctive is often used concessively. It is called qui concessive : as, Caesar, qui haec vidēret, tamen aciem instruxit, though Caesar saw this, still he drew up his line.

EXERCISE.

Translate into English :—

1. Etsi maturae sunt hiemes, tamen in Britanniam contendit.
2. Quamquam crebro audiebat Labienum ab inimicis suis sollicitari, tamen non credidit.
3. Senectus, quamvis non sit gravis, tamen aufert viriditatem.
4. Quamquam premebantur, tamen omnia fortissimo sustinebant animo.
5. Nonne impetrare debent, etiamsi adhiberi vim non possit?
6. Quamquam Germanos diutius in Gallia versari Galli voluerant, tamen populi Romani exercitum hiemare in Gallia moleste ferebant.
7. Non igitur potestas est conservandae reipublicae, quamvis ea prematur periculo.
8. Hannibal, ex quo die dux est declaratus, velut Italia sibi provincia decreta esset, nobis inferre bellum statuit.
9. Illa superiora, quamquam ferenda non fuerunt, tamen, ut potui, tuli.
10. Quanto erat in dies gravior oppugnatio, tanto crebriores litterae ad Caesarem mittebantur.
11. Ut meritis est, ita poenam persolvit.
12. Senatum metus cepit velut si ad portas hostes essent.
13. Caesar, etsi prope exacta aestas erat, tamen eo exercitum duxit.
14. Tibi adero ego, licet amicus tuus absit.

Translate into Latin :—

1. Though the Germans were of great bravery, still they were often defeated by the Romans in battle.
2. All the citizens were terrified just as though the enemy were-at (adesse) the gates.
3. The battle was fought as the general had directed.
4. Whatever is disgraceful, even though it may be concealed, can in no way be honorable.
5. Life, however short, can always be useful.
6. You speak as though the enemy would conquer.
7. Though ambition is a vice, it is often the cause of virtues.
8. Though the summer had ended, Caesar collected a large number of ships.
9. The bolder the Romans were, the more timid the enemy became.
10. Though their general did not conquer me, still his valor must be praised.
11. Though Caesar had only one legion, still he hastened to set out.
12. He acted otherwise than (aliter quam) he ought to have done.
13. Though they were the bravest in Gaul, they were not equal to the Romans in valor.

LESSON XCVI.

CAUSAL CLAUSES.—QUOD, QUIA, QUONIAM (BECAUSE).

1. Causal adverbial clauses state the cause or reason for the fact mentioned in the main clause. In English they are usually introduced by because : as, Tacent quia periculum metuunt, they are silent because they fear danger.

2. Causal clauses are usually introduced by quod, quia, because, quoniam (= quum iam, since now), seeing that.

They are followed by the indicative when the reason they introduce is given on the speaker's own authority ; they are followed by the subjunctive when the reason they introduce is given on the authority of another : as, Patriā expulsus est quia iustus erat, he was banished because he was just (esset would mean that this was the reason usually given, for the truth of which, however, the speaker would not vouch) ; Socrates accusatus est quod corrumpere inventutem, Socrates was accused because (as was alleged) he was corrupting the young men (corrumpere would mean that the speaker vouched for the truth of the charge).

Note.—This quod is common after queror (complain), laudo (praise), gaudeo (be glad), doleo (be sorry).

3. Quum (cum), in the sense of since, is often used to introduce a causal clause : as, Haec quum ita sint, abibo, as this is so, I will go away.

4. The relative qui (called qui causal) is often used with the subjunctive to introduce a causal clause : as, Pecasse videor qui a te discesserim, it seems I have done wrong, inasmuch as I have parted from you (peccasse = peccavisse).

Note.—In this sense, qui is often strengthened by the addition of quippe or utpote, indeed, as being : as, Multa de me questus est quippe qui in me incensus est, he complained at length of me, inasmuch as he had been exasperated against me.

5. Qui causal is very commonly found after exclamations: as, Me miserum, qui haec fecerim, wretch that I am for doing this!

Note.—The accusative case is often used in exclamations. It is called the accusative of exclamation.

6. Non quod, or non quo, with the subjunctive, is often used to introduce a rejected reason: as, Hoc laudo non quod honestum sit, sed quod utile est, I praise this, not because it is honorable but because it is expedient; de consilio meo non scripsi, non quo celandum esset sed quia, &c., I did not write you about my plan, not because it required to be concealed but because, &c. So too: non quin, not but that: as, Non quin me ames sed quod abire cupio, not but that you love me, but because I am anxious to go.

EXERCISE.

Translate into English:—

1. Aedui, cum se defendere non possent, legatos ad Caesarem mittunt. 2. Quae cum ita sint, vestra tecta defendite. 3. Itaque quoniam ipse pro se dicere non posset, verba facit frater eius. 4. O terram beatam, quae hunc virum exceperit. 5. Aedui legatos miserunt questum quod Harudes agros suos popularentur. 6. Quoniam iam nox est, in vestra tecta discedite. 7. O praeclarum diem, cum in illud divinorum animorum concilium proficiscar. 8. Caesar Aeduos frumentum flagitabat quod magnā inopiā urgebatur. 9. Quoniam supplicatio decreta est, celebrate illos dies. 10. Nonne Aristides expulsus est patriā, quod iustus esset? 11. Romani quia consules ad id tempus prospere gererent, minus his cladibus commovebantur. 12. Quoniam res ita se habet, in urbem redeamus. 13. Succenseo tibi, quia lucrum amicitiae anteposuisti.

Translate into Latin:—

1. It is a very easy matter, since we surpass all in valor, to obtain the sovereignty of all Gaul. 2. Since they were not able to withstand our attack, they betook themselves to the baggage and the waggons. 3. O wretched man! inasmuch as you have been expelled from your native land by ungrateful citizens. 4. The Helvetii sent ambassadors to him, since they knew that he had crossed the river with all his forces. 5. The soldiers were glad because they had retaken the camp which they had lost a few days before. 6. They rejoiced because they were going to assault a town in which there was so large an amount of booty. 7. Since they had no hope that the city could be defended, they resolved to withdraw into the citadel. 8. He was always very poor though he might have been (use licet) very rich. 9. The soldiers were compelled to leave their baggage on this side of the river, because the enemy were following them. 10. Since we must advance against the enemy, arouse your courage, comrades. 11. The Helvetii sent ambassadors to say that they would come to the council on the next day. 12. O! wretched man, since you have lost the opportunity of saving the state. 13. Since this is so, let us arm ourselves against the enemy.

LESSON XCVII.

TEMPORAL CLAUSES.

Postquam. Dum. Priusquam.

1. Temporal adverbial clauses define the time of the action of the main verb : as, Haec feci dum potui, I did this while I could. Here the clause dum potui is temporal, limiting the main verb feci.

POSTQUAM.

2. Temporal conjunctions meaning after that, like postquam, simul, simul ac (or, before a vowel, atque), ubi, ut (primum), quum primum, are followed by the indicative : as, Simul atque haec audivit, abiit, after he had heard this, he went away.

Note.—The perfect is used after these conjunctions for the English pluperfect.

Postquam id animadvertit, copias suas Caesar in proximum collem subducit, after he had noticed this, Caesar withdraws his forces to the nearest hill; ubi se paratos esse arbitrati sunt, oppida incendunt, when they thought they were ready, they set fire to the towns; ea res ut Helvetiis nuntiata est, eum causam dicere coegērunt, when this fact was reported to the Helvetii, they compelled him to plead his cause; nostri, simul in arido constitērunt, impetum fecērunt, our men, as soon as they had set foot on dry land, made an attack.

DUM.

3. Temporal conjunctions meaning while or until, like dum, donec, quoad, take the indicative when they mean while, as long as: as, Dum ea Romani parant, iam oppidum oppugnabatur, while the Romans were making these preparations, the town was already being besieged.

Note.—When the time expressed by the dum-clause includes the time of the action of the main verb, the present tense is used in Latin instead of the English past.

4. Dum, donec, quoad, meaning until, take the indicative when used to express time alone: as, Hoc feci dum mihi licuit, I did this as long as it was allowed me; dum rediit Marcellus, silentium fuit, there was silence until Marcellus returned; Milo in senatu fuit eo die quoad senatus dimissus est, Milo was in the senate on that day, until the senate was dismissed.

But when they express some further idea of purpose or expectation, they require the subjunctive: as, Dum naves convenirent expectavit, he waited till the ships should assemble (i.e., in order that they might assemble); differant dum ira defervescat, let them put off till their anger cools (i.e., in order that their anger may cool; impetum hostium sustinuit quoad ceteri pontem interrumperent, he withstood the attack of the enemy till the rest should break down the bridge (i.e., that they might break down the bridge.)

PRIUSQUAM.

5. Temporal conjunctions meaning before that, like priusquam and antequam, take the indicative when they mark simple priority in time: as, Priusquam lucet adsunt, they are here before it is light; filios convocavit antequam mortuus est, he called together his sons before he died.

They take the subjunctive, however, when used to express some further idea of intention or of a prevented result: as, Priusquam pugnaretur nox intervenit, night came on before the battle was fought (result prevented); priusquam se hostes ex terrore recipere ent, in fines eorum exercitum duxit, before the army recovered from their panic, he led his army into their territory (intention).

Note.—Antequam and priusquam are often written in two words: as, Antērorat quam pluit, it drops before it rains.

6. For dum, meaning provided that, see page 194, 3.

EXERCISE.

Give the principal parts of: video, iubeo, duco, interficio, moror, desisto.

Translate into English:—

1. Obsidio per paucos dies magis quam oppugnatio fuit, dum vulnus ducis curaretur. 2. Antequam huic respondebo, de me pauca dicam. 3. Expectate dum consul fiat. 4. Ut equitatum suum pulsum vidit, acie excessit. 5. Simul ac signa nostra videntur, portas aperuerunt. 6. Priusquam quidquam conaretur, Divitiacum ad se vocari iubet. 7. Antequam de meo adventu audire potuissent, in Macedoniam perveni. 8. Postquam copias hostium venire vidit, flumen exercitum transducere maturavit. 9. Dum ea geruntur, ii qui pro portis castrorum erant, Caesari id nuntiaverunt. 10. Ipse interea, quoad legiones collocatas cognovisset, in Gallia morari constituit. 11. Non ante finitum est proelium quam ille interfectus est. 12. Dum reliquae naves eo convenirent expectavit. 13. Nec prius fugere destiterunt quam ad flumen Rhenum pervenerunt. 14. Ipse, equo vulnerato, quoad potuit, fortissime restitit.

Translate into Latin:—

1. When the Helvetii had been informed of his arrival, they sent ambassadors to him. 2. After he had learned these facts, he convoked an assembly. 3. As soon as they had recovered from their flight, they sent envoys concerning peace. 4. In order that he might learn these things before he made the attempt, he sent forward his lieutenant with a ship of war. 5. While he was delaying a few days near Vesontio, a panic seized the army. 6. They begged Caesar to send them aid before the king should collect a force. 7. The ambassador did not depart until he had seen us embark. 8. Every thing was done before he reached Italy. 9. Nor did we cease the pursuit (say make an end of pursuing) until they reached their ships. 10. Before I return to Rome, I shall go to Athens. 11. He came to our camp before the Germans could learn what was being done. 12. Nor were they sure till we were close to their camp. 13. He was not deterred by fear of punishment from speaking the truth.

LESSON XCVIII.

TEMPORAL CLAUSES—(Continued).

Syntax of Quum (when, since).

1. Quum (cum) causal (i.e., meaning since), as has been shown (p. 198, 4), requires the subjunctive : as, Quae quum ita sint, Catilina, perge quo coepisti, as this is so, Catiline, go on as you have begun.

2. Quum simply expressing contemporaneous time (called quum temporal) takes the indicative : as, Quum Caesar in Galliam venit, alterius factionis principes erant Aedui, when Caesar came into Gaul, the Aedui were the leaders of the one party; quum verba faciunt, maiores extollunt, when they speak they extol their ancestors; nondum profectus erat quum haec gerebantur, he had not yet departed when these things were taking place.

In these sentences, quum is a relative adverb corresponding to a suppressed correlative tum in the main clause.

3. But when used with the imperfect or pluperfect tense, quum usually takes the subjunctive, even when no idea of cause is implied : as, Decessit Agesilāus quum in portum venisset, Agesilaus died when he had entered the harbor.

Note.—Quum with the imperfect or pluperfect subjunctive, is a common substitute for the perf. part. active, which is wanting in Latin : as, Quum haec dixisset, abiit, having spoken these words, he departed. There are, therefore, four substitutes for the perf. part. active :—

- (a) Quum + imperf. or pluperf. (b) Postquam + perf. indic. subj.
 (c) The ablative absolute. (d) The perf. part. of a synonymous deponent.

Thus : Having spoken these words, is :—

- (a) Quum haec dixisset. (b) Postquam haec dixit.
 (c) His dictis (= these things said). (d) Haec locutus.

4. Quum is often used for quoties, as often as, whenever : as, Quum impetum fecerant, hostes cedere cogeabantur, whenever they made a charge, the enemy were forced to retire; quum rosam vidi, tum ver esse arbitror, whenever I see the rose, then I judge that it is spring.

Note.—In this sense, quum takes the perfect for the English present, and the pluperfect for the English past.

5. Quum with the subjunctive, sometimes has a concessive force, meaning although : as, Pylādes quum sis, dices te esse Orestem, though you are Pylades, you will say you are Orestes.

Note.—This meaning of quum may be used to translate the English instead of : as, Quum dicere deberet, conticuit, instead of speaking, he held his peace (literally, when he ought to have spoken).

EXERCISE.

Translate into English :—

1. Caesari quum id nuntiatum esset, maturat ab urbe proficisci
2. Helvetii quum de eius adventu certiores facti sunt, legatos ad eum mittunt.

menter eos incusat. 10. Utrum legat necne nescio. 11. Quum civitas armis ius suum exsequi conaretur, Orgetorix mortuus est. 12. Haec quum flens a Caesare peteret, Caesar eius dextram prendit. 13. Eo postquam Caesar pervenit, obsides, arma, servos, poposcit.

Translate into Latin :—

1. When he had enquired of (ex) the scouts what tribes were in arms, he learned the truth. 2. When Caesar came to those towns, he demanded arms and hostages of them. 3. When the ships were approaching Britain, a violent storm arose. 4. As soon as they recovered from their dismay, they sent envoys to-sue-for (de) peace. 5. When the enemy were advancing on our camp, our soldiers made a sally. 6. Scipio, fearing (pf. part.) that he would lose the town, led out his soldiers in battle array. 7. When I was trying to expel him from the city, I had another object in view (use aliud agere, drive at another thing). 8. He asked whether Caesar came to the Senate on that day or not. 9. I asked him whether he lived at Rome or Athens. 10. It is a question (quaeritur) whether there is one world or more. 11. While the Senate was preparing to make war on Caesar, he marched unexpectedly against them. 12. Since this is so, I shall wait till you come. 13. Caesar having perceived that the enemy were near, led his forces to the nearest hill.

LESSON XCIX.

INDIRECT (OR OBLIQUE) NARRATION.

1. A statement depending on a verb of saying, thinking, perceiving, knowing, or the like, is said to be in indirect or oblique narration.

Thus, in Dixit se civem Romanum esse, he said that he was a Roman citizen, the words se civem Romanum esse are in indirect narration. The actual words used were, Civis Romanus sum, I am a Roman citizen; these are said to be in direct narration.

¹The term oblique narration is sometimes limited so as to apply only to reported speeches. It is more convenient to use it in the wider sense.

2. The main verb of direct narration becomes infinitive in indirect narration, and the subject of direct narration becomes accusative before the infinitive (p. 109). The tense of the infinitive will be present, perfect, or future, according as the tense of the actual words was present, perfect, or future. Thus :—

DIRECT.

Civis Romanus sum.

I am a Roman citizen.

Civis Romanus ero.

I shall be a Roman citizen.

Civis Romanus eram (or fui).

I was (or have been) a Roman citizen.

INDIRECT.

Dixit se civem Romanum esse.

He said that he was a Roman citizen.

Dixit se civem Romanum futurum esse (or fore.)

He said that he should be a Roman citizen.

Dixit se civem Romanum fuisse.

He said that he was (or had been) a Roman citizen.

Note.—After verbs meaning to hope or promise, the future infinitive is used instead of the English present infinitive : as, Promisit se venturum esse, he promised to come.

3. To determine the tense of the infinitive in indirect narration, it is best to find the tense of the main verb in direct narration ; the tense of the main verb in direct narration is the tense of the infinitive in indirect narration. Thus, in Caesar said that he had written, the direct narration is I have written, scripsi ; the indirect, therefore, is Caesar dixit se scripsisse ; he said that he was an orator, dixit se oratorem esse (direct = orator sum).

Note.—Pronouns of the 1st or 2nd person become pronouns of the 3rd person in reporting speeches in indirect narration.

4. All adjectival and adverbial clauses in indirect narration must have the subjunctive : as, Dixit se eos quos cepisset domum misisse, he said that he had sent home those whom he had taken (direct = eos quos cepi domum misi, I have sent home those whom I have taken) ; dixit se, quoties potuisset, rediisse he said that he had returned as often as he could (direct = redii quoties potui, I have returned as often as I could).

Note 1.—In accordance with the rule for the sequence of tenses

(p. 178), the verb of the dependent adjectival or adverbial clause will be in the impf. or plupf. subjunctive in indirect narration after a secondary tense.

Note 2.—A subordinate clause, when inserted in a passage in indirect narration on the authority of the writer or reporter, takes the indicative : as, Certior factus est id agi ut pons, quem ille in Hellesponto fecerat, dissolveretur, he was informed that this was intended, i.e., to break down the bridge which he (Xerxes) had built over the Hellespont (here the clause quem ... fecerat has the indicative, because the writer vouches for the truth of the statement himself). (Note.—Id agere=to aim at this).

5. The imperative of direct narration is put in the subjunctive in indirect narration (after a secondary tense, in the impf. subjunctive) : as, Ne cunctarentur, let them not delay (he said) (direct=ne cunctamini, do not delay).

6. Questions that expect an answer are put in the subjunctive in indirect narration ; rhetorical questions (exclamations and appeals), in the infinitive : as, (Scriptis) quid de praeda faciendum esse censerent? (he wrote) what did they think should be done with regard to the booty? (direct=quid....censetis? what do you think?); quid esse turpius? cur eos dubitare? what was more dishonorable? why did they hesitate? (direct=quid est turpius? cur dubitatis? what is more dishonorable? why do you hesitate?)

7. A fut.-perf. indicative in a dependent clause in direct narration, becomes, in indirect, perf. subj. after a primary tense and pluperf. subj. after a secondary : as, Dicit eum qui id fecerit, poenas daturum esse, he says that the one who does (literally, shall have done) this, shall be punished; dixit eum qui id fecisset, poenas daturum esse, he said that the one who did that, should be punished.

8. Oblique narration is often suddenly introduced into the narrative by the historians, without the governing verb of saying being expressed : as, Regulus reddi captivos negavit esse utile : illos enim bonos duces esse, Regulus denied that it was expedient that the captives should be restored : that they were good leaders.

9. I say . . . not, in Latin is nego, which, owing to the tendency in Latin to put the negative forward in the sentence, is usually put first : as Negabat se praemium ullum accepturum, he said that he would not accept any reward. (Note.—Esse with a participle is often dropped in indirect narration).

EXERCISE.

Translate into English :—

1. Omnia quae iussissent parata esse scripsit. 2. Nihil temere esse agendum existimabant ; quid enim levius esse quam, auctore hoste, capere consilium? 3. Eos cur tam sero venissent rogavit : quam diu eos servituros esse? 4. Dixit se domum eos quibus pepercisset dimisisse. 5. Dixit iis qui philosophiam vituperarent, satis responsum esse. 6. Negabant se eos, qui semper paravissent seditionem, coercere posse. 7. Num dixit se mansurum esse dum imperator adveniret? 8. Negabat se scire quo verteretur. 9. Clamavit se quantum potuisset, eius praecepta observaturum ; fidem praestaret. 10. Caesar certior factus est ex ea parte, quam Gallis concesserat, omnes noctu discessisse. 11. Nuntiatum est eos omnia facere quae vellet. 12. Negavit caecos videre.

Translate into Latin (using oblique narration) :—

1. He said that he had given them the books they asked for. 2. He wrote that the camp they had fortified was three miles from Rome. 3. Let them remember, he said, what he had told them. 4. Let them not forget the kindness they had received. When would they see such friends again? 5. Let them not accept favors from an enemy. 6. Had they not enjoyed peace under Caesar's rule? 7. He said that he had not sold his house? 8. He said that his house had been sold for as much as he gave for it. 9. Why did they live, he said, when they could not maintain their freedom? 10. They said that he used to groan as often as he saw his son (p. 204, 4). 11. Do not think I am angry with those I love. 12. I was told that he used to say that life was very short.

LESSON C.

SUMMARY OF RULES FOR TURNING DIRECT INTO OBLIQUE NARRATION.

The Conditional Sentence in Oblique Narration.

1. The following is a summary of the rules already given for turning direct into oblique narration :—

(1) The main verb of direct narration becomes infinitive in indirect narration.

(2) All adjectival and adverbial clauses take the subjunctive in indirect narration.

(3) Pronouns of the 1st and 2nd person usually become pronouns of the 3rd person. E.g. :—

ego, nos	become	se
meus, noster	“	suus
tu, vos	“	ille, illi
tuus, vester	“	illius, illorum
hic, iste	“	ille, is

(4) Adverbs of present time become (after a secondary tense) adverbs of past time. E.g. :—

nunc	becomes	iam, tunc.
heri (yesterday)	“	pridie (the day before).
hodie (to-day)	“	illo die (that day).
cras (to-morrow)	“	postridie (next day).

So :—hic (here) becomes ibi (there).

(5) Imperatives become subjunctives (usually imperf. subjunctives).

(6) Rhetorical questions are expressed by the accusative and infinitive ; questions that expect an answer, by the subjunctive.

(7) A future-perfect used in a dependent clause for the English present, becomes perfect subjunctive after a primary, and pluperfect subjunctive after a secondary tense.

CONDITIONAL SENTENCE IN OBLIQUE NARRATION.

2. These rules may now be applied to turning the common types of the conditional sentence into oblique narration. The verb of the main clause becomes acc. with inf., and the verb of the if-clause subjunctive, as follows :—

DIRECT.	OBLIQUE.
1. Pecuniam si habet, dat, becomes If he has money, he gives it. Pecuniam si habuit, dedit “ (or dabat), If he had money, he gave it.	Dicit se, si pecuniam habeat, dare, He says that if he has money, he gives it. Dicit se, si pecuniam habuerit, dedisse, He says that if he had money, he gave it.
2. (a) Pecuniam si habebit (or habuerit), dabit, If he has money, he will give it.	“ Dicit se, si pecuniam habeat (or habuerit), daturum esse, He says that if he has money, he will give it.
(b) Pecuniam si habeat, det, If he should have money, he would give it.	“ Dicit se, si pecuniam habeat, daturum esse, He says that if he should have money, he would give it.
3. (a) Pecuniam si haberet, daret, If he had money (now), he would give it.	“ Dicit se, si pecuniam haberet, daturum fuisse, He says that if he had money (now), he would give it.
(b) Pecuniam si habuisset, dedisset, If he had had money, he would have given it.	“ Dicit se, si pecuniam habuisset, daturum fuisse, He says that if he had had money, he would have given it.

Note 1.—The future (habebit), in the if-clause of direct narration becomes present subjunctive (habeat) in the indirect after a primary tense.

Note 2.—The present subjunctive (det), in the main clause becomes future infinitive (daturum esse) in indirect narration.

Note 3.—The imperfect and pluperfect subjunctive in the main clause (daret and dedisset), are expressed in indirect narration by the future participle and fuisse (daturum fuisse, i.e., to have been about to give).

3. After a secondary tense the verb of the if-clause is changed in accordance with the rule for the sequence of tenses (p. 178).

Thus :—

DIRECT.	OBLIQUE.
1. Si pecuniam habet, dat, becomes	Dixit se, si pecuniam haberet, dare.
Si pecuniam habuit, dedit (or dabat),	Dixit se, si pecuniam habuisset, dedisse.
2. (a) Si pecuniam habebit (or habuerit), dabit,	Dixit se, si pecuniam haberet (or habuisset), daturum esse.
(b) Si pecuniam habeat, det,	Dixit se, si pecuniam haberet, daturum esse.
3. (a) Si pecuniam haberet, daret,	Dixit se, si pecuniam haberet, daturum fuisse.
(b) Si pecuniam habuisset, dedisset,	Dixit se, si pecuniam habuisset, daturum fuisse.

Note.—The future-perfect in the if-clause of direct narration, becomes pluperfect subjunctive in oblique.

EXERCISE.

Translate into English :—

1. Dicit se, si illi id fecerint, gratiam habiturum esse. 2. Promisit se, si adesset, locuturum esse. 3. Dixit eum, si adesset, aliter sensurum esse. 4. Negavit se, si Metelli fidei diffisus esset, iudicem eum retenturum fuisse. 5. Negavit se, si ille id rogavisset, responsurum fuisse. 6. Dixit eos, si sibi parerent, urbem capturos esse. 7. Dicebant eum, si sapientior esset, meliorem fore (futurum esse). 8. Quid diceret Cicero, si viveret? 9. Imperatori si paruisset, viveret. 10. Dixit eum, si imperatori paruisset, victurum fuisse. 11. Negabat se, nisi vidisset, crediturum fuisse. 12. Dixit se eos, si conarentur, prohibiturum esse.

Translate into Latin :—

1. They said that if Caesar came, it would be all over with their army. 2. It is clear that if Nero had lived, they would have made war on Rome. 3. He answered that unless they withdrew then, he would regard them as enemies. 4. He told them that if they wished to enjoy peace, he must be obeyed. 5. They said that it was of no importance to them whether he stayed or went. 6. They asked if the man had gone to Rome. 7. It was clear that if he did it, he would be punished. 8. They said that if he were there, he would help them. 9. Whether you remain or go, you will be punished. 10. Don't you think that if he were here, all would be well? 11. O! that I had seen what I ought to do. 12. He said that if he were general, he would give no quarter (use parco).

LESSON CI.

OBLIQUE NARRATION—(Continued).

The rules given in the last lesson may be applied to turning passages from Caesar or Livy from direct into indirect narration, or vice versa, as is done in the following passages :—

A.

Helvetian Envoys Address Caesar.

For if they had felt conscious in their minds (lit., to themselves) of any wrongdoing, it was not hard to take precautions; but they were deceived by this fact, i.e., that they were not aware that ought had been done by them to justify their being afraid, and that they thought they should not feel fear without reason. But if I am willing to forget the old affront, can I lay aside the recollection of recent injuries also?

But if he were willing to forget the old affront, could he lay aside the recollection of recent injuries also ?

Note.—These passages should be translated and re-translated until the rules of oblique narration are perfectly familiar.

EXERCISE.

Translate into English, and turn into Latin indirect narration after dixit:—

1. Quis sim, inquit, scies ex hoc quem ad te misi ; curā ut vir sis et cogita in quem locum sis progressus ; vide quid iam tibi sit necesse et cura ut omnium tibi auxilia adiungas, etiam infimorum. 2. Veniam ipse, si potero, quamquam hodie aegroto ; si minus, veniet frater qui decem millia passuum abest ; vincendum est nobis aut moriendum. 3. Aedui obsides non reddent neque eis bellum inferent, si stipendium quotannis pendent. 4. Quod si praeterea nemo sequetur, cum sola decima legione ibo. 5. Unde venis ? quid vis ? quid facturus es ? finem fac. 6. Mihi haec res curae erit ; volo de his rebus tecum agere. 7. Mons quem a Labieno teneri voluerit, ab hoste tenetur. 8. Hoc die in eos, qui oram maritimam incolunt, profecturus sum. 9. Neque credo neque credidi neque credam. 10. Si quid a me vultis, ab armis discedite. 11. Si obsides a vobis mihi dabuntur, vobiscum pacem faciam. 12. Helvetii a maioribus ita instituti sunt ut obsides accipere, non dare, consueverint.

LESSON CII.

NOTES ON THE TENSES.

1. The present indicative of the Latin verb represents both the indefinite, the progressive, and the emphatic form of the English verb. Thus, amo is either I love (indef.), I am loving (progressive), or I do love (emphatic).

2. The present indicative is used idiomatically :

(a) In narration, for the present : as, Continuo milites Melitam mittit, he immediately despatches men to Malta.

(b) With adverbs of past time, for the English present-perfect (perfect with have) : as, Hoc iamdūdum (or iampridem) facio, I have been doing this for a long time.

Note.—The imperfect will, of course, be used for the English pluperfect : as, Iampridem sperabam, I had long been hoping.

(c) With dum (while), for the English past ; see p. 201, 3.

3. The imperfect represents an action as continued or repeated in past time : as, Scribēbam, I was writing; consilium mutavit: videbat enim nihil confici posse, he altered his plan, for he saw that nothing could be done (imperfect of continuous action); haec pueri discebamus, we used to learn this as boys (imperfect of repeated or habitual action).

Note 1.—The Latin imperfect is often translated by the English used to, began to, tried to.

Note 2.—In the historians, the present infinitive is often used instead of the imperfect indicative, when a series of actions is described: as, Omnes clamare, all kept crying out; Caesar quotidie eos frumentum flagitare, Caesar kept daily importuning them for corn. This is called the historic infinitive.

4. In writing letters, the Latins adapted the tenses to the time at which the letter would be read : as, Neque cum haec scribebam nescius eram, I am not ignorant when I write (literally, I was not ignorant, when I was writing).

FÖRE UT.

5. Many verbs have no supine and, therefore, no future infinitive (active or passive), which is formed from the supine. Such verbs form their future infinitive by means of före or futurum esse (to be about to be), and ut with the subjunctive : as, Dicunt fore ut haec poscant, they say that they will demand these things; dixerunt fore ut ea poscerentur, they said that these things would be demanded (imperfect, in accordance with the rule of sequence).

Note.—This construction is often used (as more convenient) even with verbs that have a supine : as, Dixit fore ut rex mitteretur, he said that the king would be sent.

FUTURE SUBJUNCTIVE, ACTIVE AND PASSIVE.

6. It has been shown (p. 179, note) that the future subjunctive active (which is wanting) is supplied in Latin by the active periphrastic conjugation, made up of the future participle and the verb sum. Thus : Scio quid acturus sis, I know what you will do; sciebam quid acturus esses, I knew what you would do (imperfect, after a secondary tense). The future subjunctive passive, and the future subjunctive active of verbs that have no supine, are formed by means of the impersonal futurum sit (or esset) with an ut-clause. Thus :—

Future Subjunctive Active.

Rogo num futurum sit ut puer discat, I ask whether the boy will learn.

Rogavi num futurum esset ut puer disceret, I asked whether the boy would learn.

Future Subjunctive Passive.

Non dubito quin futurum sit ut puer doceatur, I do not doubt that the boy will be taught.

Non dubitavi quin futurum esset ut puer doceretur, I did not doubt that the boy would be taught.

EXERCISE.

Translate into English :—

1. Iampridem sperabam eum hoc facturum. 2. Tertium iam annum hic sumus. 3. Haec dum aguntur, Hannibal castra movet. 4. Dixit se hoc iamdudum notum habere. 5. Philosophia in Graecia florebat. 6. Facies totius negotii varia fuit : pars cedere, alii insequi ; nihil consilio agi, fors omnia regere (p. 216, 3, note 2). 7. Mihi dicebat unde veniret. 8. Nescio quando futurum sit ut convalescat. 9. Speravi fore ut convalesceret. 10. Credo fore ut feriat. 11. Putavi fore ut urbs a nobis caperetur. 12. Rogavit quando futurum esset ut signum attolleretur. 13. Huius modi viros adolescens admirabar. 14. Hostes in nōs saxa devolvebant.

Translate into Latin :—

1. Did I not know what you would do? 2. I did not doubt that the king would be killed by him. 3. He said that these facts would soon be learned by the scholar. 4. It is uncertain whether the boy will learn. 5. It was uncertain whether the boy would be taught. 6. Who can doubt that our camp will be easily defended? 7. Since you are ashamed of your plan, what prevents you from abandoning it? 8. I have long been anxious to know your reason for doing it. 9. He used to promise to come every day. 10. He said that he knew what we would demand (posco). 11. Whenever they captured a town, they butchered men, women and children (p. 204, 4).

LESSON CIII.

NOTES ON THE PARTICIPLE.—“WITHOUT”
AND A PARTICIPIAL NOUN.

Present Participle Passive.

1. The pres. part. pass. (which is wanting in Latin) is supplied by a relative clause : as, Domus, quae hic aedificatur, iam veniit, the house being built here, has already been sold.

IDIOMATIC USES OF THE PARTICIPLE.

2. (a) Two finite verbs in English connected by and are frequently expressed in Latin by a participle and a main verb : as, Eum arreptum Romam duxerunt, they arrested him and took him to Rome ; ingressus consēdit, he entered and sat down.

(b) The Latin perf. part. pass. with a noun, is often used to express two nouns in English : as, Rex interfectus, the murder of the king ; ab urbe condita, from the foundation of the city ; nuntiata clades, the announcement of the defeat.

(c) The present participle, when used—as it is so commonly in English—for the past participle, must be translated by the perf. part., or one of its equivalents (p. 203, 3, note). Thus : Leaving home, he came to Athens, domo profectus Athenas venit ; having heard this, quo audito (Proficiscens would mean while leaving ; audiens, while hearing).

(d) Instead of the perfect indicative active, the perf. part. pass. with habeo I have, is used (chiefly with verbs meaning to know or find out) to denote a continuous effect : as, Fidem quam habent diu notam, faith which they have long known.

(e) The ablative absolute can only be used when a new subject is introduced. Thus : As the enemy were retiring, they wasted the land, hostes se recipientes agros vastabant (not hostibus se recipientibus). But : As the enemy were retiring, we wasted the land, hostibus se recipientibus, agros vastabamus.

(f) A demonstrative pronoun can not be joined, as in English, to the participle. Thus : Those doing this, will be punished, is qui hoc facient, poenas dabunt (not ii hoc facientes).

(g) The present participle is often used in Latin to express an English abstract noun : as, Interroganti mihi respondit, he replied to my question ; lugentium lacrimae, tears of mourning (lit. of men mourning).

(h) The agent with the perf. part. pass. is frequently expressed by the dative instead of by a (or ab) with a preposition : as, Omnia haec mihi perspecta sunt, all these points have been studied by me.

(i) To translate properly into English the present or perfect participle, a finite clause is often required. This clause will be relative, temporal, causal, concessive, or conditional, according to the particular relation expressed by the participle. Thus :

Resistentibus non parcimus,	we do not spare those who resist us (relative).
Epistola ad me scribentem vēnit,	the letter came to me as (when, while) I was writing (temporal).
Caesar haec veritus suōs eduxit,	because (as, since) he was afraid of this, Caesar led out his men (causal).
Hoc crimine absolutus tamen furti damnatus est,	though he was acquitted of this charge, he was condemned for theft (concessive).
Nobis vel morientibus non ig- nosceret,	he would not forgive us, even if we were dying (conditional).

WITHOUT.

3. The ablative of the gerund can not be joined with sine, the usual preposition for without. Phrases, therefore, like without injuring himself, without your perceiving it, must be paraphrased into some synonymous form of words, and this turned into Latin. Thus : He aids others without injuring himself, aliis subvenit, non sibi nocens; I did it without your perceiving it, hoc feci, te non sentiente; they condemn him without hearing him, eum damnant inauditum; he cries without feeling grief, flet nec dolet; he never led out his army without examining the position of the ground, nunquam exercitum eduxit nisi explorato locorum situ; those cannot fall without these falling with them, cadere illa non possunt ut haec non concidant; to think of my going away without saying good-bye to anyone! mēne abiisse, nullo salutato!

Note.—The accusative with infinitive is used to express indignation or surprise. It is called the Infinitive of Exclamation. The interrogative -ne is frequently added to the first word, as if the sentence were interrogative in form,

LESSON CIV.

THE PREPOSITION.

1. A Latin preposition governs either the accusative or the ablative, except in, sub, super (above), and subter (beneath), which govern both.

Note.—Gratiā and causā (for the sake of) govern the genitive; but they are really nouns used as prepositions.

2. In, sub, super, and subter govern the ablative when they express rest, and the accusative when they express motion: as, In urbe in the city; in urbem, into the city; sub muro, under the wall; sub murum, up under the wall; super eo pendet, it hangs over him; super eum volat, it flies over him.

3. The following nine prepositions govern the ablative: A (or ab), from, by; coram, in presence of; cum, with; de, from, concerning; e (ex), out of; prae, in front of, in consequence of; pro, in front of, on behalf of; sine, without; tenus, up to.

4. All other prepositions govern the accusative. A list is given for reference: Ad, towards; adversus, opposite; ante, before; apud, beside; circum (or circā), round; cis (or citrā), on this side of; trans, across; contrā, against; ergā, towards; extrā, outside of; inter, among; infrā, below; intrā, within; iuxtā, near; ob, on account of; penes, in the power of; per, through; post, behind; praeter, past; prope, near to; propter, close to; secundum, along, after; versus, towards (written after its case); ultrā, beyond.

5. The prepositions are widely used with nouns to form idiomatic adverbial phrases of place, time, and manner. Such prepositional phrases should be committed to memory as they are met with. A list is added for reference:—

A or ab (from, by).

A fronte, in front (so, a lātēre, in flank; a tergo, in rear); a senatu stat, he stands on the senate's side; a re frumentaria laborare, to be in distress with regard to supplies; confestim a proelio, immediately after the battle.

Ad (to).

Ad ludos pecunia decernitur, money is voted for the games; ad fortunam felix, fortunate in point of fortune; ad Cannas, in the neighborhood of Cannae; ad Siciliam, off Sicily; ad aliorum arbitrium, at the beck of others.

Apud (beside).

Apud forum, near the forum; apud me, in my house; apud me plus vālet, he has more influence with me; apud Terentium, in the writings of Terence.

Cum (with).

Cum gladio, wearing a sword; magnā cum curā quaerit, he seeks with great care; confer hanc pacem cum illo bello, compare this peace with that war; cum aliquo certare, contend with a person.

De (from, about).

De industria, on purpose; bene mēreri de patria, deserve well of one's country.

E or ex (out of).

Ex equis pugnare, fight on horseback; statua ex aere facta, a statue made of bronze; ex consulatu, immediately after his consulship; ex itinere, while on the march; quaerere ex aliquo, ask from a person; ex improviso, unexpectedly; ex foedere, in accordance with the treaty; ex sententia, satisfactorily; ex parte magna, in a great measure.

In (in or into).

In equo, on horseback; in barbaris, among barbarians; in bonis ducere, reckon among blessings; in te unum se tota convertet civitas, the whole state will turn to you alone; pietas in deos, piety to the gods; pecunia in rem militarem data, money given for military purposes; in rem tuam haec est, this is for your interest; in dies, every day; in horas, every hour; denarius in singulos modios, a denarius for every bushel; in posterum diem, for the next day.

Inter (between, among).

Inter me et te hoc interest, there is this difference between you and me; inter se aspiciebant, they kept looking at one another; inter aedificandos muros, during the building of the walls.

Per (through).

Per vim, by violence; per speculatores, by means of spies (secondary agent); per me, through my instrumentality; per te stetit quominus vinceret, it was owing to you that he did not conquer; digladiantur per me licet, they may fight it out, as far as I am concerned.

Praeter (past, except).

Praeter modum, beyond measure; decem praeter se, ten besides themselves; omnes praeter unum, all except one; praeter naturam, outside the course of nature.

Pro (before, instead of, in behalf of).

Pro occiso relictus, left for dead; pro meritis gratias agere, to thank for services; pro multitudine hominum, finis angustos habent, considering their population they have limited territory; proelium atrocius quam pro numero pugnantium editur, a battle is fought fiercer than might have been expected from the number of combatants.

Sub (under, up to).

Sub nostram aciem successerunt, they came right up to our line; quae sub sensus sunt, what is within the range of the senses; sub haec dicta omnes procubuerunt, after these words all prostrated themselves; sub ipsā profectione, at the very start; sub noctem, at night-fall.

EXTRACTS FOR TRANSLATION FROM CAESAR.

EXTRACTS FOR TRANSLATION

FROM

CAESAR, DE BELLO GALLICO.

N.B. The figures at the foot of the extracts refer respectively to the pages and sections of this book. By the study of the sections referred to and the use of the vocabulary, the extracts may without difficulty be understood. After they have been translated word for word, and all the difficulties of syntax thoroughly mastered, they may be done on paper with greater freedom and some attempt at English idiom. An example is given under Lesson I.

LESSON I.

CAESAR PREPARES TO INVADE BRITAIN.

Caesar, etsi¹ in his locis maturae sunt hiemes, tamen in Britanniam proficisci contendit, quod,² omnibus³ fere Gallicis bellis, hostibus nostris inde⁴ subministrata⁵ auxilia intellegebat; et, si⁶ tempus ad bellum⁷ gerendum deficeret,⁸ tamen magno sibi usui⁹ fore¹⁰ arbitrabatur, si modo insulam adiisset,¹¹ genus hominum perspexisset, loca, portus, aditus cognovisset; quae omnia fere Gallis erant incognita. Neque¹² enim temere¹³ praeter mercatores illo¹⁴ adit quisquam,¹⁵ neque iis ipsis quicquam, praeter oram maritimam atque eas regiones quae sunt contra Gallias, notum est. Itaque, evocatis ad se undique mercatoribus,¹⁶ neque quanta esset¹⁷ insulae magnitudo, neque quae aut quantae nationes incolerent, neque quem usum¹⁸ belli haberent, aut quibus institutis uterentur, neque qui¹⁹ essent ad maiorum navium multitudinem idonei portus, reperire poterat.

N.B. The meaning of each word should be thought out just as it stands in Latin.

¹ Page 196, 7. ² p. 198, 2. Join with intellegebatur. ³ = in almost all. ⁴ i.e., from Britain. ⁵ Supply esse: i.e., to have been supplied to our enemies. ⁶ Oblique narration, depending on arbitrabatur. Direct = si...deficiet, tamen magno mihi usui erit, if the time fails, still it will be of great service to me; p. 211, 2 (a). ⁷ p. 170, 3. ⁸ failed, was too short. ⁹ p. 134, 1. ¹⁰ = futurum esse. ¹¹ For adierit of direct narration; p. 207, 7. ¹² Neque (nor) is used for non at the head of a sentence. ¹³ i.e., without reason. ¹⁴ Thither. Adverbs in -o (expressing motion to) are formed from pronouns: as, eo, to that place; alio, to another place. ¹⁵ p. 132, 3. ¹⁶ p. 102, 2. ¹⁷ 176, 2; i.e., he could find neither how large was, &c. For the tense of esset, see p. 178, 2. ¹⁸ Skill. ¹⁹ Which harbors were, &c.; p. 178, 2.

TRANSLATION.

Although winter in these localities is early, Caesar makes active preparations (contendere, to exert one's self) to start for Britain. His reasons were these. He knew that assistance had been furnished from there to the enemy in almost all the Gallic wars; and he judged that—even if the time should prove inadequate for war-like operations—it would be an advantage to him merely to make a visit to the island, to investigate the character of its inhabitants, and to get some knowledge of its geography, its harbors, and the easiest means of access to it. To almost all such details the Gauls are strangers. With the exception of the traders, no one ever visits the island without good reason; and even they have no acquaintance with it, unless with the sea-coast and the districts opposite Gaul. He accordingly cited traders from every part of the country to appear before him; but he failed to ascertain either the size of the island, the names or numbers of the peoples that inhabit it, the skill they possess in war, the institutions under which they live, or the harbors capable of accommodating a number of ships of a larger size.

REMARKS ON THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN LATIN AND ENGLISH IDIOM.

I. The long Latin period does not suit the genius of the English language. Break it up, therefore, in translating, into sentences containing a single idea each, and separated by a semicolon or a full stop.

2. As far as is consistent with clearness, English drops all words used in Latin to show the logical connection of one sentence with another (e.g., the relative, line 6 ; enim, line 7). Write down the sentences in English one after the other, keeping together those that are naturally connected in meaning.

3. The dependent clauses in English are simple and clear, and few in number. The Latin dependent clause often becomes a main clause in English.

4. The ablative absolute is usually translated by a finite clause (e.g., line 10), or by an adverbial phrase.

5. Latin, as compared with English, has few abstract or verbal nouns. Note how it would express : make active preparations (contendo) ; for warlike operations (ad bellum gerendum) ; make a visit to (adire) ; have acquaintance with (notum habere) ; name, numbers, etc.

6. Latin avoids figurative language, and says simply and directly what it means. Note how it would express : to all these details they were strangers, quæ omnia iis erant incognita.

7. The order of words in the Latin sentence must be noted. The subject (and all that belongs to it) is put first ; then the object (and all that belongs to it) ; lastly the verb, closing and giving compactness to the period. An emphatic word, however, will be placed at the beginning, or even at the end of the sentence ; and the regular order may be interfered with for the sake of euphony or rhetorical effect.

LESSON II.

CAESAR REACHES BRITAIN.

His constitutis rebus,¹ nactus² idoneam ad navigandum tempestatem, tertiā fere vigiliā³ solvit,⁴ equitesque in ulteriorem portum progredi⁵ et naves conscendere et se⁶ sequi iussit ; a quibus⁷ quum id paulo⁸ tardius esset⁹ administratum, ipse horā diei circiter quartā cum primis navibus Britanniam attigit¹⁰ atque ibi in omnibus collibus expositas hostium copias armatas conspexit. THE DIFFICULTY OF LANDING.

At barbari, consilio¹ Romanorum cognito, praemisso equitatu¹ et essedariis, quo plerumque genere² in proeliis uti consuêrunt,³ reliquis copiis⁴ subsecuti, nostros navibus⁵ egredi⁶ prohibebant.⁷ Erat ob has causas summa difficultas, quod⁸ naves propter magnitudinem nisi in alto constitui non poterant; militibus⁹ autem ignotis locis,¹⁰ impeditis manibus,¹ magno et gravi armorum onere oppressis,¹¹ simul et de navibus desiliendum et in fluctibus consistendum et cum hostibus erat pugnandum, quum illi¹² aut ex arido aut paululum in aquam progressi, omnibus membris expediti,¹³ notissimis locis, audacter tela iacerent et equos insuefactos¹⁴ incitarent. THE VALOR OF THE EAGLE-BEARER OF THE TENTH LEGION.

Quod ubi¹ Caesar animadvertit, naves² longas, quarum et species³ erat barbaris inusitatio⁴ et motus ad usum expeditior, paulum removeri ab onerariis navibus et remis incitari et ad latus apertum hostium constitui atque inde fundis,⁵ sagittis, tormentis hostes propelli ac summoverti iussit ; quae res magno usui⁶ nostris fuit. Nam et navium figurā et remorum motu et inusitato genere tormentorum permoti⁷ barbari constiterunt⁸ ac paulum pedem retulerunt⁹. Atque nostris militibus¹⁰ cunctantibus, maxime propter altitudinem maris, is qui decimae legionis aquilam ferebat, contestatus deos, ut¹¹ ea res legioni feliciter eveniret, "Desilite," inquit, "commilitones, nisi¹² vultis aquilam hostibus prodere ; ego certe¹³ meum reipublicae atque imperatori officium praestitero." Hoc quum magna voce dixisset,¹⁴ ex navi se proiecit atque in hostes aquilam ferre coepit. Tum nostri, cohortati inter se,¹⁵ ne tantum dedecus admitteretur,¹⁶ universi ex navi desiluerunt ; hos item ex proximis navibus quum conspexissent,¹⁷ subsecuti hostibus¹⁸ appropinquarunt (=appropinquaverunt).

CAESAR'S ADVANCE.

Caesar, exposito exercitu¹ et loco¹ castris² idoneo capto, ubi³ ex captivis cognovit, quo in loco hostium copiae consedisent,⁴ co-hortibus¹ decem ad (beside) mare relictis et equitibus trecentis, qui⁵ praesidio⁶ navibus essent, de⁷ tertia vigilia ad hostes contendit, eo⁸ minus veritus navibus,⁹ quod in litore molli atque aperto deligatas ad ancoram relinquebat; et praesidio⁶ navibus Quintum Atrium praefecit. Ipse, noctu progressus millia¹⁰ passuum circiter duodecim, hostium copias conspicatus est. Illi, equitatu¹¹ atque essedis ad flumen progressi, ex loco superiore nostros prohibere (stop our advance) et proelium committere coeperunt. Repulsi ab equitatu, se in silvas abdiderunt, locum nacti¹² egregie et¹⁶ natura¹³ et opere munitum, quem domestici belli causā (to help them in their intestine wars), iam ante praeparaverant; nam crebris arboribus succis¹⁴ omnes introitus erant praecclusi. At milites legionis septimae, testudinē¹ factā et aggere¹ ad munitiones adiecto, locum ceperunt eosque ex silvis expulerunt, paucis vulneribus acceptis. Sed eos fugientes longius Caesar prosequi¹⁵ vetuit, et¹⁶ quod¹⁷ loci naturam ignorabat, et quod, magnā parte diei consumptā, munitioni¹⁸ castrorum tempus relinqui volebat.

LESSON VIII.

CAESAR BUILDS A NUMBER OF SHIPS AND FORTIFIES HIS CAMP.

His rebus¹ cognitis, Caesar legiones equitatumque revocari² atque itinere³ desistere iubet; ipse ad naves revertitur; eadem⁴ fere, quae ex nuntiis literisque cognoverat, coram perspicit, sic⁹ ut, amissis⁶ circiter quadraginta navibus, reliquae tamen refici posse magno negotio⁷ viderentur.⁸ Itaque ex legionibus fabros deligit et ex continenti alios arcessiri iubet; Labieno scribit, ut⁹ (=to) quam¹⁰ plurimas posset, iis legionibus quae sunt apud eum, naves instituat. Ipse,¹¹ etsi¹² res erat multae operae¹³ ac laboris, tamen commodissimum esse statuit, omnes naves subduci¹⁴ et cum castris unā munitione coniungi. BRITAIN DESCRIBED.

Britanniae pars interior ab iis incolitur, quos natos¹ in insula ipsa dicunt ; maritima pars ab iis, qui praedae ac belli inferendi² causā ex Belgis transierant ; qui omnes fere³ iis⁴ nominibus civitatum appellantur, ex quibus orti civitatibus eo pervenerunt, et bello⁵ illato ibi remanserunt atque agros colere coeperunt. Hominum⁶ est infinita multitudo, creberrimaque aedificia, fere Gallicis⁷ consimilia ; pecorum magnus numerus. Utuntur aut aere⁸ aut taleis ferreis ad certum pondus examinatis pro nummo.⁹ Nascitur ibi plumbum album¹⁰ in mediterraneis regionibus, in maritimis ferrum ; sed eius exigua est copia ; aere utuntur importato. Materia¹¹ cuiusque generis, ut in Gallia, est praeter fagum atque abietem. Leporem et gallinam et anserem gustare fas¹² non putant ; haec tamen alunt animi voluptatisque causā.¹³ Loca¹⁴ sunt temperatiora quam in Gallia, remissioribus frigidibus.¹⁵

LESSON X.

THE EXTENT OF THE ISLAND.

Insula est naturā¹ triquetra, cuius unum latus est contra² Galliam Huius lateris alter (one of the two) angulus—qui est ad Cantium, quo (to which) fere omnes ex Gallia naves appelluntur³--ad orientem solem, inferior⁴ ad meridiem spectat. Hoc latus pertinet circiter millia passuum⁵ quingenta. Alterum⁶ vergit⁷ ad Hispaniam atque occidentem solem, qua⁸ ex parte est Hibernia, dimidio minor,⁹ ut aestimatur, quam Britannia; sed pari spatio transmissus¹⁰ atque¹¹ ex Gallia est in Britanniam. In hoc medio cursu¹² est insula, quae appellatur Mona; complures praeterea minores subiectae¹³ insulae existimantur; de quibus insulis nonnulli scripserunt dies¹⁴ continuos triginta sub bruma¹⁵ esse noctem.¹⁶ Nos nihil de eo¹⁷ percontationibus¹⁸ reperiēbamus, nisi certis ex aqua mensuris¹⁹ breviores²⁰ esse quam in continente noctes videbamus. Huius est longitudo lateris, ut fert illorum²¹ opinio,²² septingentorum millium. Tertium est contra septentriones,²³ cui parti²⁴ nulla est obiecta terra; sed eius angulus lateris maxime ad Germaniam spectat; hoc millia passuum octingenta in longitudinem esse existimatur. Ita omnis insula est in circuitu vicies centum millium passuum.²⁵

THE INHABITANTS DESCRIBED.—CROSSING OF THE THAMES.

Ex his omnibus longe sunt humanissimi,¹ qui Cantium incolunt, quae regio est maritima omnis ; neque multum a Gallica differunt consuetudine. Interiores plerique² frumenta non serunt sed lacte³ et carne vivunt pellibusque³ sunt vestiti. Omnes vero se Britanni vitro inficiunt, quod caeruleum efficit colorem, atque hoc⁴ horridiore sunt in pugna aspectu ;⁵ capilloque⁵ sunt promisso atque omni parte corporis rasā praeter caput et labrum superius. Caesar, cognito consilio⁶ eorum, ad flumen Tamesim in fines Cassivelauni exercitum duxit ; quod flumen uno omnino loco pedibus,⁷ atque hoc aegre, transiri potest. Eo quum venisset, animadvertit ad⁸ alteram fluminis ripam magnas esse⁹ copias hostium instructas ; ripa autem erat acutis sudibus praefixis (set along the edge) munita ; eiusdemque generis¹⁰ sub aqua defixae sudes flumine tegebantur. His rebus cognitis a captivis perfugisque, Caesar, praemisso equitatu, confestim legiones subsequi iussit. Sed eā¹¹ celeritate atque eo impetu milites ierunt, quum¹² capite⁷ solo ex aqua exstarent, ut¹³ hostes impetum legionum atque equitum sustinere non possent, ripasque dimitterent ac se fugae mandarent.

POLICY OF CASSIVELAUNUS.

Cassivelaunus, ut supra demonstravimus, omni deposita spe¹ contentionis,² dimissis amplioribus copiis,¹ millibus circiter quattuor essedariorum relictis, itinera nostra servabat³ paululumque ex via excedebat locisque⁴ impeditis ac silvestribus sese occultabat atque iis regionibus, quibus nos iter facturos cognoverat, pecora atque homines ex agris in silvas compellebat ; et quum⁵ equitatus noster liberius praedandi⁶ vastandique causā se in agros effunderet, omnibus viis notis semitisque essedarios ex silvis emittebat et magno cum periculo nostrorum equitum cum iis confligebat atque hoc metu⁷ latius vagari prohibebat. Relinquebatur,⁸ ut neque longius ab agmine legionum discedi⁹ Caesar pateretur, et tantum¹⁰ in agris¹¹ vastandis incendiisque faciendis hostibus noceretur,¹² quantum labore atque itinere¹³ legionarii milites efficere poterant.

THE TRINOBANTES SEND MESSENGERS TO CAESAR.

Interim Trinobantes,¹ prope firmissima earum regionum civitas—ex qua Mandubracius adolescens, Caesaris fidem secutus,² ad eum in continentem Galliam venerat, cuius pater Imanuentius in ea civitate regnum obtinuerat³ interfectusque erat a Cassivelauno, ipse fugā⁴ mortem vitaverat—legatos ad Caesarem mittunt ; pollicenturque sese ei dedituros⁵ atque imperata facturos ; petunt⁶ ut Mandubracium ab iniuria Cassivelauni defendat atque in civitatem mittat, qui praesit⁷ imperiumque obtineat. THE STATES OF THE BRITONS SURRENDER.

Trinobantibus defensis atque ab omni militum iniuria prohibitis,¹ Cenimagi, Segontiaci, Ancalites, Bibroci, Cassi, legationibus¹ missis sese Caesari dedunt. Ab his cognoscit non longe ex eo loco oppidum Cassivelauni abesse² silvis paludibusque munitum, quo satis magnus hominum pecorisque numerus convenerit.³ (Oppidum autem Britanni vocant, quum silvas impeditas vallo atque fossa munierunt,⁴ quo incursionis⁵ hostium vitandae causā convenire consueverunt⁶). Eo proficiscitur cum legionibus ; locum reperit egregie naturā atque opere munitum ; tamen hunc duabus ex⁷ partibus oppugnare contendit. Hostes paulisper morati militum nostrorum impetum non tulerunt seseque alia ex parte oppidi eiecerunt. Magnus ibi numerus pecoris repertus multique in fuga sunt comprehensi atque interfecti.

THE DRUIDS.

In omni Gallia eorum hominum, qui aliquo sunt numero¹ atque honore, genera sunt duo ; nam plebes² paene servorum habetur loco,³ quae nihil audet per se, nullo⁴ adhibetur concilio ; plerique, cum aut aere⁶ alieno aut magnitudine tributorum aut iniuriā potentiorum premuntur, sese in servitutem dicant⁷ nobilibus ; in⁸ hos eadem omnia sunt iura, quae dominis⁹ in servos. Sed de his duobus generibus alterum est druidum, alterum equitum. Illi¹⁰ rebus divinis intersunt,⁵ sacrificia publica ac privata procurant (manage), religiones interpretantur (explain religious matters); ad eos magnus adolescentium numerus disciplinae causā concurrit magnoque hi¹¹ sunt apud eos¹² honore. Nam fere de omnibus controversiis publicis privatisque constituunt¹³ et si quod¹⁴ est admissum facinus, si caedes facta, si de hereditate, si de finibus controversia est, idem¹⁵ decernunt, praemia poenasque constituunt; si qui aut privatus aut populus eorum decreto non stetit,¹⁶ sacrificiis¹⁷ interdicunt.

Haec poena (i. e. excommunication) apud eos est gravissima. CUSTOMS OF THE GAULS.

Galli se omnes ab Dite patre¹ prognatos praedicant idque ab druidibus proditum dicunt. Ob eam causam² spatia omnis temporis non numero dierum, sed noctium finiunt³; dies natales et mensium et annorum initia sic observant, ut noctem dies subsequatur.⁴ In reliquis vitae institutis hoc⁵ fere⁶ ab reliquis differunt, quod⁷ suos liberos,⁸ nisi cum adoleverunt⁹ ut¹⁰ munus militiae sustinere possint, palam ad se adire non patiuntur filiumque puerili

EXERCISES IN LATIN PROSE

BASED ON THE

EXTRACTS FROM CAESAR.

EXERCISE I.

(Based on Caesar, Lesson I, in which all the words required to do the exercise will be found.)

If he had visited this island, he would have found living upon the shore of the sea a nation of traders, possessing men (use miles) and ships, and harbors adapted for vessels of the largest size. These (use the relative) ships they use both (et) for visiting localities that lie opposite the island, and for making war upon their enemies. Their skill in war, accordingly, is considerable ; and time would fail me merely to enumerate (enumero, -are) the important wars they have carried on. They¹ live under institutions which have been extolled (laudo) by almost all who have investigated them ; and no one (use nec ; p. 132, 3) has ever (unquam) visited the island without (quin) learning something (aliquid) which proved of advantage to himself.

¹ Connect this sentence by autem (however), putting it second in the sentence. Note that autem and vero (however), enim (for), quodque (also), quidem (indeed), certe (at all events), never come first in a sentence.

EXERCISE II.

(Based on Caesar, Lessons I and II, in which all the words required to do the exercise will be found.)

CAESAR ADDRESSES HIS OFFICERS.

"I have called you together, officers, in order to convey my wishes to you personally (ipse). All¹ arrangements are completed ; the troops will embark during the present² watch. As soon as (ubi) wind and tide are favorable, I shall give the signal for embarkation.³ Thereupon (deinde) let all embark, weigh anchor, and set sail at once (statim). When you have gone forward about seven miles, you will see a large island ; there, the ships of the enemy are stationed. Hem them in on all sides ; let not a single one escape (use ne unus quidem, and effugio). Meantime let all wait upon the open shore until the signal is given."

¹ Connect by enim. ² 118, 2. ³ Omit these two words.

EXERCISE III.

Translate into Latin, using oblique narration, Exercise II.

Note. Turn the vocative of direct narration into acc. in oblique.

EXERCISE IV.

(Based on Caesar, Lessons II and III, in which all the words required to do the exercise will be found.)

We intended (p. 174, 1) to go on board and weigh anchor as soon as (ubi) we reached¹ the sea shore ; but the waves were so high (use altus) that the officers did not give the order for instant embarkation (use statim and gen. of gerund). The soldiers had not much experience of the sea, and were filled with apprehension (use one verb) at the size of the waves. Accordingly, they did not show the same zeal for (ad) advancing as they often showed, preferring² (malo quam) to remain on dry land to launching out upon the deep sea. All the forces, both foot (pedites) and horse, took up their station on the open shore. The position³ of the ground was favorable ; it was shut in on all sides (undique) by high hills, which prevented the enemy from seeing what was going on. On this account they were unable to ascertain our plans.

EXERCISE V.

(Based on Caesar, Lessons II and III. Review Exercise; to be done without reference to the Latin.)

But it¹ was when the shore was reached (use pervenio) that the greatest difficulty occurred. The waves were so high that they rendered landing an impossibility (use possum or prohibeo). We had accordingly to station the fleet off the great harbor for two or three hours. We could see from the ships the armed forces of the enemy drawn up upon the hill. They² were waiting until we should leap into the sea and advance to the shore through the waves, thinking³ that it would be impossible for us to keep our feet on unfamiliar ground, oppressed as we were with the weight of our arms. Knowing³ their design, our general prevented our forces from landing until the sea became smooth.

It was . . . that, is used for emphasis; omit and put litus at end (231, 7). Thus: The greatest difficulty, however, was when it was come to the shore. ² connect (enim). ³ 219, (c).

EXERCISE VI.

(Based on Caesar, Lessons III and IV, in which all the words required to do the exercise will be found.)

When the barbarians saw from the nearest hills the fleet approaching the shore, they showed some slight hesitation (use a verb). Artillery of unfamiliar description, legions of soldiers in strange (mirus) armor and carrying (cum) strange weapons, ships of war of unusual shape and appearance, with transports following close behind, all tended (impf.) to fill them with excitement¹ and alarm. They would have retreated in dismay (part.) from the shore, if their general, flinging himself among (inter) them had not called out in a loud voice: "Stand your ground boldly, comrades; do not incur the disgrace of betraying your country." By this exhortation¹ (part.) he incited them to do their duty and stand their ground.

¹ 231, 5; note that Latin, as far as possible, avoids such nouns.

EXERCISE VII.

(Based on Caesar, Lessons IV and V, in which all the words required to do the exercise will be found.)

The battle had not a very fortunate issue for us, and chiefly because of the alarm produced by the enemy's chariots. These chariots generally prove of great service in battle, showing, as they do,¹ the activity of horse and the stability of foot. The drivers can advance (progredior) upon an enemy or retreat with their chariots at will; and they threw our ranks into confusion without (use abl. abs. and ne unus quidem) hurling a single dart. When our general saw what was happening (flo), he rode in all directions through the ranks, appealing to the soldiers to stand their ground. Then, ordering² the chariots to be dislodged with slings and arrows, he followed them up with the cavalry, and soon drove them from the field (locus). They retreated so slowly that there was no confusion³ in their line (acies).

EXERCISE VIII.

(Based on Caesar, Lessons V and VI, in which all the words required to do the exercise will be found.)

About noon we set sail from this island and were soon being carried swiftly along by a sweeping (praeceps) wind from the southwest. We hoped (spero) to make the continent before midnight; but, the wind dying away (219, c) at sundown, we were compelled to take to the oars (p. 173, 5, 6). All night long (use per) we rowed against an adverse (adversus) tide without intermission of labor (p. 220, 3). We had indeed (use enim) good reason (use habeo cur) for haste when it was ascertained that no supply of provisions had been laid in.¹ This was incentive enough (use satis incito); and it had this much effect (use hoc) at least (certe), that when day dawned we saw the continent lying (pertineo) in the sunlight not far away upon our left, and we could hear the roar of the tide on the shore.

Hunger (fames) had done the work (use neut. pronoun), and it soon afterwards also brought us to port.

EXERCISE IX.

(Based on Caesar, Lessons VI and VII, in which all the words required to do the exercise will be found.)

The enemy then fled (fugio) from the field (locus) and concealed themselves in a wood, which they proceeded to fortify (impf.) with great skill, cutting¹ down a number of trees and with them closing all avenues of approach to the wood. Our general heard of these preparations² from the prisoners of war, and, ascertaining the enemy's position,² makes all haste to dislodge them from their works. He landed his army in front of the fortification and proceeded to throw up a mound against it. This the enemy endeavored to prevent, and they defended themselves with admirable courage, fighting from the works and seeking to repulse the legions. At last (postremo), however, after a great part of the day had been spent in fighting, we carried the position, and once more they fled and dispersed in every direction to their homes (domum). The loss on our side was inconsiderable.

EXERCISE X.

(Based on Caesar, Lessons VII and VIII, in which all the words required to do the exercise will be found.)

There he learned to his dismay (use perterreo) that about forty ships had been lost, and that he must¹ return to the shore to look into the facts personally. He decided that many of the ships could be restored ; but that—though it would be an undertaking of enormous labor—many new ones (novus) must be built (instituo). Accordingly he makes his preparations² at once (statim). All the ships that were lying at their moorings, he ordered to be beached and strongly fortified, and all the forces, foot and horse, to be recalled into camp. Bands (manus) of mechanics were summoned from the maritime states to cut down³ trees and begin (incipio) the work of restoration. Meantime (interim) the defences of the ships are joined to (cum) those⁴ of the camp, and a member of staff (legatus) is put in charge of the whole work.

¹ 173, 5, 6. ² 231, 5, use paro. ³ 185, 5. ⁴ use the noun; the Lat. demonstrative is not used with an adj. phrase; cf., 219, (f).

EXERCISE XI.

(Based on Caesar, Lessons VIII and IX, in which all the words required to do the exercise will be found.)

This island has a large population, fine¹ soldiers, and² a numerous fleet; and they manage both war and maritime affairs well.³ The majority in the inland parts cultivate the fields and rear poultry. Many also rear large numbers of cattle. Of the rest, many are artisans who build houses and ships. There is fine timber in the island and large rivers; and the ships of all nations assemble in them. Bronze, tin, and² iron are produced in the higher parts; they weigh them out into bars of definite weight and export (exporto) them to the continent. Their currency is bronze; but that they usually (plerumque) import. In time of war—and wars are frequent between them and other islands—they appoint one from among themselves to the head of the army, and confer upon him the supreme command. In this way they ensure concerted action in the management of war.⁴

² Superl. of bonus. ² omit and. ³ adv. from bonus. ⁴ say, they can manage the war by, &c.

EXERCISE XII.

(Based on Caesar, Lessons IX and X, in which all the words required to do the exercise will be found.)

I see that some writers assert¹ that there is a large island in the middle of the sea (mare) to which an enemy never (nunquam) comes, whether² to make war or to make spoil. It is called Abiēna, or the island of the white fir. There is no other land near it whether to the north, the south, the east, or the west. It is triangular in form and the measurement of each side is three hundred miles. The distance across (say, the crossing) to it from the mainland is not shorter than two thousand (use gen.) miles, so³ that many ships do not touch at it. In the middle of summer (aestas) the sun never sets and it is always day there (ibi). The climate is mild, the cold being moderate. The people who inhabit the island call themselves aboriginal. Their number is small. I have tried (conor) to find out by enquiry from several persons in what direction (pars) it lies; but I have not (use nec) been able to get any information about it.⁴

EXERCISE XIII.

(Based on Caesar, Lessons X and XI, in which all the words required to do the exercise will be found.)

When we reached the eastern side of the river we descried the forces of the enemy all drawn up on the other bank. They could not have been less than twenty thousand strong, while we were about half of that strength (say: less by half). The river could be forded only at one point, and there they had taken up their position (use constituo), intending to dispute our passage (use prohibeo). We learned from deserters that they had palisaded the edge of the bank with sharp stakes and had sunk others under water so as (ita ut; 187) to be concealed by the river. Knowing¹ the enemy's plan, our general immediately sends forward the cavalry to ford the river, ordering the legions to follow close behind. For the latter² the crossing was difficult, only their heads being¹ above water. But such³ was the speed and impetuosity of our advance⁴ that the enemy could not sustain it. They immediately abandoned the bank and took to flight.

EXERCISE XIV.

(Based on Caesar, Lessons XI and XII, in which all the words required to do the exercise will be found.)

In many¹ ways these people are barbarous (barbari). They wear their hair long and dress in skins. They stain their bodies blue. They live on flesh and do not sow the fields or use corn for food. But they are not barbarous in battle. They engage an enemy freely and with properly (bene) marshalled troops. They watch his line of march, and, concealing² themselves in fortified woods, let slip their armies upon him as he passes. They drive away their cattle to³ prevent him from getting booty from (de) their fields. They even waste their own lands by kindling conflagrations, in order to inflict injury⁴ upon him and cause him to retire from their territory. By their own methods (consilium) they achieve as great wonders (use efficere tantum) in war as other more civilised nations do by theirs

EXERCISE XV.

(Based on Caesar, Lessons XII and XIII, in which all the words required to do the exercise will be found.)

(FOR OBLIQUE NARRATION).

He answered that nothing, unless (190, 3) they surrendered, would prevent him from laying their country waste.¹ He would let loose his legionaries to plunder their lands, to drive away their cattle and to kindle conflagrations on every side (undique). Let them lay aside all hope of carrying on the struggle. They could not escape death, but would all be put to the sword. But if they surrendered and did what he required, if they trusted him and gave him hostages and corn, if they protected his soldiers from wrong, he promised he would not injure either (aut) them or their lands. He would allow the state to enjoy its sovereignty; he would allow their own king (rex) to rule over them.

¹206, 3 ; think out the direct narration all through. Thus here : Nothing will, &c., unless you surrender=nihil se prohibiturum ...nisi ipsos (168, 3, note) dedidissent ; 211, 2 (a).

EXERCISE XVI.

(Based on Caesar, Lessons XIII and XIV, in which all the words required to do the exercise will be found).

Not far from this was a spot which had been already fortified both by nature and art, and lay in the midst (in) of an inaccessible wood. (A place of this kind¹ they call in these parts² a "town"). This was their rendezvous ;³ this they seized and resolved (statuo) to hold. They proceeded to (216, 3) strengthen it with a rampart of palisades ; and, making incursions in every direction, they brought (porto) into the place a large amount (numerus) of corn and a large number of cattle. At the head of their army was a young man who had been compelled⁴ to fly (fugio) from his country to escape death. His father had once (quondam) worn a royal crown ;⁵ but he had met with a violent death at the hands of the Romans, the youth himself escaping⁶ death by flight. After sending an embassy⁷ to them to beg⁸ them to surrender,⁹ our general, on their refusal (use nolo), proceeded to attack the place with two legions. It was impossible for the enemy to resist the attack. They flung themselves in headlong (praeceps) flight from the town. All who were taken were put to the sword.

EXERCISE XVII.

(Based on Caesar, Lessons XIV and XV, in which all the words required to do the exercise will be found.)

The rights of the commons in some (nonnullus) countries are not highly regarded. The common people are found in the armies, but they are not admitted to the national council. They have no part in the national religious functions. They are considered very much (fere) as cattle, and the powerful nobles have almost the same power (use ius) over them as a master has over his slaves. They do not venture on any enterprise of their own accord. Everything must be done for them through the nobility. There is no one to defend¹ them from wrong ; but if they commit a crime, penalties of all kinds (use omnis) are decreed against them. They are often (saepe) overwhelmed with debt, and then (deinde) they hand themselves over to the nobles, body and soul (animus). In war they are slaughtered, and in peace (pax) they are oppressed with taxes. Disputes between (inter) them and the nobility are decided by the nobility, and their life² is really³ one private and public servitude.

¹188, 5, (a). ²*use vivo in*. ³express by putting servitude in an emphatic position ; 231, 7.

EXERCISE XVIII.

(Based on Caesar, Lessons XV and XVI, in which all the words required to do the exercise will be found.)

The druidical system is said to have been invented in Gaul and carried across from there to Britain. Gaul is at present (nunc) the general resort¹ of all diligent students of the system ; and here, at a particular season of the year, the great druidical council holds conclave in a consecrated spot in the centre of the country (terra). The position of the druidical class in Britain is a very honorable one. They are arbiters in all public and private matters of dispute, whether (191, 5) affecting lands and inheritances, or the commission of crimes and homicides. Men flock¹ from all sides to consult (consulo) them, and there is universal compliance¹ with their decisions. On the decease of the chief druid, the succession is frequently (saepe) determined by worth and authority. Sometimes, however, they settle the claims to the primacy by single combat. Held in high honor, as they are,² they see every year (quotannis) a large concourse¹ of young men (adolescens) coming together to (apud) them for instruction.

¹164, 2 and note 2. ²express by putting high in an emphatic position ; 231, 7.

EXERCISE XIX.

(Based on Caesar, Lessons XVI and XVII, in which all the words required to do the exercise will be found.)

He used¹ to lay down the following (use hic) rules with regard to (de) the subjects (res) that young men (adolescens) ought to study (173, 5). In particular he endeavored to impress this belief on all, that literature (literae) should be studied and studied thoroughly. By no means (use nec, ullus, and modus) did he think that men could be so incited to right action and contempt² for the fear of death. He thought that literature should be carried as widely as possible (use quam and superl.) among the masses and taught (doceo) both by private individuals and through state aid (publice). He thought that many years might well be spent (consumo) at this subject. But for fear that³ young men should neglect other subjects, he recommended the study also of mathematics (numeri) and science, and especially astronomy. "In no way" (put in indirect narration), he used to say, "can the power and might of God be so well seen and appreciated (intellego) as (quam) by the study of the starry motions."⁴ He held (credo), too, that attention should be given to the training⁵ of the memory; and, therefore, that everything as far as possible should be learned by heart. "By trusting to writing," he used to say, "a student relaxes both his application and his memory."

EXERCISE XX.

(Based on Caesar, Lessons XVII and XVIII, in which all the words required to do the exercise will be found.)

One monstrous custom which they have established, is that of human sacrifices.¹ I do not know how (quomodo) they can think that such sacrifices are pleasing to their gods. But they are a very superstitious nation, and believe that a life must be paid to heaven for a life. If anyone is afflicted with a serious illness, he vows that, if he escapes (effugio), he will pay a life for his life ; and he makes the same vow when he is about to engage in battle or expose himself to serious danger. They are very fond of (studeo) sacrifices, and think that by human sacrifices the divinity of the gods is most gratefully propitiated. Their victims they usually (plerumque) burn to death in large images which they weave of wicker-work. In this way (ratio) they punish (use afficere supplicio) all those caught in the act of theft or highway robbery. When the supply of such victims fails, the punishment falls upon even innocent men, who apparently (use videor) never resist the outrage. They have no fear of death, believing² that after death the soul does not perish, but passes from one person to another.

¹Ex. 6, note 1 ; say, this monstrous thing they have established that (ut) they sacrifice human beings. ²use 203, 1 ; see 100, 4.

EXERCISE XXI.

(Based on Caesar, Lessons XVIII and XIX, in which all the words required to do the exercise will be found.)

The deities worshipped (218, 1) in this island are much the same as those worshipped by other nations (civitas). They¹ (use nam) have a deity who, they believe,² directs the issue of war and to him they sacrifice all the living things they capture in war. They have sacred places also (item) in which they deposit other booty taken in war and consecrate it to him ; and (use nec) it does not often happen that anyone is guilty of sacrilege and³ ventures to transfer any of these offerings to his own house. Anyone (use si) detected in so monstrous a crime (noxia) is burned to death ; this is the punishment ordained for the offence. Huge piles of booty consecrated to the god of war are a common sight in every part of the island. In this way they think they can best propitiate the divinity of the god and gain (capio) his favor.

¹Begin with nam. ²Avoid such a parenthesis in Latin. Say, whom they believe to . . . ³219, (a).

EXERCISE XXII.

(Based on Caesar, Lessons XIX and XX, in which all the words required to do the exercise will be found.)

All commerce and all commercial pursuits are directed to (esse ad) the acquisition of wealth. When a state has amassed wealth, it can give attention (studeo) to both the higher and the mechanical arts ; and, therefore, commerce is said to be the inventor of these and to give the initiative in (say of) all the productions of art. A nation that will (use volo) keep command (habeo) of trade must (173, 5) keep command of the sea ; therefore, it must have ships, which are one of the most magnificent products of art. But a country that gives all its attention (use unus) to the pursuit of trade and neglects the duty of military service, can not long exist (diu esse) or keep war from its borders (fines). A nation that can not conquer (vinco) its enemies will not escape conquest itself.¹ The art of war is expensive ; but by it alone can the profits of trade be preserved.

¹ Say, it can not be but that a state, etc. . . . will be conquered itself. Begin with, Fieri enim non potest quin.

EXERCISE XXIII.

(Based on Caesar, Lessons XX and XXI, in which all the words required to do the exercise will be found.)

Roughly speaking, these people differ from other nations in their institutions and customs in the following (hic) respects. They are not very fond of religious ceremonies and they have no sacrifices. They love hunting and war ; and from their earliest years the chase and military pursuits constitute their whole life. They administer their public affairs well ; but allow no discussion of political matters except in the popular assembly. If anyone gets, from rumor or hearsay, information affecting the public interest, he must (173, 5) lay it before a magistrate. False rumors have often impelled the state to wrong courses (use indirect narration). In former times they used to appoint (creo) magistrates every year (quotannis) ; nowadays (nunc), they judge it of greater advantage to appoint them for (ad) five years. They thus escape (vito) rashness and inexperience (use adjs.)¹ Important matters ought (173, 5) to be laid before the people after (quum) the magistrates have taken counsel with regard to them; but the magistrates keep back whatever they think proper, and do not communicate it. Taking their general culture into consideration, their political regulations² must be considered admirable (use mirror; 172, 2).

¹231, 5; Latin prefers the concrete adj. and verb to the abstract noun. ²Say, what they have laid down by law with regard to the public interest.

EXERCISE XXIV.

(Based on Caesar, Lessons XXI and XXII, in which all the words required to do the exercise will be found.)

These people are fond of war, and consider it the noblest (magnus) of human pursuits. By it they amass wealth and acquire territory; but the chiefs are afraid (vereor) that from the one (alter) will be generated the love of money, and from the other a passion for agriculture, which will expel their enthusiasm for war. Accordingly, they do not allow individual ownership either in money or land. Each tribe and each family has its own allotment of land assigned every year; but next year they are compelled to move elsewhere. On this account there are no evictions (use verb) of the humble from their holdings by the great, and on the part of the latter no acquisition of large estates, which in some countries is the cause of such dissensions. The common people, in fact (denique) are kept in contentment, seeing (use 203, 1), as they do (omit), that the wealth of all is equal. They do not even build cities, though (quanquam) they use small houses as a protection against heat or cold.

EXERCISE XXV.

(Based on Caesar, Lessons XXII and XXIII, in which all the words required to do the exercise will be found.)

Next to (post) war they love freebooting, and consider it the special characteristic of manly valor that this should be undertaken on as grand a scale as possible. The community (civitas) justifies it on the following (hic) grounds. It serves as a training for their young men; it represses indolence and diminishes dissension in the cantons; it lays waste the lands of neighboring states and, by making a wilderness of the surrounding country (say, a wilderness having been made all round) removes all fears of sudden inroads. The magistrates do not compel anyone to go on a foray (latrocinor); but, when once a promise of assistance has been given, no one can fail to follow his chief without incurring the deepest (magnus) disgrace, and earning the title of (use appello) traitor and renegade. Whatever reason he may assign, the general confidence thereafter is completely withdrawn from him. By these marauding expeditions, considerable (magnus) wealth is amassed, and they are held in universal esteem in consequence; high and low, magistrates and people, all lend them their highest approval.

EXERCISE XXVI.

(Based on Caesar, Lessons XXIII and XXIV, in which all the words required to do the exercise will be found.)

The proximity of this fertile province has accustomed them to desire many luxuries (res) of which in olden times they had no knowledge. Formerly they lived (vivo) in poverty and hardship; now they live in sloth and opulence (opes). Formerly they used to vanquish their enemies; now they are so accustomed to be vanquished themselves, that they do not even compare their own valor to that of their enemies. Once (olim) they, of their own accord, invaded others; now they are always repelling invasion from their own borders. Once they sent out colonies across the Rhine; now they see the colonies of other races rising among their own towns (use inter and oppidum). Once they enjoyed the highest distinction for courage ; now they see the lustre of their warlike renown tarnished in many a battle (use minuo or derogo; and do away with the metaphor). They have always the dread of sudden forays in their minds (use pronoun). They must soon (brevis) retire from their fertile territory into the woods ; for I do not know how they can long (diu) keep the enemy at bay.

EXERCISE XXVII.

(Based on Caesar, Lessons XXIV and XXV, in which all the words required to do the exercise will be found.)

[FOR OBLIQUE NARRATION.]

He said that this fertile tract (ager) extended a nine days' journey parallel with the stream. That it would afford them in abundance everything necessary (use opus esse) for use. This tract they would seize and settle in. If they kept within those limits and followed the same hallowed course of life they formerly followed, they could easily repel (facile defendo) invasion. It was well known that men accustomed to poverty, hardship and want were superior in courage to all others and could not be vanquished. But their neighbors (finitimi) enjoyed a high reputation for justice and would not invade their territory without cause (sine causa). Let them, therefore, advance without fear (timor) and hand down to all time this record (use neut. pronoun), that they had by reason of their warlike reputation occupied land in which no one till that time had been able to settle.

EXERCISE XXVIII.

(Based on Caesar, Lessons XXV and XXVI, in which all the words required to do the exercise will be found.)

This wood extends in all directions (pars) a journey of many days ; and it is far (multo) superior to all other woods we know in size. The huntsman knows it and loves it ; and it is the haunt (use eo, thither) of many species of wild beasts. Many of these differ in size, weight, shape and habits from those known to us. The stag seen in this wood has taller and straighter horns than our stag, and they spread out like branching hands. It can not lie down ; if it is knocked down by any accident, it can not rise. It takes its sleep, slightly inclined against the trunk (truncus) of a tree. These facts (say, all which things) the huntsman knows and uses (utor) for its destruction (use interficio, kill). Cutting into the tree, he makes it too weak to bear the weight of the stag (use pro; p. 224); and, when the animal leans as usual against the tree, both (ambo) come heavily to the ground (terra). In this way it falls an easy prey (use facile and interficio) to the hunter.

EXERCISE XXIX.

(Based on Caesar, Lessons XXVI and XXVII, in which all the words required to do the exercise will be found.)

They harden and train their young men by war and labor and especially (maxime) by the hunting of the wild ox. This animal is almost as large as an elephant, and it has the speed of the stag and the strength of the bull. From the top of its head project tall straight horns, which it uses on (in) man and beast alike (et.... et). It is untamable, and cannot, even when caught young, become accustomed to human beings. In this it differs from all the other tribes of wild beasts. The hunter who kills a wild ox gets great credit ; but he must produce the horns in public as evidence of the fact. These horns are in great demand. Their edges are encased in silver and they are used as drinking-cups. These cups may be seen in large numbers (say, of which many) at their great banquets. The wild ox is not often (saepe) killed in fair (aequus) fight. The usual way (use plerumque) is to catch them in pitfalls and so kill them (219, a).

EXERCISE XXX.

(Based on Caesar, Lessons XXV to XXVII. Review exercise; to be done without reference to the Latin.)

Who can tell where this wood begins or how far (quam longe) it extends? No one has ever reached the beginning of it or ascertained its breadth. If anyone visits it (adire + acc.) he will see among its tall trees many strange (mirus) tribes of beasts, which are not seen here and differ as widely as possible (use quam + superl.) from those known to us. He will see in the shadows (umbra) of the wood the deer with spreading horns, the elk, and the fierce wild ox. The huntsman knows their haunts and follows their tracks to the middle of the wood. There (ibi) he traps and slays them and brings back their horns as evidence of his prowess (virtus). Let him turn to the left, if he sees the wild ox in the woods. Trusting in (fretus) its speed and its might, it will spare neither man nor beast. Let him turn, for fear (ne) he fall and rise not again (rursus). Let him rather (potius) seek out and slay the deer or the elk. They will fall an easier prey.

APPENDIX.

I.—DECLENSION OF GREEK NOUNS.

FIRST DECLENSION.

1. Greek nouns in -ē of the first declension are feminine ; those in -ās and -ēs, are masculine. They are declined as follows in the singular :—

	Ēpītōmē, an abridgment.	Aenēas, Aenēas.	Anchisēs, Anchises.
NOM.	ēpītōmē	Aenēās	Anchisēs

VOC.	ēpītōmē	Aenēā (or -ā)	Anchisē (or -ā)
ABL.	ēpītōmē	Aenēā	Anchisē (or -ā)

Note.—In all cases the plural (when used) is regular, like the plural of mensa, a table (p. 4).

SECOND DECLENSION.

2. Greek nouns of the second declension ending in -os are masculine ; those in -on are neuter. These are declined as follows in the singular :—

	Mŷthos, a tale.	Īlion, Ilium.
NOM.	mŷthos	Īlion
GEN.	mŷthī	Īlī
DAT.	mŷthō	Īlīō
ACC.	mŷthōn	Īlīōn
VOC.	mŷthē	Īlīōn
ABL.	mŷthō	Īlīō

Note.—In the plural they are regular, those in -os being inflected in the plural like dominus (p. 9), and those in -on in the plural like bellum (p. 13) ; but both may have -ōn instead of -ōrum in the genitive plural.

THIRD DECLENSION.

3. Greek nouns of the third declension end generally in -os, as, is, or ys. They are inflected as follows:—

II.—EXCEPTIONS TO RULES FOR GRAMMATICAL GENDER.

FIRST DECLENSION.

Nouns of the first declension ending in -ă and -ē are feminine ; those ending in -as and -es are masculine.

But, dâma, a deer ; talpa, a mole ; Hadria, the Adriatic Sea, are usually masculine.

SECOND DECLENSION.

Nouns of the second declension ending in -us, -er, -ir (-es, Greek), are masculine ; those in -um (-on, Greek), are neuter.

But, alvus, a belly ; carbăsus, linen (pl., carbăsa, sails) ; côlus, a distaff ; hūmus, the ground ; vannus, a winnowing shovel, are feminine.

Pălăgus, the sea (pl., pălăgē, nom. and acc.) ; vulgus (rarely masc.), the crowd, the multitude ; virus, poison, are neuter. (The two last are used only in sing.)

THIRD DECLENSION.

Nouns of the third declension that end in -er, -or, -os, -es (increasing in the gen.), and -o (except -do, -go, and -io), are masculine.

EXCEPTIONS.

(1) -er : cadăver, a dead body ; iter, a road ; papăver, a poppy ; tuber, a swelling ; uber, an udder ; ver, spring ; verber, a lash, are neuter.

(5) -o : caro (carnis), flesh ; ēcho, an echo, are feminine.

Nouns of the third declension that end in -do, -go, -io, -as, is, -aus, -x, es (not increasing in the genitive) -s impure, and -ūs in words of more than one syllable, are feminine.

EXCEPTIONS.

(1) -o: ordo, arrangement; cardo, a hinge; ligo, a mattock; margo, a margin (of a river), are masculine.

(2) -is: amnis, a river; collis, a hill; cinis, cinder, ashes; crinis, hair; ensis, a sword; fascis, a bundle; finis, an end; follis, bel-lows; fūnis, a rope; ignis, fire; lāpis, a stone; mensis, a month; orbis, a circle; panis, bread; piscis, a fish; postis, a post; pulvis, dust; sanguis, blood; torris, a fire-brand; unguis, a nail; vectis, a crowbar; vermis, a worm, are masculine.

(3) -x: cālix, a cup; cōdex, a book; cortex, bark of a tree; grex, a flock; pollex, a thumb; silex, flint; vertex, top, are masculine.

(4) -es: acināces, a scimitar, is masculine.

(5) -s impure: mons, a mountain; dens, a tooth; fons, a fountain; pons, a bridge; bīdens, a mattock; rudens, a rope, are masculine.

(6) -as: as (assis), a small coin; ēlēphas (elephantis), an elephant; vas (vasis), a vessel; fas, right; nēfas, wrong, are neuter.

Nouns of the third declension ending in -c, -a, -t, -e, -l, -n, -ar, ur, -ūs, -ūs (in words of one syllable), are neuter.

EXCEPTIONS.

(1) -l: sal, salt; sol, the sun, are masculine.

(2) -n: lien, spleen; ren, kidney; splen, the spleen; pecten, a comb, are masculine.

(3) -ur: fur, a thief; furfur, bran; turtur, a turtle-dove; vultur, a vulture, are masculine.

(4) -us: pēcus (pēcūdis), a single head of cattle, is feminine; lēpus (lēpōris), a hare; grus, a crane; sus, a pig; mus, a mouse, are masculine.

FOURTH DECLENSION.

Nouns of the fourth declension that end in -us are masculine ; those in -ū are neuter.

EXCEPTIONS.

Ācus, a needle; cōlus, a distaff (also of the 2nd); dōmus, a house; porticus, a portico; tribus, a tribe; Īdūs (pl.), the Ides of the month; Quinquātrūs (pl.), a feast of Minerva; pēnus, store (when of this declension), are feminine.

FIFTH DECLENSION.

Nouns of the fifth declension end in -es, and are feminine.

EXCEPTIONS.

Dies, a day, is masculine or feminine in the singular, and masculine in the plural; merīdies, midday (used only in sing.), is masculine.

III.—IRREGULAR NOUNS.

INDECLINABLE NOUNS.

Indeclinable nouns are neuter and are used only in the nominative and accusative and generally only in the singular. They are as follows:—Fas, right; nēfas, wrong; māne, morning; instar, a model; pondo, weight; sēcus, sex; nīhil, nothing; ōpus, need.

DEFECTIVE NOUNS.

1. The following nouns are used only in the singular:—

(1) Names of persons and places: as, Roma, Rome; Cīcero, Cicero.

(2) Abstract nouns: as, Fīdes, faith; iustitia, justice.

(3) Names of materials: as, Aurum, gold; ferrum, iron.

(4) Single words: as, Merīdies, midday; specimen, example; supell-ex (-ectīlis), furniture; ver, spring; vesper, evening.

2. The following nouns are used only in the plural:—

(1) Class words: as, Māiores, descendants; gemīnī, twins; libērī, children.

(2) Many names of cities : as, Āthēnae, Athens; Thēbae, Thebes; Delphi, Delphi.

(3) Many names of festivals : as, Bacchanālia, Olympia.

(4) Single words ; as, Arma, arms; divītiæ, riches; exsēquiae, funeral rites; exūviae, spoils; Idūs, Ides of the month; indūtiae, a truce; insīdiae, ambuscade; mānes, shades of the dead; mīnae, threats; mōenia, walls; mūnia, duties; nuptiae, a wedding; rēliquiae, remains.

3. The following words have one meaning in the singular and a different one in the plural. :—

SINGULAR.

aedes (F.), Gen., aedis, a temple.

āqua (F.), water.

auxilium (N.), help.

bōnum (N.), a good thing.

carcer (M.), a dungeon.

castrum (N.), a fort, codicillus (M.), a bit of wood.

comitium (N.), a place of assembly.

cōpia (F.), plenty.

fīdes (F.), a harp-string.

finis (M. or F.), an end.

fortūna (F.), fortune.

grātia (F.), favor.

hortus (M.), a garden.

impēdimentum (N.), a hindrance.

litēra (F.), a letter of the alphabet.

lōcus (M.), place; pl., lōca (N.)

lūdus (M.), sport.

nātālis (M.), birthday.

ōpēra (F.), a task.

ōpis (F.), a genitive, help.

pars (F.), a part.

plāga (F.), region.

PLURAL.

aedes, aedium, a house.

āquae, a watering-place

auxilia, auxiliaries.

bōna, goods.

carcēres, barriers of a race-course.

castra, a camp.

codicilli, tablets.

comitia, a political assembly, elections.

cōpiae, troops.

fīdes, lyre.

fīnes (M.), boundaries or territories.

fortūnae, possessions.

gratiae, thanks.

horti, pleasure-grounds.

impēdimenta, baggage of an army.

litērae, an epistle.

lōci (M.), passages in books.

lūdi, public games.

nātāles, descent, ancestry.

ōpērae, day laborers.

ōpes, wealth resources.

plāgae, snares.

rostrum (N.), a beak, prow of a vessel.	rostra, political platform or hustings.
sal (M. or N.), salt.	săles (M.), witticisms, wit.
tabella (F.), a tablet.	tabellae, documents.

The following nouns are wanting in some of the cases :—

(1) Nom., Dat., Voc. Sing.: —, ōpis, —, ōpem, —, ōpe, help ; —, vīcis, —, vīcem, —, vīce, change.

(2) Nom., Gen., Voc. Sing.: —, —, přecī, přecem, —, přecě, prayer.

(3) Nom. and Voc. Sing.: —, dăpis, dăpi, dăpem, —, dăpe, food ; —, frūgis, frūgī, frūgem, —, frūge, fruit.

(4) Gen., Dat., and Abl. Plural : Most nouns of the fifth declension, except spēs, hope, and rēs, a thing. So also far, corn ; mel, honey ; fel, bile ; pūs, matter of a wound ; rus, the country ; tus, incense.

(5) Genitive plural : especially monosyllables : as, nex, murder ; pax, peace ; pix, pitch ; cor, heart ; cos, a whetstone ; ros, dew ; sal, salt ; sol, the sun ; lux, light.

HETEROCLITIC NOUNS.

Some nouns have two or more forms of declension. Thus :

Oculus (F.), a distaff, and many names of plants and trees are of the second ; but they may have those forms of the fourth that end in -us.

Iūgerum (N.), an acre, is of the second declension in the singular, but of the third in the plural.

Vas (N.), a vessel (Gen., vāsīs), is of the third declension in the singular and of the second in the plural.

Festivals in -alia (as Bacchanālia), are neuter plurals of the third declension, but have the genitive plural in -ōrum, not in -iūm.

Ancile (N.), a shield, is of the third (like mǎre, the sea) ; but the genitive plural is -ōrum, instead of -iūm.

Rēquies (F.), Gen. rēquīētis, rest, is of the third, but has rēquiem, and rēquīē of the fifth.

Fāmes (F.), Gen. fāmīs, is regularly of the third, but has fāmē of the fifth, not fāmē of the third.

For dŏmus (F.), a house, see p. 62, 6.

Many words have two forms, one belonging to one declension and another to another. Thus :

Luxuriā (F.), luxury; mātēriā, (F.), matter, timber; saevitiā (F.), cruelty, are of the first ; while luxuriēs (F.), mātēriēs (F.), saevitiēs (F.), are of the fifth. So also, eventus (M.), an event; cōnātus (M.), an attempt, are of the fourth ; while eventum (N.), and cōnātum (N.), are of the second.

Iuventus (F.), Gen., iuventūtis, the youth of a country; iūventas (F.), Gen., iuventātis, goddess of youth; iūventa (F.), time of youth.

Sēnectus (F.), Gen., senectūtis, time of old age has the poetical senecta (F.); so paupertas (F.), Gen., paupertatis, poverty has the poetical paupēries (F.), Gen., -ei.

HETEROGENEOUS NOUNS.

Some nouns have two different genders in the singular. Thus :

The following have one form in -us, masculine, and one form in -um, neuter : balteus, or um, a belt; iugulus, -um, the throat; clīpēus, -um, a shield; collus, -um, neck; bacūlus, -um, a staff; cubitus, -um, elbow.

The following have a different gender in the singular and plural respectively :

Balnēum (N. sing.), balneae (F. pl.), bath; caelum (N. sing.), caeli (M. pl.), heavens; carbāsus (F. sing.), carbasa (N. pl.), sail; delicium (N. sing.), deliciae (F. pl.), delight; rastrum (N. sing.), rastri (M. pl.) harrows; epulum (N. sing.), epulae (F. pl.), banquet; frēnum (N. sing.), bit; freni (M.) or frēna (N.); iŏcus (M. sing.), iŏca (N. pl.), places; iŏcus (M. sing.), jest; ioci (M. pl.), or ioca (N. pl.)

VI.—LATIN ALPHABET.¹

The Latin alphabet is the same as the English with the omission of w. The letters are divided into (a) vowels, and (b) consonants.

¹This section is taken mainly from Allen & Greenough's Latin Grammar (Ginn & Co.)

Vowels are sounds formed by the breath vibrating through the vocal cords unobstructed in its passage, but modified by the position of the organs of utterance.

CLASSIFICATION OF VOWELS (VOWEL SCALE).

Open		A
Medial		E		O
Close	I	Y		U

The primitive vowel-sound is a, as in father; in pronouncing it, the vocal organs are fully open. Starting from this vowel and gradually contracting the passage between the palate and the tongue, we form in succession e (pronounced ey, as in they), and i (pronounced i, as in machine). Again by contracting the lips in a similar manner, we get o (pronounced as in holy), and u (pronounced, oo as in boot). By contracting both lips and palate, we get the French sound of u represented by the Greek υ and the Latin y.

CLASSIFICATION OF CONSONANTS.

Consonants are classified :—

(a) According to the organs of speech employed in uttering them, as :—

- (1) Labials (or lip-letters).....p, b, m, f, v.
- (2) Dentals (or teeth-letters).....t, d, n, s.
- (3) Linguals (or tongue-letters)r, l.
- (4) Palatals (or palate-letters)i (=j=y).
- (5) Gutturals (or throat-letters)c, k, q, d, n (before guttural), h.

(b) According to the degree of breathing required in their utterance, as :—

- (a) Mutes.....p, b, c (k), q, g, t, d, f (ph), ch, th.
- (b) Semi-vowels..i (j), and v.
- (c) Nasals.....m and n.

Mutes are classed, on the same principle, into :—

- (1) Smooth.....p, t, c (k, qu).
- (2) Middle.....b, d, g.
- (3) Rough (or aspirate)....f (ph), v, (th), (ch).

Combining these two methods, we have the following scheme :—

	LABIALS.	DENTALS.	GUTTURALS.
Smooth Mutes	p	t	c (k, qu)
Middle Mutes	b	d	g
Rough Mutes.....	f (ph), v	th	ch

Consonants are further classed :—

(c) According to the manner in which they are uttered, as :

(1) Surds (or voiceless letters).....p, t, k, c, qu.

(2) Sonants (or voiced letters).....b, d, g.

The following table will illustrate the classification of consonants :—

MUTES.			SEMI-VOWELS.
VOICELESS OR SURD.		VOICED OR SONANT.	NASALS.	LIQUIDS.	SPIRANTS OR FRICATIVES.	SIBILANTS.
Labials	p	b	m		f, v
Dentals	t	d	n			s, z
Liquids				r, l	i (or j), y
Palatals
Gutturals ...	c, k, q	g	n (before a guttural)		h

CHANGES OF LETTERS.

Letters are changed according to general laws of inflection or derivation, or to secure an easier utterance (euphonic change).

Vowels are changed by :—

(a) Vowel increase : as, lēgo, lēgi; ěmo, ěmi; plācēre, plācāre; sōnus, persōna; dūces, dūco; fīdes, fīdo, foedus. So in English, fell, fall, fallen; tell, told; bind, band, bound.

(b) Vowel weakening. Following the vowel scale (p. 290), we find these changes usually from a to i on the one side, and from a to u on the other; but often across from o to e. Thus : factum, confectum, con-ficio; āgo, ēgi, red-īgo; salio, ex-sulto; verto, vorto (old form); sequi, socius; tego, toga.

(c) Contraction or omission: as, redīit=redit; cōāgo=cōgo; nīhil=nīl; audacter=audāciter.

(d) Suppression of the fricatives (i or j) and v: as, cunctus=coiunctus; rursus=reversus; amāisset=amavisset.

Consonants are changed by :—

(a) Substitution: as, r for s between two vowels and before m or n: as, genesis to generis; disemo to diremo; vetusnus to veternus; or s for d or t, for ease in pronunciation: as, cactus to casus; cedtum to cessum.

(b) Omission: as, examen for exagmen; caementum for caedmentum; lūna for lūcna; pes for peds

(c) Insertion: as, sum-p-si from sūmo; hīemps for hīems.

(d) Transposition: as, sperno, sprēvi; cerno, crēvi,

(e) Dissimilation: as, meridies for medidies.

(f) Assimilation: (1) Partial (i.e., a smooth mute precedes a smooth mute; a middle, a middle; an aspirate, an aspirate; p. 291): as, scriptus for scrib-tus; actus for ag-tus; so too quantus, for quam-tus. (2) Complete: as, cessi for ced-si; summus for sub-mus; sella for sed-la. Assimilation often occurs in the case of the last consonant of the preposition in compounds. Thus: afficio for ad-ficio; occasio for ob-casio; corruo for con-ruo; suppono for sub-pono.

SYLLABICATION.

In the division of syllables (syllabication), a single consonant between two vowels is to be written with the latter: as, fā-ber, re-gi-na, do-mi-nus.

Double consonants (i.e., two consonants that can begin a word) are often so used: as, ho-spes, ma-gnus, di-xit.

When the consonant is doubled, the first belongs to the first syllable, and the second to the second syllable: as, an-nus, pen-na, mit-to, bel-lum.

The parts of compounds are treated as separate words: as, ab-est; in-ut-i-lis; ob-i-re.

Note.—The last syllable of a word is called the ultimate, the next to the last, the penultimate or pēnult, and the one before the pēnult, the ante-penultimate or antepēnult.

VII.—LATIN PRONUNCIATION.

There are two methods of pronunciation of Latin words : (a) The Roman method ; (b) the English method. Both are widely used. The following is a report of the committee of the Ontario Classical Association, which was appointed in 1891 to consider the subject of Latin pronunciation :—

LATIN PRONUNCIATION.

Your Committee, appointed to consider the subject of Latin Pronunciation, beg leave to report as follows :—

As the reports of the High School Inspectors sufficiently prove, there is at present in Ontario no uniform system of Latin pronunciation.

Owing largely to this defect, the oral reading of Latin is little attended to in many schools, while from others it is completely excluded.

It is hardly necessary to point out what an important instrument for teaching is thus neglected. If taught through the ear as well as through the eye, pupils learn much more quickly, and get a far more secure hold upon a language.

Not the least serious effect of the present disregard of oral teaching, is the ignorance of quantity that prevails very generally, with the consequent inability to appreciate Latin metres.

In the hope of partially rectifying present evils, your Committee have decided upon a scheme of Latin Pronunciation which it is hoped will be adopted by the Association and by classical teachers throughout the Province.

The scheme follows that known as “the Roman method,” and is based upon a report made in 1887 to the Cambridge Philological Society by a committee consisting of John Peile, J. F. Postgate and J. S. Reid. This report opens with the following announcement :—
“Your committee have come to the conclusion that the classical pronunciation of Latin has been sufficiently ascertained for the purpose of drawing up a scheme which may reasonably be regarded as permanent.”

Before being adopted, the report was fully discussed at two meetings of the Philological Society, and was "put forth by the Society as an approximate statement of the pronunciation of Latin by the educated classes in the Augustan period."

Besides giving what is presumably the correct pronunciation of Latin, the scheme involves three main advantages :—(a) it is brief and simple ; (b) it presents a practically phonetic alphabet ; (c) it makes very clear the distinction in quantity between long and short vowels.

The Roman method is already used in some parts of Canada, and is commonly followed in the best schools and colleges in the United States.

ROMAN METHOD.

VOWELS.

Letters.

Pronunciation.

Latin A long as in cālo, mānāre, as Eng. a in psalm, salve.
short as in cālor, mānĕo. the same sound shortened.

Both ǎ and ā are found in ǎhā!

N.B. ā in Latin was never pronounced as in mate, nor ǎ as in man, mat.

E long as in nēdum, as Eng. e in grey and skein.
sēcēdo, diē.

short as in nēfas, sēcō, as Eng. e in sped and met.

arcē.

N.B. Lat. ē was never pronounced as Eng. ee in see.

- I long as in sī, sīn, rīdēo. as i in machine, ee in feel.
 N.B. The Latin ī was never the i in fine.
 short as in sīne, sītīs, rīgīdus. as i in fit, pin.
- O long as in cōmīs, ōmēn. as o in bone, lone.
 short as in cōmēs, ōpūs. nearest representative Eng. is o in not, rock.
- U long as in ūnā, ūmōr. as u in ruin, rude.
 N.B. Lat. ū was never pronounced like u in acute, mule, which is yoo.
 short as in ūtēr, hūmūs. as u in full, oo in foot.
 N.B. Lat. ū never as Eng. ū in but, cut.
- Y long as in gŷrūs, Hydra. as I long.
 short as in cŷmbā, lŷrā. as y in beauty, lady.

DIPHTHONGS.

The pronunciation of the diphthongs is best learnt by first sounding each vowel separately and then running them together. Thus: ae as ah-eh; au as ah-oo; oe as o-eh; ei as eh-ee; eu as eh-oo, and ui as oo-ee.

- AE in taedae nearly Eng. a in fare.
 AU in laudo Eng. ou in house.
 OE in foedus N.B. Avoid the pronunciation "feed-us."
 EI in hei Eng. ey in grey, ei in skein.
 EU in seu, neuter } The general rule, as given above, is a UI in cui, huic } sufficient guide.

CONSONANTS.

- C as in cāno, cēcīni, circā, condicio. always as Eng. k; never as s or as c before e, i.
 Qu in inquit. as Eng. qu in quick.
 G in gaudeo, gēnus, gīgās, agē. always as Eng. g in got, get, begin; never as j or g soft.

N before c (k, qu), g, as inc̄ipit, as ng in sing; thus: ingkipit, ing- inquam, congero. quam, conggero.

R in ringi, rārus, datōr.

trilled r as in French or Scotch.

S as in sūs, accūso, tristes.

always voiceless, as in hiss, hist;
never voiced as in has (haz).

J or I consonant, as in iūgum, iācio.

as Eng. y. Thus: yugum, yakio.

V or U consonant, as in uānus, uīs, seruo (i.e., vanus, vis, seruo).

as Eng. w. Thus: wāhnus, wees, serwo.

N.B. There is no ancient authority for spelling i consonant as j, or u consonant as v. The Romans used one symbol for both vowel and consonant.

B, D, F, H, L, M, P, T

as in Eng.

N.B. T is always the same.
Editio is not to be pronounced edishio.

X as in saxum, exulto.

as Eng. ks (x); eksulto, not eggsulto.

Z as in gaza, Zephyrus.

Probably as dz in adze.

Double consonants should be carefully separated in pronunciation, as ag-ger, pos-sum, pen-na.

QUANTITY.

Observance of quantity is of vital importance for the proper appreciation of metre in Latin poetry and of rhythm in prose. The difference in duration between short and long vowels should be carefully observed. Distinguish (e.g.) bōnum and dōnum, mīles and fīdes, cūpidus and dūrus. Observe the quantity in sīc, nōn, sīnē, dīē, etc.

Each vowel has a quantity of its own, and, as far as possible, the natural length of a vowel should be distinguished from the conventional "lengthening" which it undergoes before two consonants.
The ī of scribo is still ī in scriptus, as the ē of sēco is still short (by nature) in sēctus. But in sectus the weight of the double consonant allows the syllable to be treated in verse as if it were naturally long.

From ancient authorities we learn that vowels were regarded as long in themselves, when preceding ns, nf, gn, ct (when representing gt, as in lēctus from lēgo), and at least sometimes before nc, nq and r followed by a consonant. Thus cōnstāns, īnfēnsus, rēgnum, sīgnum, quīnque, sānctus, ōrdo, ōrno.

THE ENGLISH METHOD.

The following are the rules of pronunciation according to the English method :--

SOUNDS OF THE VOWELS.

Long Vowels.

ā	as in	fate ;	aš	āra.
ē	“	mete ;	“	ēdi.
ī	“	pine ;	“	īra.
ō	“	note ;	“	ōdi
ū	“	tube ;	“	ūnus.
ȳ	“	type ;	“	misȳ.

Short Vowels.

ă	as in	fat ;	as,	ămo.
ě	“	met ;	“	rěget.
ĩ	“	pín ;	“	vīdet.
ǒ	“	not ;	“	mǒnet.
ũ	“	tub ;	“	sũmus.
ŷ	“	myth ;	“	Tethŷs.

(1) I preceded by an accented a, e, o, or y and followed by another vowel, is a semi-vowel with the sound of the English y in yet, as in the Roman Method : as, Āchā-īa, pronounced A-chā-yā.

(2) U after q, and generally in gu, su before a vowel, has the sound of w as in the Roman Method : as, qui (pron. kwī), suāsi (pron. swaysī).

SOUNDS OF THE DIPHTHONGS.

Ae like e : as, Caesar, Daedalus ; au, as in author, aurum ; oe like e : as, Oeta, Oedipus ; eu, as in neuter, neuter ; ei, oi, when diphthongs, are pronounced as ei in height, and oi in coin ; ui, as a diphthong, has the long sound of i ; as, cui (kwī), huic (hīc).

SOUNDS OF THE CONSONANTS.

(1) C and g are soft (like s and j) before e, i, y, ae, oe, and hard in other situations : as, cēdo (pronounced se-do), cādo (pronounced ka-do).

c has the sound of sh (1) before i preceded by an accented syllable and followed by a vowel: as, sōcius (pronounced so-she-us), and (2) before eu, yo preceded by an accented syllable: as caduceus (pronounced ca-du-she-us).

g has the soft sound before g soft: as, ag-ger.

(2) s, t, x are pronounced as in English. But—

(a) s, t, x are aspirated before i preceded by an accented syllable and followed by a vowel, s and t taking the sound of sh, x that of ksh: as, artium (pronounced ar-she-um), anxiūs (pronounced ank-she-us).

(b) t loses the aspirate after (1) s, t, x: as, mixtio; (2) in old infinitives in -ier: as, flec-ti-er; (3) in proper nouns: as, Philistion.

(c) s has the sound of z after e, ae, au, b, m, n, r: as, spes, praes, urbs; also, in a few words after the analogy of the corresponding English words: as, causa.

(d) x, at the beginning of a word, is pronounced z: as, Xanthus.

VIII.—QUANTITY AND ACCENTUATION.

QUANTITY.

Syllables are divided, according to the time taken in their pronunciation, into long, short, and common.

Long Syllables.—A syllable is long in quantity—

(1) If it contains a diphthong or a long vowel: as, haec, res.

(2) If it is contracted: as, nīl for nīhil.

(3) If its vowel is followed by i (i.e., j), x, z, or any two consonants except a mute (p. 290) followed by a liquid (l, m, n, r): as, dux, rex, sunt. In this case it is said to be long by position.

Short Syllables.—A syllable is short if its vowel is followed by another vowel, by a diphthong, or by the aspirate h: as, dies, viae, nīhil. In these cases it is said to be short by position.

Common Syllables.—A syllable is common, if its vowel, naturally short, is followed by a mute and a liquid : as, āgri, lātēbrae, ālācris. Long syllables are marked by - ; short syllables by ˘ ; common syllables by ˉ.

ACCENTUATION.

Words of one syllable are always accented : as, rex, dux.

Words of two syllables are always accented on the first : as, men'-sa.

Words of more than two syllables are accented on the penult (or next to the last), if that is long in quantity ; otherwise on the antepenult (or third from the last) : as, hō-nōr'-is, con'-sū-lis.

If an enclitic (or appended word) is joined to a word, the accent falls on the syllable next to the enclitic, whether long or short : as, dēā'que, amare've, tībī'ne.

IX.—ROOT. STEM. INFLECTION.

A root is the simplest combination of sounds that expresses the general meaning of any word or set of words either in the same language or in other languages of the same family. Thus: vī-tis, a vine; vīmen, osier; vī-ēo, I bind, are derived from the root vi-, bind.

A stem is the part of a word that remains after the grammatical terminations are taken away. Thus, reg- is the stem of rex [= reg + s (s, the termination of nom.)]; voca- is the stem of vocas [= voca + s (s, the termination of the 2 pers. sing.)]

A stem is formed from a root, sometimes without change, but generally by modification of the root vowel, or by the addition of some suffix or suffixes. Thus: dūc is a root and the stem of dūces, leaders; vi- is the root, but vīti- is the stem of vītis, a vine; voc is the root, but vōcā- the stem, of vōcās, thou callest.

Inflection is the change a stem undergoes to express the various grammatical relations it has to other words in the sentence. This change is effected by means of grammatical terminations or endings (also called inflections.) These inflections include the forms of cases of nouns, pronouns and adjectives, and the forms of the moods, tenses, number and person of the verbs.

Inflections had originally a meaning, but it can no longer be traced. They are not usually added to roots, but to roots prepared for the addition. The different vowels used to connect the stem with the inflections of nouns (aided by certain phonetic changes), have given rise to the different declensions which, no doubt, were originally one. Thus:

- | | | | | | | |
|----|-------|------|--------|---------|--------------------|-----------|
| 1. | Decl. | Gen. | Sing., | mensae, | probably for orig. | mensa-is. |
| 2. | " | " | | servi, | " | servo-is. |
| 3. | " | " | | reg-is, | | |
| 4. | " | " | | gradus, | " | gradu-is. |
| 5. | " | " | | rei, | " | re-is. |

The stem of the first declension ends in -ă (as, mensă-); of the second declension in -o (as, domino-); of the third declension in a consonant or -i (as, reg-, stem of rex; turri-, stem of turris); of the fourth declension in -u (as gradu-); of the fifth declension in -e (as, re-, stem of res).

X.—LATIN VERB FORMS.
Table of Latin Active Conjugation in its Earliest Forms.

	INDICATIVE.	IMPERATIVE.	SUBJ. expressing wish (=Opt)	INFINITIVE.	PARTICIPLE.
PRES.	1. amo = ama-y-o-mi (consecutive vowels always separated by y) 2. moneo = mone-y-o-mi 3. (a) rego = reg-o-mi (b) capio = cap-y-o-mi (by analogy with 1 and 2 conj.) 4. audio = audi-y-o-mi	3rd Conj. shows thematic e. The personal sign s is omitted as unnecessary. The other conj., having pure roots, dispense with the thematic vowel.	Regular sign of Opt = a. Only 1st. Conj. shows e. Amen = ama-y-em ; cf. εἴπῃ.	Original se, as in esse, becomes re after a vowel. Se = sai is dat. or loc. in origin.	-nts -ntis
IMPF.	-bam = bhuam. (I.E. verb bhuo, L. fuo, E. be)		-rem = sem ; cf. essem, and re = se (in inf.)
FUTURE.	(a) am, Subj. opt. ending. (b) bo = bom (bhuomi) ; cf. Eng. am to go.		-erim = (e)sim Signific perf.	-isse = ise. The double s on analogy of esse.	-turus, from -tor ; daturus from dator.
PERFECT.	(a) Reduplicated. (b) Sigmatic : as, scripsi. (c) in -vi : as, monui.				Supines in -u and -um, abl. and acc. respectively of part. noun in -tus.
PLUPER.	-eram = (e)sam, past of sigmatic perf.		-issem = isem cf. inf. -isse.
FUT.-PERF.	-ero = (e)so (s = r between two vowels). Subj. of sigmatic perf. (o always the sign of subj. cf. εἰδῇ(σ)ω).

REMARKS.

1. The endings of the primary tenses were originally in the singular -mi, -si, -ti, in the plural -mos, -tes, -nti.

2. In Latin the secondary endings -m, -s, -t, have everywhere displaced the primary endings -mi, -si, -ti. Thus the same personal suffix is used in tenses of both orders.

3. The secondary tenses invariably use these endings; primary tenses generally use them, but sometimes drop them.

4. The thematic vowel is the vowel that attaches the personal ending to the verb-root. Before nasals (m, n) the thematic vowel is o; elsewhere it is e. Changes in the thematic vowel are due to phonetic laws peculiar to the Latin language. Thus:—

reg-o	=reg-o-m (i)
reg-i-s	=reg-e-s(i) (e becoming -i in unaccented syllables).
reg-i-t	=reg-e-t(i)
reg-i-mus	=reg-o-mos
reg-i-tis	=reg-e-tes
reg-u-nt	=reg-o-nt(i)

5. When the verb-root terminated in a vowel, consonantal i(y) was introduced before the thematic vowel. This was due to a law of the original Indo-European language which did not admit of two vowels coming together and thus forming a hiatus. Thus:—

am(a)-o	=ama-y-o-m(i)
mone-o	=mone-y-o-m(i)
audi-o	=audi-y-o-m(i)

6. The -i in capiō is due to analogy of verb-roots terminating in a vowel, and not to phonetic reasons as is the case in, e.g., mone-om.

7. All the conjugations are reducible to one, with the same thematic vowel. In conjugations other than the third, the thematic vowel has generally been absorbed by the vowel terminating the verb-root.

XI.—DERIVATION.

Considerable help in the mastery of Latin vocabulary will be found in attending to the composition of words. Thus: contendo is from con, an intensive particle, and tendo, stretch; and, therefore, means to strain, to exert one's self; occupo is from ob, on, and capiō, seize; and must mean to seize on.

Note.—The component parts of a derivative word are written after it in brackets. Thus : imprōbus (in. not, and prōbus, good), bad.

The meaning of such prefixes and affixes will be mastered gradually and in detail. The more common are given here.

VERBS.

(a) The ending -to, -īto, or -ito, has a frequentative force; i.e., expresses a frequent or repeated action : as—

iacio, throw ;	iacto, toss .
dico, say ;	dictito, keep saying .
dormio, sleep ;	dormito, nod .

Such verbs are called frequentatives.

(b) The ending -sco has an inchoative or inceptive force, i.e., denotes the beginning of an action : as—

lābo, are, totter ;	laba-sco, begin to totter .
----------------------------	------------------------------------

(c) The ending -esso expresses eagerness : as—

capiō, take ;	capesso, snatch .
----------------------	--------------------------

(d) The ending -ūrio expresses a desire; as—

morior die ;	moritūrio, wish to die .
edo, eat ;	esūrio, be hungry .
pario, bring forth ;	partūrio, be in labor .

(e) the ending -illo has a diminutive force : as—

canto, sing ;	cant-illo, chirp .
----------------------	---------------------------

Note.—The following list of verbs, differing in meaning in different conjugations, may be useful :—

pendeo, hang (intrans.) ;	pendo, hang (trans.)
fūgio, fly ;	fugo, are, put to flight .
cado, fall ;	caedo, fell, kill .
iacio, throw ;	iaceo, lie .
liquo, are, make clear ;	liquet, it is clear .
sēdeo, sit ;	sēdo, are, allay .

NOUNS.

(a) The ending -tor or -sor denotes a male agent: as, proditor, betrayed; victor, a conqueror. Some of these have a feminine form: as, victrix.

Note.—Nouns in -tor are very common in Latin, much more common than the corresponding English nouns in -er. Where there is no corresponding noun in English, the Latin noun must be paraphrased: as, auctores ad liberandam patriam non desiderantur illis actoribus, men to abet them in the liberation of their country are not required for the men who did this deed (of the conspirators who killed Caesar.)

(b) The endings -io, tio, -tus and -tura denote an action (= Eng. -ing): as, rēg-io, a keeping straight, a line; auditio or auditus, a hearing; mercatura, a trading.

Nouns in -io are very common: as, spe contentionis depositā, having laid down hope of carrying on the struggle. They often come to have a concrete force: as, factio, a doing, then a faction; dissensio, a differing in opinion, then, dissension.

(c) The endings -lus, la, lum, have a diminutive force: as, rivulus, a rivulet (rivus, brook).

(d) The ending -etum expresses a place full of: as, vinetum (vinum, wine, grapes) vineyard. So: arbustum (arbor, tree) plantation.

(e) The endings -tas, -ia, -tudo, express a quality: as, veritas (verus), truth; audacia (audax), boldness; aegritudo (aeger), sickness.

(f) The endings -cūlum, būlum, trum and mentum, express a means or instrument: as, iācūlum (iacio), dart; arātrum (aro), plough; documentum (doceo, teach), proof.

(g) The ending, -ile, added to the name of an animal, denotes the place where it is kept: as, ovile (ovis, sheep), fold; bōvile (bos), ox-stall.

(h) The ending -ides (for nouns in -us preceded by a consonant), -ides (for nouns in -eus), ādes (for nouns in -as), express "son of":

as, Priamides, son of Priam; Atrides, son of Atreus; Aeneādes, son of Aenēas. Such nouns are called patronymics.

(i) The endings -is, -ēis, ias, -ine and -ōne, express "daughter of": as, Tantalīs, daughter of Tantalus; Nerēis, daughter of Nereus; Thestias, daughter of Thestius; Neptunine, daughter of Neptune; Acrisiōne, daughter of Acrisius.

ADJECTIVES.

(a) The ending -bundus has the force of the pres. participle intensified: as, moribundus, on the point of death.

(b) The ending -cundus denotes a quality: as, iracundus, passionate; facundus, eloquent.

(c) The endings -ilis and -ibilis denote able to do (or be done to) what the stem implies: as, fertilis, able to bear, fertile; terribilis, terrible; docilis, teachable; habilis, easily handled, manageable; facilis, easy.

(d) The ending -ax denotes an inclination or capacity: as, loquax, talkative; capax, capacious.

(e) The ending -eus denotes made of: as, aureus, golden.

So, -nus, -neus, with names of trees: as, quernus (-neus), made of oak (quercus).

(f) The endings -osus and -lentus denote fulness: as, periculōsus, full of danger; violentus, full of violence.

(g) The endings -icus, -icus, -ilis, -ālis, -ius, -inus, -ānus, -ārius, express relating to what the stem implies: as, bellicus, warlike; amicus, friendly; hostilis, hostile. (Note.—Adjectives in -ilis from nouns, have i; from verbs, i) ; navālis, pertaining to a ship; patrius, pertaining to a father; caninus, pertaining to a dog; urbānus, pertaining to a city; agrarius, pertaining to land.

(h) The endings -ātus, -itus, and -ūtus, give a pf. part. pass. force: as, alātus, winged; auritus, eared; cornūtus, horned.

(i) The endings (1) -ensis (with nouns in -ae, -um, -o); (2) -inus (with nouns in -ia and -ium); (3) -ānus (with nouns in -a, -ae, -um, -i); (4) as(āti3) (with nouns in -num, -na, -nae), and (5) -icus (with names of countries), denote belonging to the town or country from the name of which the adjective is formed. Thus : (1) Cannensis, of Cannae; Cōmensis, of Comum; Sulmonensis, of Sulmo. (2) Amerīnus, of Ameria; Caudīnus, of Caudium. (3) Romanus, of Rome (Rōma); Thebanus, from Thebes (Thebae); Tusculanus, from Tuscūlum; Fundanus, of Fundi. (4) Arpīnas, of Arpinum. (Duo Arpinātes, Marius and Cicero); Capēnas, of Capēna; Fidēnas, of Fidēnae; Gallicus, of Gaul.

PREFIXES.

(a) amb=about: as, ambio, go round; anceps (caput), two-headed.

(b) dis- or di-=asunder: as, dimitto, send in different directions. With adjectives it has a negative force: as, dissimilis, unlike.

(c) in-=Eng. un=not: as, infectus, undone.

(d) re-=(1) back: as, reddo, give back; (2) again: as, reficio, make again; (3) Eng. un:- as, resēro, unbar (sēra, bar); (4) =Eng. dis:- as, reprōbo, disapprove.

(e) se-=aside, from: as, sēcūrus, free from care; sēpono, lay aside; so, seiungo, disjoin.

(f) ve-=Eng. un-, -less: as, vēsanus, insane; vecors, senseless.

(g) sesqui- (=semisque, and a half?)=one half more: as, sesquibra, a pound and a half; sesquipes, a foot and a half.

PREPOSITIONS IN COMPOSITION.

The preposition in composition often retains its original force: as, expello, I drive out. Frequently, however, it will be found with a different meaning altogether: as, abutor, use up; dedisco, unlearn. Such peculiarities of meaning should be carefully mastered, as they are met with in reading. A few examples, for the sake of illustration, will be given here.

Cum or con,

Conficio, do completely, finish (intensive); contorqueo, hurl at (=to a point).

De.

Depugno, fight to the death (intensive); dearmo, disarm (negative); defero, bring down, report; decedo, go away; deficio, make (or loose) away, ∴ revolt, fail; dedo, give up.

Per.

Perficio, do thoroughly, finish; permagnus, very great.

Sub.

Succedo, come into the place of; sufficio, elect in the place of; sublēvo, lift up (i.e., from under); sūmo (=subemo), take up; suspicio look up to; subsequor, follow close; subduco, withdraw secretly; suborno, prepare secretly, suborn; suspicor, look up at askance, suspect; subrideo, smile.

XII.—SUMMARY OF SYNTAX RULES.

1. The direct object is in the acc., the indirect in the dat. (p. 5).
2. A relative agrees with its antecedent in gender, number, and person; its case is determined by the verb of its own clause (p. 126).
3. Verbs of making, choosing, calling, &c. (factitives), take two accusatives (p. 90).
4. Verbs of asking, clothing, teaching, concealing, take two accs. (p. 92).
5. Duration of time and extent of space are in the acc. (p. 69).
6. An acc. is used with an adj. or verb to define its meaning (acc. of specification, p. 98); an acc. is also used adverbially: as, Hoc potuit, he was able for this.
7. The subject of the inf. is in the acc. (p. 109).
8. The genitive is used to express the whole of which a part is taken (partitive gen., p. 69).
9. The gen. is used with sum to express belongs to and to express task, duty, mark, &c. (p. 124).
10. The gen. is used to express quality (p. 130), and indefinite price (p. 150).

11. The gen. of source is used with certain verbs of feeling (p. 165).

12. The gen. is used with rēfert and interest, it is of importance to (p. 166).

13. The gen. of the charge is used with verbs of accusing, condemning &c. (p. 167).

14. The gen. is used with verbs of remembering and forgetting (p. 146).

15. Adjs. followed in English by of, take the gen. (p. 61).

16. Adjs. followed in English by to or for take the dative (p. 67).
